Provided that the safety valves of small locomotive type boilers with overhead engines may, if the limitations of space so require, be attached to the engine cylinder casting, but in that case there shall be a clear short passage way of ample sectional area and structional strength between the valves and the boiler.

(d) The openings in the boiler shell for safety valves shall be left clear and uncovered on the inside and shall not be connected to an internal pipe of any description.

(e) Each safety valve shall be capable of being lifted a distance equal to at least one-fourth of its effective diameter and there shall be a free outlet for the waste steam.

(f) Where a waste steam pipe is fitted, the pipe and the passages leading to it shall have a cross sectional area not less in square inches than the minimum combined areas of the safety valves required under sub-regulation (b).

(g) For each large enclosed safety valve chest a means of draining shall be provided and the drain pipe shall be led clear of the boiler.

(h) Means shall be provided in every case to prevent the valves being lifted out of their seats when working. Large valve seats shall be secured by studs and nuts.

(i) In the case of lever valves, if the holes in the lever are not bushed with brass, the pins shall be of brass ; iron and iron working together shall not be permitted.

(j) The weight of a lever and weight safety valve shall be in one piece and be secured at the end of the lever against a change of position. In the case of spring loaded safety valves, washers or ferrules shall be fitted under the adjusting screws so that the valves cannot be overloaded when under steam.

(k) Safety valves shall be accessible and so arranged that they can be eased off their seats at any time. In the case of dead weight and spring loaded safety valves a substantial test lever for the purpose shall be provided.

(l) The size of the steel of which the springs of direct loaded safety valves are made shall be found by the following formula :—

$$\sqrt[3]{\frac{L \times D}{C}} = \text{thickness of wire in inches} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (71)}$$

L is the load on the spring in pounds,

D is the diameter of the spring from centre to centre of wire in inches,

C=8,000 for round steel and 11,000 for square steel.

(m) The springs shall have a sufficient number of coils with a range of compression equal to at least one-half of the diameter of the valve. When loaded to the working pressure the amount of compression shall not be less than one quarter of the diameter of the valve.

126. Water gauges.—(a) Every boiler shall have two means of indicating the water level in it, and have marked on it, when applicable, in a contiguous position easily seen, the level of the highest part of the furnaces, fire-box or combustion chamber as the case may be.

(b) All large boilers shall be fitted with two glass water gauges. For small boilers where there is difficulty in fitting two glass water gauges, two test cocks may be fitted in place of the second class water gauge.

(c) The lowest visible part of the glass water gauge and lower test cock shall be fixed at a safe working level. For locomotive type and vertical boilers this shall not be less than 2 inches above the highest part of the fire-box roof plate.

(d) Glass water gauges shall be so placed as to be easily seen and reached by the boiler attendant. The fittings of glass water gauges and test cocks shall be of substantial make with large passage ways through them, and so constructed that an instrument can be passed through the opening. The gauge cocks when open shall have their handles in a vertical direction and each handle at its junction with the plug shall be plainly marked with a deep line to indicate the direction of the passage way through the plug. A drain cock and pipe shall be fitted to each glass water gauge. A guard to prevent injury to the attendant and a pointer to show the ordinary working water level shall also be fitted to each glass water gauge.

127. Steam pressure gauge.—Each boiler shall have a separate steam pressure gauge placed where it can be easily seen. It shall be marked in pounds per square inch and shall have a range of not less than double the working pressure of the boiler. A red line shall mark the working pressure and a syphon pipe shall be fitted between the pressure gauge and the boiler.

128. Steam stop valve.—(a) A steam stop valve shall be fitted between the boiler and the steam pipe and, except in the case in which a super-heater forms an integral part of the boiler itself (e.g., in the Babcock and Wilcox water tube boiler) between the boiler and the super-heater. Where two or more boilers are connected with a steam receiver or any other vessel, a steam stop valve shall be fitted between the boiler and such receiver or vessel.

(b) Steam stop valves shall be attached direct to the boiler shell or to suitable pads or stand blocks riveted to the shell, and the neck of the valve chest shall be reasonably short and of strong construction : Provided that in the case of a large boiler in which it is proposed, for the purpose of drainage or owing to obstruction, to connect the steam pipes to the steam stop valve at a higher level than would be obtained under this regulation, a vertical stand pipe not exceeding 5" diameters in height will be permitted between the stop valve and the boiler. Such stand pipes shall be of strong construction, and of wrought iron, mild steel or cast steel. The flanges of wrought iron or mild steel pipes shall be riveted to the pipes, and there shall be no branch on the stand pipe for any other connection.

Provided also that in the case of a large boiler in which it is desired to fit a tee piece for the purpose of providing a branch connection between the stop valve and the boiler, such a tee piece may be so fitted. The tee piece shall be of strong construction, of wrought iron mild steel, or cast steel and shall not exceed 2½" diameters in height. A stop valve shall be fitted direct to each tee piece branch.

129. Feed check valves.—The feed check valve shall be attached direct to the boiler or to a suitable pad and be of combined non-return and shut-down type. The valve opening in boiler or end of internal feed pipe shall be above the low-water level and below the working level.

(b) (i) For locomotive type, vertical and marine type boilers the cock or valve shall be attached direct to the boiler or to a suitable pad or stand block. For water tube boilers the cock or valve shall be outside the brickwork with a substantial steel pipe between it and the mudbox.

(ii) For Cornish and Lancashire boilers the cock or valve may be attached to a cast steel elbow pipe of substantial section bolted to a suitable stand block riveted to the boiler. But cast iron elbow pipes shall not be permitted.

131. Inspector's pressure gauge attachment.—(a) Every boiler shall be fitted with a valve or cock carrying in a vertical position a receiving screw for the attachment of the Inspector's pressure gauge.

(b) Except when the valve or cock forms part of the pipe carrying the boiler pressure gauge, it shall be attached to the top of the shell near the pressure gauge.

(c) The receiving socket shall be tapped ½ inch British Standard Whitworth screw thread, and shall be fitted with an easily removable cap.

(d) In the case of small boilers which cannot be entered by an Inspector and which are hydraulically tested at each inspection a plug hole tapped ⅜ inch British Standard Whitworth screw thread shall be provided in a handy position for the attachment of the Inspectors' test pump hose nipple.

132. Manholes, mudholes and sightholes.—See Regulations 115 to 123.

133. Fusible plugs.—Plugs, where fitted, shall be over the hottest part of the furnace or firebox. The outside and inside of the plug shall be kept clean and the fusible metal shall be periodically renewed.

134. Design of boiler mountings.—All boiler-mounting valves over 2 inches diameter shall have outside screws, their covers shall be secured by bolts or studs, and all shall be arranged to be shut with a right hand motion of the wheels.

135. Material of valve chests.—Feed valve chests and all stop and safety valve chests when subjected to saturated steam only, for working pressures up to 160 lbs. per square inch, may be made of cast iron, but such valve chests when subjected to super-heated steam shall, whatever the working pressure, be of cast steel or other approved material.

136. Cocks and valves to be easily seen whether open or shut.—The construction of all important cocks and valves connected to the boiler shall be such as to show without difficulty whether they are open or shut.

137. Studs and bolts securing mountings.—(a) When boiler mountings are secured by studs, the studs shall have a full thread holding in the plate for a length of at least one diameter. If the stud holes penetrate the whole thickness of the plate, the stud shall be screwed right through the plate and be riveted or fitted with a nut inside the boiler wherever the construction of the boiler permits.

(b) Where boiler mountings are secured by bolts, the bolts shall be screwed right through the plate with their heads inside the boiler.

138. Bronze boiler mountings.—The chests of blow down cocks and valves, water gauge valves and cocks, and similar fittings, shall be made of good and suitable bronze. All cocks used with boilers working at 100 lbs. pressure or above shall be asbestos packed and of substantial design and make.

139. Chests and parts of mountings and fittings.—Subject to the limitations of Regulations 130, 135 and 138 the abovementioned chests and parts of mountings and fittings may be made of cast steel, cast iron, or bronze.

140. Cast steel chests, etc.—(a) Steel-castings, when machined and ready for fitting in place, shall be subjected to a hydraulic test equal to twice the working pressure which they may have to bear.

(b) Steel-castings which will be subject to the action of feed water shall be made of steel of which the manganese content does not exceed ·4 per cent.

141. Chests, etc. in general.—All chests and fittings shall be smooth, sound and free from flaws, cracks or other injurious defects. After completion they shall withstand satisfactorily a hydraulic test to at least twice the working pressure of the boiler for which they are intended.

The working pressure and thickness of the chests or pipes shall be determined by the following formulæ :—

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{C\,(t-X)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \text{ Eqn. (72)}$$

$$t = \frac{\text{W. P.} \times D}{C} + X \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \text{ „ (73)}$$

D is the internal diameter of the chest in inches,

t is the thickness of the chest in 32nds of an inch,

C is a co-efficient from the following table,

X is a provision for toleration, etc., from the following table.

TABLE OF VALVES OF C AND X.

Cast steel, 28 35 tons tensile strength	400	8
Cast iron, at least 9 tons tensile strength	160	6
Bronze, at least 14 tons tensile strength	175	4

STEAM PIPES.

142. Steam pipes may be of wrought iron, wrought steel, cast steel and in some cases of copper. The requirements for pipes and flanges are given below.

143. . Copper pipes.—(a) No pipe made from the electro-deposition of copper on a mandril shall be used for steam delivery. All copper pipes shall be properly annealed before putting in place. All copper steam pipes subject to a pressure over 75 lbs. per square inch shall be solid drawn.

(b) No steam pipe intended for a working pressure over 180 lbs. per square inch shall be made of copper when the internal diameter exceeds 5 inches. No copper pipe shall be used for super-heated steam.

(c) All copper steam pipes on completion and prior to being fitted in place shall be subjected to hydraulic test to at least twice the working pressure.

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{C\,(t-3)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (74)}$$

D is the internal diameter of the pipe in inches,

t is the thickness of the pipe in 100ths of an inch,

C = 60 for solid drawn pipes,

C = 45 for brazed pipes.

(e) When copper pipes are bent they shall be made thicker to provide for thinning at the bend. In no case shall the radius of curvature at the centre line of the pipe be less than twice the external diameter of the pipe.

144. Wrought iron and steel pipes.—(a) These pipes may be solid drawn, lap-welded or riveted.

(b) The process of welding the seams shall be by hammering or rolling the joint.

(c) On completion of any work which involves heating, whether for welding the joint, welding on flanges, hot bending the pipe, or for any other purpose, the pipe shall be carefully annealed.

(d) Mild steel for lap-welded steam pipes and tubes shall have a tensile breaking strength not exceeding 28 tons per square inch, with a minimum elongation of 25 per cent. on the standard test piece.

(e) All iron or steel steam pipes and tubes prior to being fitted in place shall be subjected to hydraulic test to at least 3 times the working pressure.

(f) The maximum working pressure allowed on pipes shall be determined by the following formulæ :—

(1) Solid drawn cold finished pipes (up to 28 tons tensile breaking strength).

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{120\,(t-10)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (75)}$$

(2) Solid drawn hot finished pipes (up to 28 tons tensile breaking strength).

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{120\,(t-12)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (76)}$$

(3) Welded pipes of iron or steel whether with or without covering strap.

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{90\,(t-12)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (77)}$$

(4) Pipes with riveted joints. (J being the strength of joint per cent. of the solid plate or strip.)

$$\text{W. P.} = \frac{1{\cdot}2 \times J \times (t-9)}{D} \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (78)}$$

(g) No wrought iron or steel steam pipe shall be less in thickness than—

$$t = 5 \times \sqrt{D} + 2 \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \ldots \quad \text{Eqn. (79)}$$

D is the internal diameter of the pipe in inches,

t is the thickness of the pipe in 100ths of an inch.

145. Cast steel pipes—Pipes, bends, tee pieces, etc., of cast steel shall comply with the requirements of Regulations 140 and 141. The working pressure and thickness shall be determined by the formulæ under Regulation 141.

146. Flanges of copper pipes.—Flanges of copper pipes may be made of the usual brass or bronze or of wrought iron or of wrought or cast steel.

147. Flanges of iron and steel pipes.—Flanges of iron and steel pipes may be made of cast steel, wrought iron or wrought steel made without a weld. The pipes may be expanded by rollers into flanges having a series of recesses formed within them or they may be screwed into the flanges with a disappearing thread. Flanges may be riveted, when practicable, to pipes of any size.

148. Welded and brazed flanges.—Flanges made of iron or steel may be welded by any suitable process to pipes made of wrought iron, ingot iron or tube steel, and if the flanges are made of iron or tube steel they may be welded to mild steel pipes. When flanges are attached to copper pipes by brazing or to iron or steel pipes by welding they shall also be secured in such additional way (e.g., by riveting the ends or forming a conical end so as to fit into a conical bore in the flange) that the resistance to withdrawal from the flange does not depend wholly on the brazing or welding.

PART II.

INSPECTION.

CHAPTER I.

Regulations for the Registration and Inspection of Boilers.

149. The procedure to be followed in connection with applications for the registration of a boiler and with examinations of boilers under the Act shall be regulated in accordance with the provisions of this Chapter.

150. Preparation for Inspection.—(a) At every examination of a boiler for the grant or renewal of a certificate, the boiler shall be empty and thoroughly clean in all its parts. All doors of manholes, handholes and sightholes and cleaning plugs and all caps in the headers and mud drums of water-tube boilers, all firebars, bearers, front plates, bridge plates, fire-bridges, brick arches, oil fuel burners and mechanical stoker fittings shall be removed. All valves and cocks comprising the boiler mountings shall be opened up and taken apart and the valves or cocks ground, when necessary, before the Inspector's visit.

(b) Provision shall, if required by the Inspector, be made for the removal of lagging or brick-work or other concealing part and for the drilling of plates, and for verifying the pressure gauge and safety valve dimensions and weights.

(c) All smoke tubes, exterior of water tubes, smoke boxes, and external flues shall be swept clean.

(d) Provision shall be made for the effective disconnection of all steam and hot water communication with any other boiler under steam as prescribed in Part III of these Regulations. This shall be effected either by the removal of a length of pipe from the steam and feed piping or by the insertion of substantial blank flanges. Where blank flanges are employed, they shall be inserted between the flange of the chest and the pipe attached to it. No blank flange shall be inserted between a safety valve chest and the boiler.

151. Hydraulic tests.—Every new boiler shall be hydraulically tested in the presence of an Inspector.

152. Preparation for hydraulic test.—The chests of all mountings subject to steam pressure shall be in place and shut tight or blank flanged. The safety valves shall either be jammed down or removed and the chest-opening blank flanged. The attachment for the Inspector's pressure gauge and the nipple for connecting the Inspector's test pump hose shall be in order. All doors shall be properly jointed and tightened up. The boiler shall be completely filled with water, care being taken to allow all air to escape and, if possible, a preliminary test not exceeding the working pressure of the boiler shall be taken before the Inspector's visit, to test the tightness of the joints. When a boiler is hydraulically tested for the first time, it shall be entirely cleared of lagging or brickwork; at subsequent tests the lagging or brickwork, or portions thereof, shall be removed if required by the Inspector.

153. Procedure of hydraulic tests.—(a) Every new boiler shall be hydraulically tested in the presence of an Inspector to not less than twice the approved working pressure, when such working pressure does not exceed 100 lbs. per square inch; when the approved working pressure is above 100 lbs. per square inch, the hydraulic test pressure shall be 1¼ times the working pressure plus 50 lbs. per square inch.

(b) The boiler shall satisfactorily withstand such pressure without appreciable leakage or undue deflection or distortion of its parts for at least ten consecutive minutes. If the test is not satisfactory the working pressure allowable by calculation shall be suitably reduced, unless the owner desires to make such alterations as will enable the boiler to withstand satisfactorily the hydraulic test; in this case the boiler shall again be examined after the alterations have been made, the pressure recalculated, if necessary, and the boiler tested to the satisfaction of the Inspector.

(c) At the first hydraulic test of a boiler prior to the issue of an original certificate deflection measurements shall be made before, during and after test of each furnace length, fire-box and flat end or other plates.

(d) After the application of the hydraulic test the Inspector shall carefully examine the boiler inside and outside and satisfy himself that it has satisfactorily withstood the test.

(e) In any case in which the safe working pressure to be allowed for a boiler cannot, owing to peculiar construction of any of its parts, be determined by calculation in the ordinary way, the Inspector shall, under the direction of the Chief Inspector, subject the boiler to hydraulic test for the purpose of determining the fitness of such parts. The amount of the test pressure to be applied in such a case shall not exceed the test pressure prescribed for the least working pressure found by calculation for other parts of the boiler or the intended working pressure, whichever is less. Should any part of the boiler show undue deflection or indication of permanent set during the progress of the test, the pressure shall be released immediately such indications are observed. The working pressure for the part shall be 40 per cent. of the test pressure applied when the point of permanent set was reached. This procedure shall apply to any boiler at any test.

(f) Hydraulic tests of boilers at subsequent examinations shall, except when the Inspector expressly requires otherwise, be made after the inspection. The test pressure to be applied to old boilers shall be from one and a quarter to one and a half times the working pressure of the boiler.

(g) When the internal construction or size of a boiler does not permit of the Inspector getting inside it or of examining closely all its parts, he shall see it tested by hydraulic pressure to one and a half times the working pressure at each inspection for the grant or renewal of a certificate.

(h) Water tube, locomotive type and all tubular boilers shall be hydraulically tested at each inspection for the grant or renewal of a certificate, unless such test is waived under the orders of the Chief Inspector.

(i) The Inspector may, if he considers it necessary, apply a hydraulic test to any boiler at any inspection.

(j) Except in the case of small, portable and vehicular boilers which do not require re-erection or building in brickwork, the hydraulic test of all boilers shall be conducted only after the erection of the boiler in situ, and all boilers shall after re-erection in a position different from that in which they were last examined be hydraulically tested. A hydraulic test shall also be taken before granting an increased pressure certificate and after repairing a boiler, unless the Chief Inspector authorizes the Inspector to waive such test.

(k) When carrying out hydraulic test, Inspectors shall use pressure gauges supplied by the Chief Inspector.

154. Steam tests.—(a) Every newly registered boiler and every other boiler of which the working pressure has been altered shall, before the issue of an original or renewal certificate for such boiler, be tested under steam to the satisfaction of the Inspector.

(b) At the time of the test the safety valves shall be left free and capable of being adjusted to the approved working pressure.

(c) After adjustment of the valves to the correct blowing pressure the boiler shall be tried under full steam and firing for at least ten minutes with the feed water shut off and the stop valve closed, during which time the Inspector shall note the accumulation of pressure and other details of the test as well as the loading and adjustment of the safety valves.

(d) On completion of the safety valve test the Inspector shall satisfy himself that the water gauges are in working order and that the feed apparatus is capable of supplying the boiler with sufficient water. Where the Local Government does not require a person-in-charge of a boiler to hold a certificate of competency, the Inspector may when he thinks fit satisfy himself by questioning or by practical test whether the person-in-charge of the boiler understands the use and purpose of the water gauges, the pressure gauge, the safety valves, the feed water-supply and blow-down.

(e) When witnessing safety valve tests, Inspectors shall use the standard pressure gauges supplied by the Chief Inspector unless the boiler pressure gauge has, since the time of inspection, been tested and found correct with an authorized testing machine.

(f) No steam gauge shall be used without a syphon filled with water between it and the boiler.

(g) When the accumulation of pressure at a steam test exceeds ten per cent. of the maximum working pressure, the area of the safety valves shall be considered insufficient, and a certificate shall be refused until the safety valve area is increased.

(h) An Inspector may, when visiting a factory for any purpose, verify the correctness of the safety valves and pressure gauge of any boiler under steam by comparison with his standard pressure gauge.

155. Procedure for registration.—(a) On receipt of an application for registration under section 7 (1) of the Act, the Inspector shall, when the boiler has been properly prepared for examination, proceed to measure in complete detail all its parts, ascertain the working pressure allowed by the Regulations by making a series of calculations of the strength of the various parts, such calculations being based on his measurement if he is satisfied with the correctness of the maker's certificate on the dimensions and other particulars relating to the material and construction as stated therein (vide section 14(1)(c) of the Act and Regulation 4). In making his calculations he shall, after examination of the material, take due account of the workmanship and details of the construction of each part. In his examination the Inspector may, if he deems necessary, bore the plates or other parts to ascertain their fitness and in making his calculations he shall be guided by the requirements of Part I of these Regulations.

(b) If no formula or co-efficient applicable to any part is contained in Part I. Chapter III, of the Regulations, the Chief Inspector shall in his discretion determine the fitness of such part.

(c) The strength of the weakest part so calculated or determined, subject to any discretionary power exercised by the Chief Inspector, shall determine the permissible working pressure of the boiler. After inspecting the boiler and ascertaining by the prescribed calculations the maximum pressure at which the boiler may be worked, the Inspector shall hydraulically test and steam-test it in accordance with the requirements of Regulations 153 and 154 and may issue a provisional order under section 9 of the Act in Form V.

(d) The Inspector shall enter the above particulars and dimensions of the boiler and calculations of strength of the various parts, together with details of the hydraulic and of the steam tests, in a "Memorandum of Inspection" Book (vide Regulation 160) which, together with all the maker's papers for the boiler, shall be submitted to the Chief Inspector for approval with the Inspector's report under sub-section (3) of section 7 of the Act in Form VI.

156. Engraving of registry number.—(a) The registry number of every boiler shall within a period of one month after the registration thereof ; be cut in the front plate thereof in such position as shall be pointed out by the Inspector. The device for each Province shall be distinguished by the following letters :—

Assam	A.
Baluchistan	B.N.
Bihar and Orissa	B.O.
Bengal	B.L.
Bombay	B.Y.
Burma	B.A.
Central Provinces	C.P.
Coorg	C.
Delhi	D.
Madras	M.
North-West Frontier Province	N.W.
Punjab	P.B.
United Provinces	U.P.

The distinguishing letters shall be engraved above a number and separated therefrom by a horizontal line two and half inches in length. The letters and figures shall be one inch in height and of suitable breadth, provided that in the case of small boilers the letters and figures of the device may, in the discretion of the Chief Inspector, be reduced to $\frac{5}{8}$" in height. The whole shall be enclosed in a rectangle, the upper and lower sides of which shall be three inches apart and one quarter inch clear of the top of the letters and the bottom of the figures respectively as indicated below :—

B. O.
1 2 3 4

The side lines shall be equal distance clear from the figures. The engraving shall not be less than $\frac{1}{16}$th inch in depth.

(b) The engraving shall be complete and ready for verification within thirty days of the first inspection of the boiler.

(c) Boilers having registry devices differing from those prescribed herein shall, on these regulations coming into force, have such devices obliterated, altered or cut anew in conformity with those prescribed above. The original numbers of such boilers shall be retained in the new device. A number once allotted to a boiler shall not be used again for another boiler.

157. Measurement of heating surface.—(a) For the purpose of regulating the area of the safety valves and the amount of registration and inspection fees the "heating surface" of a boiler shall be the total surface of all plates and tubes exposed to heat on one side and in contact with water on the other, measured on the water side or the fire side, whichever is larger.

(b) For Lancashire and Cornish boilers the total heating surface shall include the wetted surface of the furnaces between the end plates, the fire surface cross tubes where fitted, and the part of the external shell below the side flue covers. In estimating the areas furnaces shall be considered as plain cylinders; the area of their wetted surface shall be taken as their mean external circumference × the length of the boiler between end plates. For the shell the width of that part of the circumference below the flue covers shall be taken as = 2D, and this width × the length between end plates shall be taken as the area of shell heating surface. The part of the surface of the back end plate exposed to heat shall be omitted from the calculation.

Example.—The formula for the total heating surface of a Lancashire boiler having plain furnaces without cross tubes is as follows :—

H.S. in square feet = 2L (3·14d + D). L is the length of the boiler between end plates in feet, d is the mean external diameter of the furnaces in feet and D is the internal diameter of the largest belt of shell in feet.

(c) For steam and water drums of water tube boilers the heating surface of the drum shall be taken as half the external mean circumference multiplied by the clear length of drum between the outer brick walls or centres of cross boxes, as the case may be. The heating surface of the tubes shall be taken as the external surface of the inclined tubes between tube plates or headers. The heating surface of the headers shall be omitted from the calculation.

(d) For marine boilers of the fire-tube type the heating surface shall include the wetted surface of the furnaces between the tube plates (considered in the same way as for Lancashire boilers), the wetted surface of the combustion chambers (less the area of the tube holes) and the wetted surface of the tubes between tube plates. The parts of the front tube plate exposed to heat shall be omitted from the calculation.

(e) For locomotive type boilers the heating surface shall include the wetted surface of the fire-box above the foundation ring (less the area of the tubes and the fire-hole and ring) and the wetted surface of the tubes between tube plates. The smoke box tube plate shall be omitted from the calculation.

(f) For vertical boilers of ordinary type the heating surface shall include the wetted surface of the fire-box above the foundation ring (less the area of fire-hole and ring and tube holes, if any) and the surface of any cross or other tubes and uptake below the lowest water level shown in the gauge glass.

(g) For any other heating surface not provided for in the foregoing instructions the same general procedure shall be observed.

(h) No deduction shall be made for stays, etc., in calculating the heating surface.

158. Boiler rating.—The boiler rating shall be the number of square feet (to the nearest whole figure) in the heating surface of the boiler as determined under Regulation 157.

159. Registration fee.—The fee required to accompany an application under sub-section (1) of section 7 of the Act shall be :—

	Rs.
For boiler rating not exceeding 100	40
For boiler rating exceeding 100 but not exceeding 300 ...	50
For boiler rating exceeding 300 but not exceeding 500 ...	60
For boiler rating exceeding 500 but not exceeding 700 ...	70
For boiler rating exceeding 700 but not exceeding 900 ...	80
For boiler rating exceeding 900 but not exceeding 1,100 ...	90
For boiler rating exceeding 1,100	100

Provided that the Chief Inspector may direct that no fee shall be payable in respect of a fresh application made in pursuance of sub-section (2) of section 14 of the Act.

160. Memorandum of Inspection Book.—A memorandum of inspection book shall be prepared for each boiler in Form I. In this book the Inspector shall enter in ink all particulars and dimensions of the boiler with the calculations for the various parts in detail, particulars of hydraulic test and steam test and his inspection notes. At subsequent inspections Inspectors shall enter the dates of the inspections, hydraulic tests and steam tests, when such are made, with their notes thereon.

161. Registration Book.—(a) A registration book containing all the particulars required for registration shall be maintained in the office of the Chief Inspector in Form I and any orders passed by him regarding the boiler shall be entered in the registration book under his initials.

(b) On a boiler passing from one part of India to another, the registration book shall, on the request of the Chief Inspector of the Province to which the boiler has been transferred be forwarded to that officer who shall take over its custody and maintain it as hereinbefore prescribed.

162. Grant of certificate.—A certificate for the use of a boiler shall be granted in Form VI. In the certificate shall be entered the maximum pressure at which the boiler shall be worked, the load to be placed on the safety valves or the thickness of washers on ferrules required as a safeguard against overloading, the date and pressure of the last hydraulic test of the boiler and, when applicable, of the main steam pipes attached to it.

163. Procedure at subsequent inspections.—(a) At subsequent inspections of a boiler, the Inspector shall gauge and record the circularity of furnaces of boilers having cylindrical furnaces. In Adamson type furnaces he shall take a vertical and horizontal gauging of at least the three first furnace rings and record the result in the Memorandum of Inspection Book. He shall sound gusset stay rivets to detect slack or broken rivets and shall examine gusset angles for fracture. He shall examine the water-side of the end plates around the shell lines, furnace flanges, and at the toes of gusset stays, and the bends of furnace flanges, and shall test screw stays and smoke tubes. He shall test the fit of all internally fitted manhole and other doors. He shall examine all mountings internally and externally. When any part is wasted and he is doubtful of its fitness for the pressure, he shall cause one or more small holes to be bored and from them ascertain the average thickness of the parts from which he can satisfy himself by calculation in accordance with the formula applicable to the part. Such gaugings and calculations he shall enter in the Memorandum of Inspection Book.

(b) In making calculations for a wasted part of a boiler shell, e.g, along the line of seating blocks of a Lancashire boiler, the Inspector shall use the ordinary shell pressure formula without J, the percentage strength of joint.

164. Repairs to boilers.—(a) Repairs to boiler shells shall be effected either by patching or by removing a strip of worn or damaged plate and inserting the new strip with covering straps over the longitudinal butt ends, the strength of the riveted joints to be not less than that of the longitudinal joints of the shell.

(b) Patches for fire-exposed plates shall be fitted metal to metal without joint of any description. The affected part shall be cut out, leaving the corners of the hole well-rounded. Patches shall be secured, wherever possible, by properly spaced rivets with a width of plate at least equal to the diameter of rivet between the edge of the rivet hole and the edge of the plate. Where riveting is impracticable, the plate shall be secured by well fitting countersunk headed screw pins.

(c) The thickness of a patch plate shall not be less than the original thickness of the plate which it is used to patch.

(d) Stays cut out with an affected part of a plate shall be renewed and shall be fitted through the patch.

(e) Bulged or distorted furnaces of circular section may, if the bulge or distortion is not too great, be heated and pressed back to shape.

(f) Circular furnaces of horizontal boilers that have become distorted under ordinary working conditions to a greater extent than the thickness of the furnace plate, i.e., when the difference between two cross gaugings exceeds the thickness of the plate, may be strengthened by fitting anti-collapse rings round the furnace at the middle of the length of the furnace.

(g) Anti-collapse rings shall be of substantial section either of single or double angles bolted back to back with screw stays not less than $\frac{7}{8}$th inch in diameter and about 7 inches in pith passed through flat of angle and screwed into the furnace, the ends being either rounded or riveted over on the fire side and fitted with nuts at the other. The stay bolts shall be fitted with ferrules not less than 1 inch in depth between furnace and angle ring.

(h) Welding shall not be accepted for the repair of any part of a boiler for which welding is forbidden for a new boiler under these Regulations. Boiler shells shall not be repaired by welding beyond the filling up of a small isolated corroded or pitted part or the making up of wasted edges of openings.

NOTE.—Cracks or grooving in dished or flat end plates of cylindrical shells or in the bends of furnace flanges in a circumferential direction may be filled up by welding to render them steam-tight, but such welding shall be reinforced by patch or other suitable means.

(i) Wasted parts of circular furnaces and fire-boxes and fire exposed flat plates as in rectangular fire-boxes and combustion chambers may be cut out and be replaced by new pieces welded in or they may be built up by welding. Longitudinal cracks in circular furnaces and fire-boxes and cracks in rectangular fire-boxes and combustion chambers may be welded.

(j) Where a part of a stayed flat plate is renewed, the stays affected shall also be renewed and be screwed through the new part as in the original. No stay shall be welded.

(k) For the purposes of these regulations renewed parts shall be deemed to be parts of a new boiler intended for use at the pressure at which the boiler under renewal is used.

165. Submission of plans of boilers.—(a) In the case of land boilers made in India or outside India for use in British India the Chief Inspector may, on receipt of a Treasury acknowledgment of the prescribed fee, receive for examination in advance the plans and particulars of materials, design and construction of boilers so as to avoid questions arising at the examination of the finished boilers.

(b) The fee required under sub-regulation (a) shall be half the fee which would be required to accompany an application for the registration of the boiler (vide Regulation 159).

(c) The Chief Inspector shall, after examination of the plans and particulars, intimate to the proposers whether he is satisfied with the design and fitness of the parts for the intended pressure and, if not, what modification is necessary therein. When plans and particulars of boilers have been approved, the Inspector in making his examination shall see that the designs as approved have been carefully followed out and that the material corresponds with the approved particulars.

(d) The above procedure shall be followed in the case of extensive repairs or alterations to boilers, but no fee shall be leviable for the examination of such plans and particulars.

CHAPTER II.

Steam pipes.

166. Inspection of steam pipes.—(a) Steam pipes shall be inspected and hydraulically tested before erection in place, the test pressure to be that prescribed in the Standard Conditions for steam pipes. A certificate from an Inspecting Authority or a recognized maker stating that this has been done may be accepted. If the Inspector is satisfied with the test, the pipes may be erected in position ; at the steam test of the boiler he shall examine them under steam pressure. No separate certificate for the steam pipes shall be issued, nor shall a separate fee be charged for their inspection.

(b) At subsequent inspections of the boiler or at any other time, the Inspector may make an external inspection of the steam pipes and for this purpose may require a part of the lagging at the flanges to be removed, and the pipe made bare. If as a result of this inspection the Inspector is of opinion that the pipes or any portion of them are in an unsatisfactory condition, he shall report the matter to the Chief Inspector, who may require the whole of the lagging to be removed and may require any pipe or pipes to be hydraulically tested. The test pressure at such hydraulic test shall be not less than twice the working pressure of the boiler.

(c) The date and hydraulic pressure to which steam pipes were subjected shall be entered in the certificate for the boiler and such entries shall be continued from time to time in the renewal certificates for the boiler.

(d) Steam pipes shall be fitted with suitable means of drainage. Pockets or low-lying bends, in which condensed steam is likely to collect, shall be prohibited. Efficient means for draining steam pipes shall be provided in every case. All drain cocks or valves shall be accessible and be so placed as to render it practicable to drain the water from any part of the steam pipes or chests connected with them. Drain pipes shall be fitted to drain cocks or valves when the latter are in such a position that the water or steam discharge from them is likely to cause personal injury.

(e) Suitable provision shall be made for expansion either by means of large bends or, in the case of long lengths of straight pipes, by expansion joints. The expansion joints of socket type shall be so fitted that the end of the pipe cannot be forced out by the action of the steam pressure or movement of the pipe.

167. Material.—Notwithstanding aything contained in Regulations 142 to 148, the Chief Inspector may permit the use of cast iron steam pipes in exceptional circumstance as a temporary measure only for such period and subject to such conditions as he may direct.

168. Submission of plans of steam pipes.—Plans of steam pipes shall be submitted to the Chief Inspector before construction or at the time of registration of the boiler for his decision whether the pipes and their arrangements will comply with the Regulations.

PART III.

SAFETY OF PERSONS INSIDE BOILERS.

169. Safety of persons working inside boilers.—(a) No person shall be compelled or allowed by the owner or person in charge to go inside a steam boiler for any purpose whatsoever unless the boiler is effectively disconnected in the manner hereinafter prescribed from any steam or hot water communication with any other boiler.

(b) Effective disconnection shall be made either by the removal of the boiler stop valve or of a length of piping from all steam and hot water connections with any other boiler, vessel or pipe containing steam or hot water or by the insertion of substantial blank flanges between the boiler stop valves and piping. The shutting of a stop valve, stop cock or automatic isolating valve alone shall not be deemed to constitute compliance with this regulation.

(c) The owner of a boiler to which this regulation is applicable shall obtain the approval of the Chief Inspector in writing to the method of disconnection which he proposes to use and shall be responsible for ensuring that the method so approved is followed in practice.

170. Penalty.—Whoever contravenes the provisions of sub-regulation (a) of Regulation 169 shall be punishable with fine which may extend to one hundred rupees.

The Committee of Management are able to report that during the year under review the standard of the collection and of the gardens has been maintained. The collection has been added to from time to time by gifts, exchanges and purchases as funds permitted, and the health of the animals and birds on the whole has beengood throughout the year, with the exception however of casualties among the markhors and Chillingham cattle due to the unusually heavy rains in the month of September last. It is also a matter for regret that the sea-lion, a most attractive exhibit, has not survived notwithstanding that the conditions under which he lived could hardly be improved upon in confinement and are such that the Committee will not be discouraged from attempting to replace him, if opportunity arises. Figures showing the numbers of the mammals, birds and reptiles will be found in the Superintendent's report.

The approach to the southern extension has been further improved by the demolition of two small houses of old design and faulty construction which not only were in a very bad state of repair, but obstructed the approach to the extension. In their place on the adjacent eastern boundary a new house has been constructed intended to accommodate Himalayan sheep and goats. It is confidently hoped that with the accommodation thus provided further casualties during the monsoon among the markhors due to climatic conditions may be avoided or at least greatly minimised.

In lieu of one of the demolished houses a new house for guinea pigs and rabbits has been built, also on the eastern boundary in the same locality. For this the public and the Committee are indebted to the generosity of Mr. Ajit Nath Das, a member of the Committee of Management, at whose request the house has been named "Boloram House" in memory of his late father Babu Boloram Das. Simultaneously with these improvements, an aviary on the western boundary which obscured the view has been moved to the opposite side of the grounds, and this it is intended to use as a segregation cage for the reception of new arrivals during such time as they have to be in quarantine before distribution among the appropriate cages.

With the improvements to which reference has been made, the south extension and its approaches may be considered complete. It is now several years since His Excellency Lord Carmichael secured this piece of land for the garden. Since then it has undergone various changes, but no one who can recollect the unattractive congested enclosures towards the southern extremity of the garden will fail to appreciate the results achieved. The wide open spaces giving free scope for the activities of animals and birds of many kinds, all dwelling together in harmony, furnish an exhibit hardly to be equalled in any Zoological Garden.

The Committee are much indebted to those members of the public who send their old and broken down horses to be destroyed at the Zoological Gardens. Not only does this supply of horse flesh reduce the cost of food to be supplied, which during the year is very considerable, but those who adopt these means of having their horses destroyed have the satisfaction of knowing that it is done promptly and under conditions which cause no suffering to the animal nor to any others, as the spot is wholly secluded. The site has recently been renovated and the drainage improved so that the conditions may be as perfect as possible.

Annual repairs to the buildings of the garden were carried out departmentally as usual.

The following houses were repaired and repainted :—

Entrance Lodge.
Bonebursa Enclosure.
Gubbay House.
Mullick House.
Mandrill House.
Schwendler House.
Rhinoceros Enclosure.
Durbhanga House.
Servants' Quarters.

Extensive repairs were done to the following houses and iron and woodwork repaired and renewed :—

Lalgola House.
Barking deer enclosure.
Crane Enclosure.
Sarnomoyi House.
Bird of Prey House.
Abdul Gany House.
Cooch-Behar House.
Store Godown.

The following houses were lime-washed and colourwashed :—

Dumraon House.
Murshidabad House.
Reptile House.
Small Carnivora House.
New Bear House.
Hippo Enclosure.
Tapir Enclosure.
Ezra House.

The whole of the boundary wall of the garden was thoroughly scraped, sand-plastered and colour washed and the entire iron-fencing of the paddocks was coal-tarred.

In addition to the above, the usual petty repairs of smaller houses, sheds and enclosures and roads and paths were attended to. Ground railings were repaired and painted and the garden seats were painted and the main drive remetalled as necessary.

There was a considerable falling off in the number of visitors on Sundays during the year which must be attributed to inclement weather prevailing on Sunday afternoons. The result is that, though the total number of visitors for the year shows an increase of 13,948 over the previous year, there was a decrease of Rs. 2,460-7-0 in the gate receipts as will be seen from the following table :—

	Sunday Receipts.
	At 4 annas.			At 1 rupee.
	Rs.	A.	P.	Rs.	A.	P.
1921-22	1,556	4	0	12,142	0	0
1922-23	1,298	4	0	9,249	0	0

The following is a comparative statement of visitors and receipts for the last three years :—

	Visitors.	Receipts.
		Rs.	A.	P.
1920-21	842,616 ...	67,845	14	0
1921-22	840,055 ...	65,854	6	0
1922-23	854,003 ...	63,393	15	0

A large number of children under 4 years of age and school children attended by their teachers were admitted free. On the occasion of the Fancy Fair about 9,700 people visited the garden. In addition 34,503 persons visited the garden on the free days. Detailed statement of the numbers of visitors and receipts appear in Appendix B.

The financial condition of the garden has been on the whole satisfactory. Income and expenditure are summarised in Appendix A.

The gardens have been maintained in excellent condition throughout the year. The lawns, flower beds and shrubberies are in good order and the show of flowers has been specially attractive to visitors. New paths have been cut and laid in the new extension of the garden and the general appearance improved. Unfortunately, it is not possible to report, as in former years, that prizes were secured at the show of the Agri-Horticultural Society as owing to inclement weather the show was not held.

The thanks of the Committee are due to those ladies and gentlemen who have added to the zoological collection by donations, a list of which is given in Appendix C. Thanks are also due to those who kindly offered to present animals to the garden, but whose offers could not be accepted either because the particular species of animals was already sufficiently well represented, or owing to want of accommodation.

The Committee desire to express their thanks to the Corporation of Calcutta for their continued generosity in remitting the consolidated rates in respect of the gardens and to the railway and steamer companies for the conveyance, free of charge, of animals belonging to the garden.

Thanks are also due to the Officer Commanding and Officers of the 90th Punjabi Regiment for allowing their band to play at the garden on Tuesday afternoons free of charge.

A. M. McGRIGOR,
Honorary Secretary.

P. L. BUCKLAND,
President.

SUPERINTENDENT'S REPORT.

I have the honour to submit the following report on the existing condition and the progress of the menagerie of the garden.

The following comparative table shows how the various collections of animals in the garden stood during the last four years :—

Year.	Mammals.	Birds.	Reptiles.
1919-20 ...	294	1,919	183
1920-21 ...	328	2,033	171
1921-22 ...	317	2,041	190
1922-23 ...	281	851	142

The figures 851 are approximate only, and in fact the total number of birds actually in the gardens has not greatly varied. Many birds of common varieties such as muniahs, wax bills, black-headed nuns, finches, etc., have been excluded. Birds such as cranes, rails, jacanas, coots, etc., which formerly were included, have been excluded as they have been set at large in the gardens. The extent of the large tank and the number of birds at large make it impossible to take stock with any degree of accuracy.

Among the important gifts deserving special mention were a fine male Bengal Tiger presented by H. R. H. the Prince of Wales, and a male Sikhim Stag presented by H. H. Maharaja Chandra Shamsher Jung Bahadur, Prime Minister of Nepal. Many additions to the collection have been made during the year, the most important of which are the following :—

1 Persian Brown bear	Purchased.
3 Hoolock Gibbons
1 Hoolock Gibbon	Presented by J. C. Cumming, Esq.
1 Vervet monkey	Presented by H. Kenneth, Esq.
2 Gold-leaf monkeys	Purchased.
1 Hairy-rumped agouti
1 Houcheur monkey
1 Pallas's sea-eagle	Presented by W. K. Dods, Esq.
3 Pied Imperial pigeons	Purchased.
1 Tibetan lynx
3 Anoas
2 Orang-outangs
1 Malayan bear	Presented by Mr. Oadens.
1 Gaur calf	Purchased.
2 White peafowl	By exchange.

The following animals were received in exchange from the Taronga Zoological Park Trust, Sydney :—

2 Great Kangaroos | 2 Red Birds of Paradise. | 2 Emus.

The following animals were born in the gardens during the year :—

1 Markhor.
2 Green monkeys.
1 Bonnet monkey.
4 Bengal porcupines.
2 Gayals.

During the past year the gardens had the misfortune to lose the fine herd of Chillingham wild cattle except one heifer and some markhors Foot and mouth disease occurred amongst the ruminants, but with careful treatment and proper precautions the disease was stamped out. The Chillingham cattle and the markhors, however, suffered the most, and though they recovered, they could not regain their former health, and the unusually heavy rains that followed brought on pneumonia and other complications to which they succumbed. As Chillingham cattle are rare, even in England, it will be almost impossible to replace them.

The death of the sea-lion is also a severe loss to the gardens, though every endeavour was made to keep the animal in natural surroundings, as far as possible, and to acclimatise it.

The work in the Pathological Department was carried on as usual with the help of the Principal, Bengal Veterinary College. As arranged

From—A. MARR, ESQ., C.I.E., I.C.S., Secretary to the Government of Bengal Finance Department,

I AM directed to submit, for the information of the Government of India, the following report on the administration of the Stamp Department in Bengal during the three years ending 31st March 1923.

Financial results.

3. The receipts, which in 1919-20, the last year of the preceding triennium, were Rs. 3,13,15,702, fell to Rs. 2,94,78,242 in 1920-21 and to Rs. 2,83,25,202 in 1921-22. During the last year of the period under review the receipts, as reported by the Accountant-General, Bengal, plus Rs. 9,29,760 paid to the Calcutta Improvement Trust, being the collection of the increased stamp duty leviable under section 82 of the Calcutta Improvement Trust Act, 1911, and also Rs. 4,99,000, the provincial share of the sale-proceeds of unified stamps credited to non-postal revenues, amounted to Rs. 3,14,86,217, an increase of Rs. 31,61,015 or 11·2 per cent., as compared with 1921-22, and of Rs. 20,07,975 or 6·8 per cent. over those of 1920-21. The increase occurred both under judicial and non-judicial stamps.

A.—Judicial Stamps.

5. The sale-proceeds of court-fee stamps (excluding stamps for copies) rose steadily during the past three years. The receipts during 1922-23 were Rs. 1,93,50,068 against Rs. 1,75,44,514 in 1921-22 and Rs. 1,72,84,128 in 1920-21. Compared with 1921-22 there was an increase in 1922-23 of Rs. 18,05,554, which was shared by all the divisions. The increase was generally due to the increase in the rates of duty on account of the introduction of the Court-fees (Amendment) Act, 1922, which came into force from the 1st April 1922. The largest increase, Rs. 5,51,095, was contributed by the Presidency Division. The receipts from the sale of stamps for copies fell from Rs. 7,07,199 in 1920-21 to Rs. 6,97,517 in 1921-22 and to Rs. 6,94,105 in 1922-23. The receipts from the sale of plain paper used with court-fee labels also fell from Rs. 3,74,368 in 1920-21 to Rs. 3,52,471 in 1921-22 and to Rs. 3,21,986 in 1922-23.

B.—Non-judicial Stamps.

6. The revenue derived from the sale of non-judicial stamps during 1922-23 showed an increase of Rs. 13,91,388 or 14·3 per cent. as compared with 1921-22, and of Rs. 6,644 or ·06 per cent. over that of the first year of the triennium. The increase was shared by all classes of stamps except impressed stamps as defined in section 2 (13) (a) of the Stamp Act.

7. Impressed stamps.—The receipts from the sale of impressed stamps (the most important item among non-judicial stamps), which amounted to Rs. 50,62,431 in 1920-21, fell to Rs. 46,08,591 in 1921-22, but rose to Rs. 60,18,661 in the last year of the triennium, was shared by all the districts except Calcutta, and is ascribed to the enhanced rate of duty required by the Bengal Stamp (Amendment) Act, 1922. The fall in Calcutta is entirely due to trade depression, and the Collector says that this falling off in the revenue has not been yet arrested by the increased rates of duty under the Amendment Act.

8. Hundis or inland bills-of-exchange.—The revenue derived from the sale of hundi or bill-of-exchange stamps fell from Rs. 3,10,465 in 1920-21 to Rs. 2,23,295 in 1921-22, but in 1922-23 rose to Rs. 2,30,313, out of which Calcutta contributed Rs. 2,16,357 against Rs. 2,11,873 in 1921-22 and Rs. 2,90,993 in 1920-21. The decrease in Calcutta is due to dullness of business among Indian traders.

9 Impressed labels or special adhesive stamps.—The receipts from the sale of these stamps gradually declined from Rs. 32,01,671 in 1920-21 to Rs. 28,28,181 in 1921-22 and to Rs. 28,13,654 in 1922-23. These stamps are used principally in Calcutta and the decrease is due to depressed trade conditions.

10. Foreign bill stamps.—The receipts from these stamps, which are sold mainly in Calcutta, show very great fluctuations during the last three years. The revenue fell from Rs. 4,29,946 in 1920-21 to Rs. 2,09,193 in 1921-22, but rose to Rs. 2,46,399 in 1922-23. The decrease by more than half during 1921-22, as compared with the preceding year, is due to the slump in foreign trade, while the increase during 1922-23 over 1921-22 is due to somewhat greater activity in foreign trade.

11. Share transfer stamps.—Sales of these stamps, which are used for payment of stamp duty on transfers of shares of public limited companies, are practically confined to Calcutta. The receipts in 1921-22 fell to Rs. 4,13,260, or by more than a hundred per cent. of those in the preceding year, but recovered to some extent in 1922-23 when they rose to Rs. 5,89,330. The noticeable decline in the second year of the triennium is due to the absence of a trade boom and consequently of speculation. The increase in the last year of the triennium is due to enhanced stamp duty.

12. Stamps for legal practitioners' licenses.—The receipts from the sale of these stamps fell from Rs. 1,48,849 in 1920-21 to Rs. 1,46,113 in 1921-22, but rose to Rs. 1,50,812 in the last year of the triennium.

13. Notarial stamps.—These stamps were sold only in Calcutta and Chittagong during 1922-33. The sales of the year amounted to Rs. 6,343 in comparison with Rs. 2,910 and Rs. 6,084 in the previous two years. The increase in the last year of the triennium is ascribed to the enhanced stamp duty.

14. Forms for agreements and contracts chargeable with two-anna coloured impressions.—The income from this source rose from Rs. 6,023 in 1920-21 to Rs. 6,361 in 1921-22 and to Rs. 6,795 in 1922 23.

15. Forms for cheques and receipts.—The sale of these forms, which are stamped with one-anna coloured impressions, brought Rs. 2,94,205 during 1922-23, which exceeded the receipts of the previous two years by Rs. 14,763 and Rs 3,440 or by 5·3 and 1 2 per cent., respectively. The increase occurred chiefly in Calcutta.

16. Miscellaneous receipts.—The receipts under this head were mainly composed of realizations under section 8 and under section 35 and sections 32, 37, 40 and 41 of the Indian Stamp Act, 1899. The income from these sources rose from Rs. 2,01,684 in 1920-21 to Rs. 5,11,453 in 1921-22, but fell to Rs. 2,63,675 in the last year of the triennium. This most marked fall occurred in Calcutta and is ascribed to non-realization of duty under section 8 (1) of the Stamp Act, as no local body floated any loan during the year.

17. Arrangements for the sale of stamps.— • • • • • The total number of vendors engaged in the sale of judicial and non-judicial stamps during the year 1922-23 was 5,274 against 5,329 and 5,438 in the previous two years The expenditure on discount allowed to stamp vendors during 1922-23 was Rs. 4,96,514, which exceeded that of the two previous years by Rs. 95,393 and Rs. 47,974, respectively. The increase during the last year of the triennium was due to increased discount paid on account of increased duty as well as to the rise in the sale of both judicial and non-judicial stamps. The average discount per vendor during the triennium under report was Rs. 94 against Rs. 73 in the preceding period. No complaints as to difficulty and inconvenience in procuring stamps and dishonesty or disobedience to rules on the part of the vendors were brought to light in any of the districts during the period under report.

18. Punitive action of the Courts and Revenue officers.— • • • • The total number of cases dealt with by the Civil Courts increased from 1,486 in 1920-21 to 1,609 in 1921-22, but decreased to 1,278 in the last year of the triennium. The duty and penalty realized by the Civil Courts, however, declined from Rs. 10,481 in 1920-21 to Rs. 10,466 in 1921-22, but rose to Rs. 10,926 in 1922-23. There was an increase of 2,871 in the number of cases decided, but a decrease of Rs 14,750 in the duty and penalty realized by Revenue officers in 1922-23 as compared with the figures in the preceding year and an increase of 2,584 and Rs. 50,123, respectively, as compared with the figures of 1920-21.

19. • • • • • • • • • • The number of cases instituted in 1922-23 was 249, in which 108 persons were brought to trial against 156 and 151 in 1921-22 and 243 and 274 in 1920-21. Compared with the year 1921-22 the number of prosecutions shows an increase in the Dacca and Chittagong Divisions against decrease in the Burdwan, Presidency and Rajshahi Divisions. The fines imposed during the last year of the triennium amounted to Rs. 1,526 against Rs. 1,849 in 1921-22 and Rs. 2,435 in 1920-21. The amount paid in rewards in 1922-23 was Rs. 425, showing a decrease, as compared with the previous two years, of Rs. 403 and Rs. 431, respectively. No rewards were paid outside Calcutta.

20. Working of section 19H added to the Court-fees Act, VII of 1870, by Act XI of 1899.— • • • • • The number of cases pending at the beginning of the year 1922-23 was 690 against 919 and 885 in the previous two years, respectively. The number of cases reported to the Collector showed a gradual decrease from 1,738 in 1920-21 to 1,597 in 1921-22 and to 1,527 in 1922-23. The number of cases in which enquiries were instituted during 1922-23 was 2,055, showing a decrease, as compared with the previous two years, of 238 and 380, respectively. The number of enquiries completed during 1922-23 was 1,558 against 1,741 and 1,622 in the previous two years. Of the cases reported during 1922-23, including those pending at the beginning of the year, 70·3 per cent. were completely enquired into, the corresponding percentages in the preceding two years being 69·2 and 61·8, respectively. The proportion borne by the deficit duty required to the amount originally realized was 8·7 in 1922-23 and 10·6 and 6·9 in the preceding two years.

RESOLUTION ON ANTI-KALA-AZAR MEASURES IN BENGAL.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

LOCAL SELF-GOVERNMENT DEPARTMENT.

Public Health.

CALCUTTA, THE 6TH NOVEMBER 1923.

RESOLUTION—No. 2671 P.H.

Introductory.—The public have recently been alarmed by statements in the Press to the effect that the prevalence of Kala-azar in Bengal has been gravely under-estimated, and it has even been suggested that the present outstanding problem for the Public Health Department is Kala-azar rather than malaria As will appear hereafter, Government (Ministry of Local Self-Government) have for some time past recognized the necessity of ascertaining the facts as regards the endemicity of Kala-azar and the desirability of bringing treatment within the reach of persons suffering from this disease, which if unchecked and untreated is accompanied by so fearful a mortality rate. Before dealing with the problem in its public health aspect as it affects Bengal, and before stating the measures which are being taken and which it is hoped to extend, it may be useful to give the lay reader a general idea of the disease, its etiology and its treatment.

Kala-azar: What it is and its causes.—Kala-azar is a specific fever "characterized (in Rai Bahadur Dr. U. N. Brahmachari's words) by a high mortality in untreated cases, persistent irregular fever, lasting from a few months to two or three years, rarely more, and associated with enlargement of the spleen and frequently also of the liver, a gradual downhill course with progressive emaciation and anæmia."

It is endemic and occasionally epidemic in certain tropical and sub-tropical countries: its name possibly signifies "the black sickness" by reason of the dark pigmentation of the skin, which the disease appears ordinarily to produce.

Kala-azar was first recognized in Assam; in 1881 Dr McNaught gave a clinical description based on 120 cases, while in 1882 Clark described an epidemic in that province. Up to 1904 Kala-azar was commonly believed to be a peculiar form of malarial cachexia, confined to certain parts of Assam, but in 1903 Leishman noted a new form of parasite in the spleen of a soldier who died from a long-continued fever he had contracted in India, while almost simultaneously Donovan discovered a similar organism in post-mortem spleens and the spleen pulp obtained from living patients in Madras. In the same year, Bentley and Rogers discovered the Leishman-Donovan body in the spleens of Kala-azar patients in Assam, and since then, the disease has been found to be sporadic in many parts of India, specially in Madras and Bengal. A similar infection, which chiefly attacks infants and young children, has been found to be endemic along the Mediterranean coast.

The ravages of Kala-azar in Assam are well known. In Nowgong, the worst affected district, the disease has accounted for 10 per cent. of the total mortality during the past three years, and the most recent data suggest that about 15 per mille of the population are infected with the disease.

Although the disease is widespread, the incidence varies greatly in different localities, many villages appearing entirely free of infection, and the majority of those that have been attacked, showing one or two cases. But here and there intense foci of infection occur with numerous cases and a very heavy mortality. In 1918, 360 cases of Kala-azar were discovered on a tea estate in the Sibsagar district of Assam among a total population of 1,254. But a subsequent survey of the remaining 156 tea estates with an aggregate population of over 200,000 failed to disclose a single further infection.

Kala-azar has always been known to be infectious. It has been found that a site becomes infected, and local epidemics have been stopped in Assam by the desertion of an infected village. Houses appear to become infected, and where a person contracts the disease it tends to attack the other members of his household.

Although the parasite of Kala-azar is known, the method of transmission is still a mystery, and research extending over 20 years has failed to convict the bed bug as the vector of the parasite.

As regards the symptomatology of the disease, its onset in some cases is marked by signs and symptoms, which resemble those of typhoid or paratyphoid, while by the inexperienced, the fever may be confused with malaria. But the quinine-resistant nature of the fever and the absence of the periodicity typical of malaria render the differential diagnosis comparatively sure.

As the disease advances, the characteristic symptoms become more pronounced, viz., progressive emaciation of the limbs in contradistinction to the increasing enlargement of the abdomen, darkening of the skin, falling of the hair, palpitation, shortness of breath, marked dilatation of the superficial veins of the lower thorax and the abdomen, increased appetite, but poor digestion, bleeding from the nose and the gums, a tendency for canerum oris to occur, and sometimes a persistent very irritating cough.

The clinical picture of Kala-azar is indeed very different to that of malaria, and to those familiar with the two diseases there is no difficulty in distinguishing them except in the very early stages.

Treatment of Kala-Azar.—Until the discovery of the antimony treatment in 1915 medical science was powerless to deal with Kala-azar. "The impotence of medical science, in the face of this scourge," wrote Lt.-Col. McCombie Young, I.M.S., in 1913, "and our inability to do more for its unfortunate young victims than to offer them quinine on the chance that possibly our diagnosis is wrong, and that the complaint is malarial, makes it a trying experience to see much of this disease for any lengthy period. The people want a cure for the disease, and if we cannot offer this, our measures of segregation and prevention meet with little success."

In 1915 Carmia and Di Cristina treated a number of cases of infantile Kala-azar in Italy with intravenous injections of Tartar emetic with singular success. They were followed almost immediately by Rogers, Muir, Brahmachari, Mackie, Knowles and others in India, who had similar success in the treatment of Kala-azar in this country, and the general consensus of opinion now is that (in the words of Drs. Napier and Muir) "the injection of one of the common antimony salts of Tartaric acid into the vein of a patient suffering from Kala-azar in suitable doses over a sufficiently long period will cure the disease with as much certainty as any drug will cure any disease." Formerly it was estimated that the case mortality of Kala-azar was 96 per cent., but under antimony medication it is believed that the recovery rate is now from 90 to 95 per cent. of those who submit to the full course of treatment.

History of Kala-azar investigations in Bengal.—In 1894, two notes were prepared at the request of Government by Dr. Hendley regarding the existence of a disease popularly termed "Pushkara" (the plague) in Jalpaiguri. There is no room for doubt that Dr. Hendley was describing Kala-azar as we know it to-day. In 1898, Lt.-Col. Harold Browne, I.M.S. (retired), investigated the existence of a disease known as Kala-dukh in Purnea, and about the same time Sir Ronald Ross made similar enquries in the Darjeeling Terai. The name of Sir Leonard Rogers is specially linked with Kala-azar, and following Giles (1890) who had, however, ascribed Kala-azar to hookworm infection, he gave a full account of the disease as it existed in Assam in 1896-97, in which he traced the history of the disease and established its communicability.

At that time he identified the disease as a malignant type of malaria but in 1904 he confirmed Bentley's discovery of the Leishman-Donovan body in Assam Kala-azar, while he was the first (1915) to introduce the antimony treatment in India.

In 1904 he found the disease in sporadic form in parts of Dinajpur, while Lt.-Col. Nott, I.M.S., identified it in Berhampur. In 1906-07, Captain Stewart, I.M.S., and Lt. Proctor, I.M.S., who were deputed to Bengal to assist the drainage committee by investigations into the prevalence of malaria, its mortality rate and its relation, if any, with the want of natural drainage, found a focus of intense Kala-azar infection in the Gangni thana (Nadia). Their enquiries were confined to Nadia, Jessore and Murshidabad, and apart from the Gangni thana, they were of opinion that Leishman-Donovan's infection was not so common as to cause any appreciable effect on the death-rate, or to render the spleen-rates unreliable as a guide in estimating the amount of malaria.

They were of opinion that Kala-azar, though occurring here and there in "pockets" of intense infection, was generally only sporadic in its incidence.

"It may be concluded (they state) that while the disease does exist in most parts of the districts (Jessore, Nadia and Murshidabad) it is only present in small amount, and that the spleen-rates are reliable as a test for malaria". They found Kala-azar in 21 out of 43 villages in Nadia, 11 out of 96 villages in Jessore, and 10 out of 34 villages in Murshidabad In the 11 infected villages of Jessore, they found only 16 cases of the disease.

Major Forster, I.M.S., (1908-09) was deputed to make a further investigation of the prevalence of Kala-azar, and he took the view that much of the fever found with enlarged spleen in Murshidabad was Kala-azar and not malaria.

Lt.-Col. Fry's first and second reports on Malaria in 1912 and 1914 touch on the question of Kala-azar. In Patna and Purnea districts, he had seen many cases of chronic Kala-azar, but he saw comparatively little of it in the course of his tour in Bengal. The results of his examination of blood for malaria led him to the view that Major Forster had exaggerated the prevailing Kala-azar to the exclusion of malaria, and he came to the conclusion that the majority of enlarged spleens in Central Bengal were due to malaria, while he was of opinion that about 5 per cent. of the splenomegaly in Bengal might be attributed to Kala-azar.

In 1911-14 Dr. Bentley, who had had special Kala-azar experience in Assam, investigated malaria in Eastern Bengal. His experience supported the view taken by Lt.-Col. Fry, Major Proctor and Major Stewart. He found sporadic cases of Kala-azar in Dacca, Faridpur, Murshidabad, Jessore, Dinajpur, Jalpaiguri, Rajshahi, Malda and elsewhere, and his observations led him to the view that although Kala-azar existed widely in sporadic form, no very large proportion of splenomegaly in these areas could be attributed to this disease. It must not be forgotten that several experienced Civil Surgeons in recent years have been interested in Kala-azar, and primâ facie it may seem improbable that any wide and intense prevalence of the disease could have escaped their notice.

In 1917 Dr. Francis reported the existence of a small focus of infection in the Chittagong district, and in the same year the Civil Surgeon of Bakarganj found ten cases of the disease. At the same time the Civil Surgeons of Dacca, Mymensingh, Noakhali, Tippera and Chittagong Hill Tracts stated that no cases of Kala-azar had been reported recently in these districts. Further enquiry, however, showed that cases of kala-azar were being treated in Mymensingh. In August 1917 Babu Brojendra Kishore Rai Chaudhuri, M.L.C., put a question in Council regarding the prevalence of Kala-azar and returned to the subject again in 1918.

On the advice of the Director of Public Health, Government (Ministry of Local Self-Government) decided to undertake a Kala-azar survey, and Dr. Sur, Assistant Director of Public Health, was placed on special duty for that purpose. A questionnaire was first issued through Civil Surgeons to all dispensary medical officers, while Dr. Sur with a small staff proceeded to make careful local enquiries.

The survey has now extended over half the province; financial considerations have limited its extent and scope in each district, but the survey was merely designed to give a rough estimate of the actual conditions of Bengal in regard to Kala-azar. A thorough village to village and house to house survey, with the object of discovering each infected area, determining the number of cases and providing early treatment, is a task which in the main must be left to local authorities, with the assistance and under the general direction of Government.

There is, however, independent corroboration of Dr. Sur's enquiries, on which the Director of Public Health recently estimated that the number of Kala-azar cases in Bengal could hardly be less than 50,000.

Since 1911 figures showing the number of Kala-azar cases treated throughout the province are given in the Surgeon-General's Annual Reports. In 1911 only 1541 cases were noted, which rose gradually to 4,290 cases in 1919. To Dr. Sur's Kala-azar survey, which rendered the disease more familiar to local practitioners and spread the knowledge of a simple cure, the increase of reported cases in 1920 (7,382 cases), in 1921 (11.231 cases), and in 1922 (18,506 cases) can to some extent be attributed.

Similarly the increase in the number of cases reported from the Burdwan Division (90 in 1911 and 1,378 in 1922) is largely due to Dr. Muir's success in popularizing the antimony treatment at Kalna, while the increase in the Presidency Division (250 cases in 1911 and 3,190 in 1922) is the direct result of the work of the School of Tropical Medicine and of Rai Bahadur Dr. G. C. Chatterjee and other voluntary workers.

The incidence of 18,506 reported cases on the population of Bengal is ·0397 or 397 cases per 10,000 of population, and it will be interesting to compare this figure with those which much more elaborate investigations have yielded in Assam.

In 1922, a large special Kala-azar staff of medical officers, viz., eight Assistant and 48 Sub-Assistant Surgeons discovered under 20,000 cases in Assam, or a case incidence on population of 2·8 per mille, and even if we assumed that the incidence of the disease was equally severe in Bengal, we should still expect a total of under 150,000 cases in Bengal in 1922. These recent figures are confirmed by the results of earlier surveys. In 1911-12 Lt.-Col. Bodley Scott, I.M.S., made a survey of 23 thanas out of 31 (with 10,000 villages) in Sylhet: 53 villages were found infected with a case incidence of 5 per village. In 1913, another Kala-azar survey was made in Assam: 288 villages out of many thousands inspected were found to be infected, with on an average 2·4 cases per village.

In 1917-18 again, 116 villages in 5 districts were found infected with 3·1 cases per village, while during 1920-22, Lt.-Col. McCombie Young himself examined 82 villages in the Sibsagar district and found a case incidence per village of 3·2 in 1920, 4·4 in 1921, and 6·7 in 1922.

The Calcutta figures have a special value and interest. The census figures show that about a quarter of the inhabitants of Calcutta were born in the city, and 38·95 per cent. in other parts of Bengal (many, as might be expected, coming from the 24-Parganas and Howrah districts). The following figure shows the number per 10,000 of the natural population of certain Bengal districts, who were found in Calcutta and its suburbs at the time of the census :—

Howrah 1,307, 24-Parganas 792, Hooghly 493, Burdwan 155, Midnapore 130, Nadia 106, Dacca 94, Bankura 63, Jessore 55, Faridpur 47, Darjeeling 41, Khulna 40, Bakarganj 28, Pabna 18, and Mymensingh 9, etc.

In the case of Kala-azar, observations appear to show a considerable correspondence between the proportion of cases of the disease imported into Calcutta from particular districts, and the number of immigrants from these districts that are found among the population of the city, and we may assume for the present that on a rough calculation the incidence of Kala-azar in Calcutta does not widely differ from the provincial incidence in Bengal.

Roughly speaking, Calcutta might indeed, as a microcosmos of Bengal, be expected to reflect in the case of many diseases, where local conditions do not stultify the comparison, the conditions of public health in Bengal.

The number of in-door and out-door Kala-azar patients reported from the Calcutta hospitals and dispensaries in 1911 was 509, and the figure rose in 1922 to 2,876, or an incidence of under 3 per mille. If this case incidence—which is higher than the estimated incidence (2·8 per mille) in Assam—is applied to the province, we still have under 150,000 cases in Bengal, and even if, allowing for the fact that many cases are treated by private practitioners and are thus not included in the hospital returns, we have double the number of reported cases, and take the total number of persons suffering from Kala-azar in Calcutta as 6,000. and apply this incidence to the province, we should still have not more than 300,000 cases in Bengal, involving however an incidence more than double that of Assam—the home of Kala-azar in India.

Estimates have recently been published by various workers on Kala-azar which claim that the incidence of Kala-azar in Bengal is enormously greater than the official calculations suggest, and it has been conjectured that if active measures are not immediately taken, there is a risk of 60 to 80 per cent. of the population of Calcutta being infected with Kala-azar within six or seven years. The Minister for Local Self-Government is anxious that careful investigations should be made to establish the facts regarding the prevalence of Kala-azar in Bengal and has no desire to raise controversies, which cannot yet be conclusively settled on the material which exists, but he is clearly of opinion that the information which Dr. Sur's careful work has placed at his disposal, supported as it is in essentials by similar surveys on a larger scale in Assam, indicates that the number of Kala-azar cases in Bengal is probably less than 200,000 and almost certainly less than 300,000. But even if it is held that the prevalence of the disease has been greatly overstated on insufficient data, the aim of Government, of local authorities and of voluntary anti-Kala-azar organizations must be not merely to check and control a disease which is still manageable, but entirely to destroy the infection. The data, which several years' experience of the disease has afforded, suggest that this task is not yet of such dimensions as to place it beyond the capacity of local authorities assisted by Government, and the work already initiated by district boards for combating the disease enables the position, in the opinion of the Minister, to be faced with hope and confidence.

Recent anti-Kala-azar work.—Since 1919 the staff under Dr. Sur have been training local medical men in the diagnosis and treatment of Kala-azar, and recently the whole subordinate medical establishment of the Public Health Department has been concentrated on Kala-azar work.

It is estimated that about 300 medical men including sub-assistant surgeons employed under the local authorities have received training in Kala-azar diagnosis and treatment at the hands of Dr. Sur and his assistants, and others have since been trained by the district health officers who obtained a knowledge of the disease in the course of their studies for the diploma of public health.

In 1920 a scheme had been drawn up for anti-Kala-azar measures in districts where its existence might be established in the course of Dr. Sur's survey. The district boards at that time took little interest in the subject, but in 1921-22—with the appointment of district health officers—a more energetic policy became possible. In response to the request of the Public Health Department, district boards have now undertaken anti-Kala-azar work in an energetic and vigorous manner. To some extent their change of attitude is doubtless due to the recent focussing of public interest in Kala-azar. The Assam Government have been led to undertake anti-Kala-azar operations on a large scale, and in Bengal Rai Bahadur Dr. G. C. Chatterjee's fine work in creating new Kala-azar treatment centres and the inspiration which his example has given to so many private medical practitioners are new factors in the war against disease on a large scale in this Presidency, and the Minister for Local Self-Government welcomes this organisation of voluntary agencies as a most powerful ally to the forces of Government and the local authorities. The work of the Bengal Health Association on similar lines also promises to prove most valuable ; the large Kala-azar centre at Dogachia has already given relief to hundreds of sufferers. But the district boards of Bengal had begun work before the question obtained publicity in 1923, and the Minister for Local Self-Government cannot refrain from pointing to the splendid anti-Kala-azar work already done by district boards as a striking justification of Government's health officer policy. It has been urged that health officers are a costly luxury for local bodies, which have little money to spend on new sanitary works. It is forgotten that one of their main duties is to indicate how measures—not necessarily involving large expenditure—may be concerted and organized for the prevention of disease. The people of Bengal are interested in sanitation, and the measures which the district boards have taken for the suppression of Kala-azar are striking proof of the desire of the boards to interpret popular opinion, but the Minister for Local Self-Government believes that the district boards will themselves be the first to acknowledge the assistance their health officers have afforded.

In 15 districts of Bengal, special Kala-azar treatment centres have been started by district boards. Thus in Tippera 8 such centres have been opened, in Faridpur 15, in Malda 8, and in Rajshahi 12. In Howrah, the district board and branches of the anti-malarial co-operative society have started 30 centres for treatment. There are, in fact, at the present moment in Bengal over 150 special treatment centres, while in many other districts several of the local dispensaries have been equipped for Kala-azar diagnosis and treatment. The district health officers have themselves had some training in the disease, and they are being assisted by the Public Health Department in imparting a knowledge of the Aldehyde test and of the technique of intravenous injection to the sub-assistant surgeons employed in mufassal dispensaries.

There is thus already the nucleus of a large organisation—at least partially trained—for anti-Kala-azar work, and in making proposals for its expansion and better utilisation, the Minister desires to acknowledge the useful constructive work which district boards have been accomplishing in connection with Kala-azar. This is one of the first fruits of local public health organisation, and while anxious to give no bias of centralization to anti-Kala-azar work, the Minister desires to suggest steps by which this work may be expanded and still better organized.

Government's Kala-azar policy.—(a) A trained agency is the primary requirement. Each district possesses many dispensaries, and a large number of the sub-assistant surgeons in charge have already been trained in the diagnosis and treatment of the disease. The School of Tropical Medicine is prepared to do all in its power to give the necessary training as rapidly as possible to sub-assistant surgeons whom district or municipal boards may depute for such training, while in many cases the local bodies may be able to arrange for training under the Civil Surgeon or health officers, who have had special recent experience in Kala-azar work.

There are at present nearly 900 hospitals and dispensaries in Bengal (excluding Calcutta)—some maintained by Government, some by local bodies and some privately, while in many cases support is afforded both by Government and local authorities and by private charity. There seems no reason why all these institutions should not gradually be used partially as Kala-azar treatment centres, and it will then be possible in Bengal to bring the cure for Kala-azar within the reach of practically all of its unfortunate victims Local authorities are already fully alive to the value of such a measure, and the Minister for Local Self-Government trusts that they will now work out definite programmes for training those medical officers who have not yet been instructed in the diagnosis and treatment of Kala-azar, or for supplementing such training where it may appear to have been inadequate.

The ideal method of training will be to depute officers for a short period to the School of Tropical Medicine, where, however, only 20 can receive training at one time.

(b) Skilled inspection, even where a trained agency of subordinate medical officers has been created, is necessary to insure the best organization, the maintenance of efficiency in the technique of diagnosis and treatment, and the provision of medical relief on the widest possible scale. At present Dr. Sur, Assistant Director of Public Health, and 4 assistant and 17 sub-assistant surgeons (practically the whole mobile force of the department) are engaged entirely in Kala-azar work.

Two other Assistant Directors within their local areas will be engaged largely on Kala-azar work, in addition to their other duties.

The Minister for Local Self-Government trusts that local authorities in prosecuting the campaign, which they have so effectively initiated, will make the fullest use of the experience which the Assistant Directors have already gained, and he is confident that they will obtain valuable help and willing co-operation from the Civil Surgeons in supplementing the work of their own public health agency.

(c) It is desirable tha a model Kala-azar centre should be opened at each district headquarters.

Frequently it may be possible for the Civil Surgeon to make special provision for Kala-azar diagnosis and treatment in his headquarters hospital, and where this is not practicable, the local authorities concerned, with the advice of the Civil Surgeon, may be able to make other arrangements for the purpose. It must not be forgotten that the Tartar emetic treatment is a prolonged one, the routine course consisting of 30 injections given on alternative days and thus extending over at least two months. In some cases, moreover, the patient must be admitted into hospital or treated at his home. All local authorities—municipalities and district boards—should in consultation with the Civil Surgeon, consider the possibility of establishing these headquarters model centres, which may involve the temporary appointment of an additional assistant or sub-assistant surgeon.

To the extent of the allotment available during the current year for Kala-azar work, viz., Rs 15,000, Government will be prepared to assist any scheme on these lines which the local authorities in consultation with the Civil Surgeons may draw up. Where a good centre, which may serve as a model to the district, has thus been established, it may serve as the training ground for some of the dispensary medical officers, thus obviating the need for their deputation to Calcutta. The diagnosis of Kala-azar may be made on the case history and clinical grounds, aided, if necessary, by the Aldehyde test, spleen punctures being resorted to very sparingly. The treatment itself in inexpensive—about an anna per injection—the equipment required is simple, and the technique of intravenous injection, though requiring considerable care, may soon be made with proper skill by the trained sub-assistant surgeon.

Honorary agencies.—As already indicated, Government attach the greatest value to the co-operation of private practitioners in this campaign, and the Minister has decided to give the Central Co-operative Anti-Malarial Society a grant of Rs. 10,000 each, on condition that a substantial portion of this amount is to be spent in meeting the incidental expenses of special Kala-azar treatment centres. Government is also prepared to make a contribution to the Public Health Association for Kala-azar work.

General direction of anti-Kala-azar work.—It is evident that the campaign outlined above implies a utilization of the resources both of curative and preventive medicine. A mere survey of the incidence of Kala-azar, which makes no provision for treatment, will not only waste valuable opportunities, but also must almost inevitably fail.

Patients, who will welcome diagnosis, clinical and pathological, if it is merely the prelude to treatment and cure, will not be prepared to present themselves at a centre for the sake merely of enabling accurate statistics to be compiled.

A Kala-azar survey, if it is to be scientifically valuable, must include treatment on the widest scale. Public Health administration is concerned with epidemics or disease in the mass. Though its function is primarily preventive, the organization of medical skill for coping with an epidemic in full force is still within its province. But in this Kala azar enquiry the provision of relief in individual cases—since an almost certain cure exists—is no less important than the elucidation of statistical facts. Although the proposed enquiry will fall largely within the province of Public Health and will be conducted primarily by the Department of Public Health, Government (Ministry of Local Self-Government) are of opinion that it is most essential to obtain the closest co-operation for the purposes of this enquiry between their Medical and Public Health Departments. They have decided to request the Board of Public Health to appoint from their members a small expert Kala-azar committee (with power to co-opt members) for co-ordinating and advising local agencies in dealing with the disease. The committee will meet periodically and will watch the progress of the Kala-azar enquiry by means of local reports obtained from the Medical and Public Health Departments. The Minister conceives that it would be their task to advise local authorities—whether direct or through Government—as to any measures which in their opinion can be taken to improve local organization of anti-Kala-azar work and to report periodically to Government and the Board of Public Health on the progress made. They might also determine in what form and on what points statistics should be compiled for ascertaining the incidence of Kala-azar or for obtaining data which research workers may still require in connection with the disease.

Secretary to the Government of Bengal (offg.).

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE ON THE LAND REVENUE ADMINISTRATION OF THE PRESIDENCY OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR 1922-23.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Land Revenue.

DARJEELING, THE 25TH OCTOBER 1923.

RESOLUTION—No. 1405T.—R.

READ—

The report of the Board of Revenue on the Land Revenue Administration of the Presidency of Bengal for the year 1922-23.

THE office of the Member, Board of Revenue, was held by Mr. F. C. French, C.S.I., throughout the year under report.

2. The report gives an indication of some improvement in the material condition of the people. Cultivators were comparatively prosperous; the rice-crop was on the whole good; jute cultivators, though the yield of such was not entirely satisfactory, got good prices for their jute; the supply of labour was steady, and labourers got high wages; and there was a marked improvement in the public health of the province. On the other hand, the year was as usual not free from natural calamities. There was a cyclone in the Cox's Bazar subdivision of the Chittagong district, and there were floods in the Burdwan Division. Disastrous floods occurred in several districts in the Rajshahi Division owing to the sudden and excessive rain which occurred in the last week of September 1922. This caused great loss of crops, cattle and houses in Rajshahi and Bogra and to a smaller extent in Dinajpur and Pabna. Thirty-three lives were unfortunately lost in Rajshahi and 22 in Bogra, and a large number of cattle was reported to have been killed. Government assistance was immediately forthcoming, and loans and gratuitous relief were freely granted to alleviate the distress. Many non-official agencies took part in the work of relief from funds contributed privately. His Excellency in Council has much pleasure in noting the report that the areas affected by the floods in the Rajshahi Division have made a wonderful recovery.

3. Useful information is given in the detailed statistics in the report, but there is little which calls for comment. There was an increase of nearly 1½ lakhs in the current demand for revenue mostly due to new settlements and re-settlements and progressive increase of demand in temporarily-settled and Government estates, and collections were, on the whole, good. The colonisation of the Sundarbans in the district of Bakarganj made good progress, and the work of reclamation was in full swing.

4. Non-co-operation appears to have had no effect on collections in Government estates. The decrease both in the number of schools and pupils in Government estates in the district of Noakhali is, however, partly attributed to apathy of the cultivators in educating their children caused by the non-co-operation movement. The enthusiasm over the charka, the symbol of non-co-operation, has almost subsided.

5. The relations between landlords and tenants are reported to have been unsatisfactory and actually strained in many places, the common causes being the levy of abwabs and enhancement of rent. Settlement operations have however shown the tenants that abwabs are illegal, and the non-co-operation movement is said to have made them more disposed to claim their rights and less inclined to tolerate any sort of oppression. As to the working of the Bengal Tenancy Amendment Act, 1918, a separate communication will be addressed to the Board, as Government are not entirely in accord with the remarks made thereon.

6. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to the Board of Revenue for the efficient administration of the Land Revenue Department.

M. C. McALPIN,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

Delhi, the 3rd November 1923.

RESOLUTION.

In pursuance of a resolution moved in the Legislative Assembly on the 8th of February 1922 by Baba Ujagar Singh Bedi, a Committee was appointed by the Governor General in Council to examine the Indian Arms Rules, 1920, and to make recommendations with a view to their amendment. In accepting this resolution the Governor General in Council had made it plain that there could be no departure from the two principles :

(1) that there should be no racial discrimination in the rules, and

(2) that the Government must retain the power to impose restrictions to prevent arms and particularly firearms from falling into the possession of lawless or dangerous persons.

The Committee submitted its report in November 1922. On the 15th of February 1923 the Hon'ble Home Member stated in the Legislative Assembly that subject to enquiries from local Governments and other authorities concerned on certain points of detail the Government of India were prepared to accept the main recommendations of the Committee. They could not, however, announce their decisions on all the recommendations made without prior consultation with local Governments who are in charge of the detailed administration of the rules. Local Governments accordingly were asked for their views and at the same time were requested to give effect as far as possible to the principles adopted by the Committee where this was feasible pending the modification of the rules of 1920. The replies of local Governments have now been received and have been fully examined by the Government of India. The Indian Arms Rules, 1920, have been amended where necessary and are now republished as the Indian Arms Rules, 1924 : but many recommendations accepted in whole or in part involve no amendment of the rules, and on these the Government of India are now pleased to announce their decisions.

2. In paragraphs 3 to 7 of their report the Committee deal with the question of exemptions. The Government of India agree with the general principle adopted by the Committee that the confinement of the privilege of exemption is in the special circumstances of India preferable to its total abolition. They accept the conclusions regarding entry 1 (a), and entries 11, 11-A and 11-B of the schedule of exemptions, but they only agree to the proposal that members of the Imperial Legislature should enjoy exemption for their term of office with some reluctance. It is opposed by local Governments on the one hand as creating an invidious distinction between the members of the Central and of Provincial legislatures, and on the other hand certain members of the Central Legislature claim a life exemption and not merely exemption for their terms of office. As regards entry 6 (d), 6 (f), 6 (i), and 6 (g), enquiries have been made from the local Governments concerned. They are averse from the preparation of lists in the sense recommended by the Committee. It is pointed out with justice that exemption is not conferred on certain Great Sardars or Zamindars as a right but as a privilege and that if the term were precisely defined and a list of all persons who came within that definition were maintained the fact of inclusion in the list would encourage claims for exemption as a matter of right. Moreover, the compilation of lists on a logical and uniform basis throughout India would present difficulty and would inevitably result in anomalies. The most expedient course therefore and that which will secure the maintenance of the principle that exemption is a privilege and at the same time minimise the inconvenience referred to by the Committee is to attempt no definition of the terms Great Zamindars or Great Sardars or the like in the rules and the schedule, but to leave it to the several local Governments themselves to determine what persons or classes of persons should be included in these categories. The schedule has therefore been amended accordingly.

3. The Government of India after consultation with the local Government on the Committee's observations on entry No. 7, are of opinion that there is no necessity to retain entries 7 (c) and 8 of schedule I in view of entries 8 and 9 of schedule IV. The proviso therefore to entry 7 (c) in column 3 automatically disappears. As regards the recommendation that the same privilege should be extended to the districts of Campbellpur, Rawalpindi and other districts adjoining the North-West Frontier Province, the local Government, after careful consideration, have reported that no extension of this privilege is required, but in order to meet the danger of raids in the Attock District, suggest that power be given to them to issue licences for going armed in that district without payment of fee. The Government of India accept this suggestion and have accordingly amended the heading of the appropriate licence form. As regards entry 13, after careful consideration they have decided that the words " or the Commander-in-Chief " should be added.

4. The Government of India accept the recommendation made in paragraph 4,

5. In paragraph 5 the Committee recommend that all exemptees should register the arms in their possession in respect of which they enjoy exemption and that registration should be compulsory. The Government of India accept the principle of registration but have decided that registration should be confined to firearms, and that no fee should be charged. In practice, they consider it would suffice if every exemptee were required to furnish the District Magistrate with information as to the weapons in his possession, failure to do so rendering him liable to the cancellation of his exemption.

6. To give effect to the recommendation regarding entires 11, 11-A and 11-B, the Government of India have decided that these entries will be deleted from the schedule and that no mention will be made of these classes in the revised rules. Every person now enjoying the privilege of exemption under these entries in the rules of 1920 or under entry 12 thereof, since the same considerations apply in their case also, will, on application, receive, free of all fees, a licence in form XVI, specially made valid for the life time of the licensee in respect of any arms now in his possession and hitherto exempt from licence provided he applies within six months of the coming into force of the rules of 1924. The privilege will not of course extend to title-holders who received titles after the 1st of January 1920, who unless otherwise exempt will, as before, be required to take out a licence under the rules.

7. In paragraph 8 the Committee recommend that in extension of the classes described in Home Department resolution No. 2125-C., dated the 21st March 1919, the payment of Rs. 500 land revenue, of Rs. 100 in roads and public works cesses, any payment of income-tax, and in the case of a Government servant receipt of a pay of Rs. 100 a month and upwords should be the qualifications constituting eligibility for what is commonly known as the "entitled class." The Governor General in Council accepts the principle underlying this recommendation that the grant of licences should be less restricted, and more free from irksome enquiries than was represented to be the case by many witnesses examined by the Committee and agrees with the qualifications suggested by the Committee as providing sufficient primâ facie justification for the possession of arms. He is unable, however, to accept the recommendation that provisions recognizing and constituting an "entitled class" should be embodied in the rules. Conditions vary greatly in different provinces in India. In some quarters a practice is in force more liberal than that recommended by the Committee; but in others it is necessary in the interest of law and order to secure that arms do not fall into the possession of lawless or dis-affected persons, and therefore they are unwilling to embody in statutory rules any provision which would have the effect of curtailing the power or discretion of the District Magistrate in ordering enquiries. The term "entitled class" is somewhat unfortunate. The rules as now framed contain no provisions inconsistent with the principle underlying the recommendation of the Committee, but the term "entitled class" has created the erroneous impression that there is a special class, enjoying fewer privileges than the exemptees, but greater than those who are neither exemptees nor members of the "entitled class." There is of course no such special class. The term is merely intended to comprise all those whose means and status primâ facie connote respectability and therefore justify the presumption that they are fit and proper persons to possess arms. While therefore no mention will be made of an "entitled class" in the statutory rules, at the same time the Government of India are anxious that the qualifications recommended by the Committee should be generally adopted by local Governments and should be made widely known. Where, however, a local Government has laid down more liberal qualifications, these should not now be abandoned. They cannot support the recommendation that lists of the "entitled class" should be maintained; the qualifications are so low that each district list would be voluminous, and its preparation and maintenance would involve the appointment of a special staff. The expenditure and labour involved would be wholly incommensurate with the results obtained.

8. In paragraph 10, the Committee recommend that where enquiry is necessary the agency of the police should not, if possible, be employed; but that if no other agency of enquiry is available a licence should not be refused on the strength of a police report alone but only after a further magisterial enquiry. The Government of India are unable to concur in this recommendation and are constrained to deprecate a reflection on the good faith of the police. The replies of local Governments indicate that it is impossible to eliminate enquiry by the police in the cities and that owing to the shortage or absence of suitable revenue staff, no other agency is available in many district, areas. At the same time the replies show that enquiry is frequently carried out by other agencies where these are available. The Government of India are of opinion that the agency of enquiry is really a matter for local Governments and are accordingly averse from imposing any restriction on the choice of agency. They leave the matter in the hands of local Governments who will, they are confident, take all steps necessary to secure that wherever previous enquiries are necessary they are promptly carried out, and in a manner which is neither inquisitorial nor calculated to wound the self-esteem of the applicant.

9. The Government of India are in complete agreement with the recommendation made in paragraph 11 that ordinarily no arbitrary limit should be imposed on the number of licences issued in a district, but that local Governments should have the discretionary power of limiting the number of licences in any area or district in which the number of arms justifies the apprehension of serious danger or in which such restriction is deemed necessary for the maintenance of public tranquillity. They accept the recommendation in paragraph 12 and have provided for the right of appeal by an amendment of the rules. The recommendation in paragraph 13 is accepted subject to a partial reservation as to the proposal that the duration of the licence should be for the calendar year. Local Governments have pointed out that in practice inconvenience would arise and would prefer that licences for possession and going armed and for protection of crops or destruction of wild animals should run from the date of issue, but have no objection to other licences being issued for the calendar year. The Government of India agree with the views of the local Governments.

10. In paragraph 14 the Committee have dwelt on the inconvenience to which persons desirous of purchasing weapons are put because they cannot produce the weapon when applying for the licence necessary for its possession. The Government of India agree with them that it is not necessary to provide for the issue of temporary licences in such cases and accept the recommendation that a regular licence should be issued at the time the applicant applies for a licence, if the application is granted. Provision has been made in the conditions attaching to the appropriate licences for the details of purchases to be filled in on the form by the dealer from whom the purchases are made and also, to meet criticism offered in this respect, for details to be furnished to the licensing authority by the licensee himself in any case in which he purchases arms and ammunition from any person who is not a licensed dealer.

11. The Government of India accept the principle of the recommendation made in paragraph 15 that a temporary licence for 14 days should be given to persons arriving in India by sea and not in possession of a regular licence on the payment of full fee by the Customs Authorities. It is however open to objection in detail. The period clearly will in many cases be too short for the object in view; the payment of the full fee to the Customs Authorities will deprive local Governments of their legitimate revenue: and finally it is doubtful whether the agency of the Customs Authorities is altogether suitable for the purpose. The Government of India have therefore decided that a temporary licence for the period of the journey to destination should be granted by the Commissioner of Police at Bombay, Madras, Calcutta, Rangoon, or the District Magistrates at other ports, on a special form on the payment of a fee of Re. 1 for each weapon and that on arrival at destination a regular licence should be taken out in the ordinary way. No practical difficulty need be anticipated. It will be made clear in the form of temporary licence that it does not cover possession after arrival at destination. Travellers arriving in India possessing no regular licence and desirous of obtaining one should inform their agents beforehand of the weapons they intend to import and instruct them to obtain the necessary temporary licence. On arrival at destination they should apply for the licences required in the ordinary way.

12. The Government of India accept the recommendations made in paragraph 16 The conditions of the licence forms have accordingly been altered so as to make it compulsory to report the loss of firearms. A note has also been appended to the licence forms explaining that the breach of any of the conditions of the licence renders the licensee liable to the penalties which may be imposed under the Act.

13. The Government of India accept the recommendations made in paragraphs 17, 18, 19 and 20 and trust that local Governments will give effect to them both in the letter and in the spirit. As regards paragraph 20 they agree that the District Magistrate or any Magistrate in charge of a subdivision in the district in which the licensee is residing or in ony other district in which he is known should be empowered to renew a licence. In any case of doubt it is always open to such Magistrate to make enquiries from the licensing authority which originally granted the licence.

14. In paragraph 21 the Committee state their recommendation in regard to fees. There is some diversity of opinion in the replies received from the local Governments, some accepting the proposal, some recommending no change and others putting forward variants of their own. The principal objection is the loss of revenue which will result from the adoption of the scale proposed by the Committee; in some quarters, too, it is suggested that the large number of arms licences issued does not justify the belief that persons who require weapons are deterred from purchasing them by the high cost of the licence. The Government of India are impressed by the substantial loss of revenue which complete acceptance of this recommendation will entail. On the other hand they cannot overlook the fact that stress was laid on the desirability of reducing the fees before the Committee, particularly in the case of breech-loading weapons, by many of the witnesses who were examined. They have accordingly decided that the initial fees should remain unchanged, but that half these fees should be chargeable on renewal provided applications are made within a month following the expiry of the period covered by the original licence. In their opinion this reduction of the renewal fees will afford substantial relief, and is the most they can agree to in the present financial stringency. They accept the recommendation in regard (1) to the payment of fees by non-judicial stamp, but consider that an applicant should have the option of paying them in cash, (2) the application for licences, (3) the renewal of licences by post, (4) exemption from payment of fees in the circumstances stated in the concluding portion of paragraph 21, and (5) the payment by dealers of a single fee for import into India and transport to destination.

15. As regards the limit on possession of ammunition, the Government of India agree with the recommendation of the Committee and trust that local Governments will, if they have not already done so, issue suitable instruction on the lines recommended.

16. They accept in principle the recommendation made in paragraph 23 that the issue of all India licences should be as unrestricted as possible. They agree that Assam and Burma should no longer be excluded from the all-India licence; but they consider it necessary to make a provision that any one who has secured an all-India licence in one province shall if he enters another province be subject to such restrictions as may be imposed by that province, as for example that an all-India licence granted in one province should be endorsed by the District Magistrate of the district of another province visited by the holder of the licence. Enquiries as recommended have been made from the Punjab, Burma, the North-West Frontier Province and Delhi whether the retention of these provinces in column 1 of Schedule II is required; the North-West Frontier Province agree to exclusion, but the Government of India are unwilling at present to adopt this suggestion in the case of the Punjab (with which Delhi may be included) or Burma. On the proposal made in paragraph 23 regarding greater expedition in dealing with applications for licences it is impossible and indeed unnecessary for the Government of India to issue any general orders. They are aware that local Governments are fully alive to the necessity of prompt attention to applications for the grant and renewal of licences. They trust that no avoidable delays will occur; that if at any time the pressure of work in connection with licence applications becomes abnormal special measures will be taken to cope with it: and that if in any case unnecessary delay has occurred steps will be taken to prevent its recurrence in future.

17. The Government of India accept the recommendations made in paragraphs 25, 26, 28, 29 and 33, but are unable, in view of the strong objections placed before them by the military authorities that there is no difficulty in converting such rifles to take Government ammunition, to accept the recommendation contained in paragraph 27 As regards the recommendation in paragraph 31, the Government of India are of opinion that it is advisable to regularize the practice followed by licensed dealers of employing assistants to conduct their business in their temporary absence, and the licence form granted to dealers has accordingly been amended so as to include a column for the names of duly authorized assistants.

18. The recommendation contained in paragraph 30 does not commend itself to the Government of India. They apprehend that the carrying of firearms by females might have dangerous results, and would only expose such females to attack from lawless persons desirous of stealing weapons. In their opinion it should be possible to meet the situation which the Committee appear to have had in mind by the entry of certain specified members of the licensee's family as retainers.

19. On the recommendation made in paragraph 32 urging reciprocity with Indian States the Government of India are not in a position to make any announcement. They have taken up the matter with the various States, and negotiations are proceeding.

20. The changes in the rules necessitated by the acceptance of these recommendations have been made; and the rules are now published as the Indian Arms Rules of 1924. It has not been found possible to accept in toto the recommendations of the Committee in regard to the form in which the rules should be published. They advised a separation of the technical directions intended for dealers from the rules governing the grant of licences for possession of firearms for private purposes. An attempt was made to draft the rules on this principle, but it was wholly unsatisfactory, and was accordingly abandoned. The Indian Arms Rules of 1920 follow the order of the sections of the Act; this is obviously the logical arrangement of the rules and it is clearly convenient on administrative grounds that the sections of the Act and the rules should be in the same sequence. Moreover, the difficulties of interpretation to which the Committee have adverted are due far less to inherent obscurity or to the incorporation of technical directions, than to the fact that they are not self-contained. To be properly understood they must be read in conjunction with the Act and with the schedules and such difficulties as the ordinary member of the public feels will not be solved by the publication of a paraphrased or abbreviated edition of the rules but by the dissemination of information as to the correct procedure of applying for and securing a licence. The Government of India have accordingly prepared for such use as local Governments may consider suitable a short pamphlet in popular language, describing the procedure regulating the application for licences for the possession of firearms for purposes of sport, protection, show, and the like. They trust that this pamphlet will be translated into the various vernaculars and that publicity will be given to it.

21. In conclusion the Governor General in Council wishes to express his appreciation of the labours of the Committee. The Indian Arms Rules of 1920 evoked much criticism and many defects were removed as they were pointed out. But much remained to be done when the Committee was appointed in 1922, and their businesslike and practical recommendations coupled with a sympathetic administration of the rules by the local Governments should go far towards removing any dissatisfaction which may still remain.

ORDER.—Ordered that a copy be forwarded to all local Governments and Administrations and to all Departments of the Government of India in continuation of Resolution No. F.-829-I.-Police, dated 20th January 1923.

ORDERED further that the Resolution be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India.

RESOLUTION ON THE ANNUAL PROGRESS REPORT ON THE FOREST ADMINISTRATION IN THE PRESIDENCY OF BENGAL FOR THE YEAR ENDING THE 31ST MARCH 1923.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

Forests.

CALCUTTA, THE 13TH NOVEMBER 1923.

RESOLUTION—No. 10212For.

READ—

The Annual Progress Report on the Forest Administration in the Presidency of Bengal for the year ending the 31st March 1923.

READ ALSO—

The report of the previous year and the Government Resolution thereon.

Mr. R. C. Milward held charge of the department practically throughout the year. He went on leave on the 27th March 1923, making over charge to Mr. Shebbeare.

2. Changes in area.—The total area under forest during the year under review was 10,709 square miles, being 13 square miles more than what it was during the preceding year, and representing 13·6 per cent. of the total area of the province. There was an increase of 17 square miles under reserved forests and a decrease of 4 square miles under protected forests.

3. Working plans.—Satisfactory progress was made in the preparation of working plans. No new working plan was sanctioned during the year, but it appears that the working plans for the Chittagong, Chittagong Hill Tracts and Cox's Bazar Divisions have been completed and considerable progress has been made in the working plan of the Kalimpong Division.

Satisfactory explanations have been received of deviations from the working plans.

4. Communications and buildings.—Owing to financial stringency practically no new works could be taken up. The cost of what little was done by way of providing cart roads, bridle and other paths amounted to Rs. 6,002 against Rs. 29,374 spent during the preceding year. Old roads and paths to the extent of 1,260 miles were repaired at a cost of Rs. 27,918 against Rs. 42,819 spent on the repair of 1,262 miles in the previous year. The total expenditure on communications during the year under review was thus Rs. 38,273 less than in the year 1921-22. The Governor in Council agrees with the Conservator that "better roads mean easier and therefore increased export and more revenue", and hopes that when the financial situation improves it will be possible to sanction more adequate funds for the purpose.

Rupees 29,857 was spent on the repair of existing buildings and Rs. 29,589 on the construction of new buildings, the most important of which were the Imperial officer's quarters at Rajabhatkhawa and the Divisional Officer's bungalow at Cox's Bazar, where the old building as noticed in last year's report had been set on fire by the non-co-operators.

5. Protection.—The number of forest offences reported during the year was 3,326 as against 2,811, the average of the preceding three years, while the number actually taken into Court was 142. The number of reported cases of injury by fire was 132 of which 47 were detected, including 38 cases of the Chittagong Hill Tracts Division. The principal fires took place in the Buxa Division covering an area of 6,233 acres. The largest increase in the number of cases was under the head of "unauthorised felling", and most of the cases were reported from the Chittagong Hill Tracts, where the offenders cut bamboos without permission. The compensation realised from offenders who were allowed to compound amounted to Rs. 22,690.

Out of the total forest area 4,693 square miles were open to grazing. The estimated value of grass and grazing allowed free of royalty is Rs. 21,943 as against Rs. 19,544 in the preceding year. The question of buffalo grazing in the Cox's Bazar Division is receiving the special attention of the Forest Department and the local officers.

Among natural enemies severe frost in January and February 1923 caused damage to plants in the Darjeeling Division. The fencing of plantations with combined barbed wire and wove-wire afforded considerable protection against damage by rhinoceros and pig.

6. Silviculture.—Chapter III of the report contains an interesting account of the various kinds of tree-seeds that have been grown in the Bengal forests. It appears that of the 35 varieties experimented upon satisfactory results have been obtained in the case of 29. Though natural regeneration ordinarily seems to produce little result in Bengal except in the Sunderbans, natural regeneration of sal has been very successful in the Khariarbandar forest, in Jalpaiguri, and greater attention is being paid to the natural regeneration of garjan in the Chittagong Division.

7. Exploitation.—The proceeds from the sale of timber, fuel, bamboos grass and other minor produce amounted to Rs. 15·88 lakhs against Rs. 14·84 lakhs in the preceding year. The value of produce extracted departmentally amounted to Rs. 4·87 lakhs as against Rs. 3·30 lakhs in the preceding year. A feature of the year was the success attendant on the modern mechanical means for exploitation and conversion adopted at Sukna under the supervision of the Forest Engineer. Similar schemes elsewhere, which are all of a remunerative nature, are now under contemplation. The total outturn of timber of different kinds in all the forests amounted to 9·40 millions of cubic feet as against 7·75 millions of cubic feet in the preceding year. The increased outturn was due to a revival of the timber trade.

The Buxa Timber and Trading Company and Messrs Andrew Yule and Company are the two important firms that have been granted licenses to carry on exploitation in the Bengal forests, the former in timber in the Buxa Forest Division and the latter in bamboos in the Chittagong forests for the preparation of paper pulp. The Buxa Timber and Trading Company, whose royalty-free period ended in June 1921, have since the close of the year under review gone into liquidation, but Government revenue has been safeguarded.

Among minor operations the most important were the departmental kheddas conducted jointly with Bhutan, which resulted in the catch of 25 elephants of which two died, two remained unsold and the remaining 21 were sold at a net profit of Rs. 27,738. The Burma Oil Company continued to prospect for mineral oil in the Cox's Bazar Division. A match expert made an extensive tour in all the forest divisions in order to ascertain the species of wood suitable for match manufacture and the quantities available and accessible.

8. Financial results.—The financial results of the year under review were distinctly satisfactory. The total forest revenue amounted to Rs. 23·11 lakhs as against Rs. 18·98 lakhs in the preceding year; the average of the previous quinquennium being Rs. 17·80 lakhs. The profit of the department amounted to Rs. 10·79 lakhs as against Rs. 6·10 lakhs in the preceding year; the average of the preceding quinquennium being Rs. 8·81 lakhs. The creditable feature of the administration during the year under review is, therefore, that while the expenditure was Rs. 57,000 less than in the preceding year, the revenue increased by over Rs. 4·12 lakhs. For this increase the Sundarbans is responsible for Rs. 1½ lakhs, which was obtained by the sale of sundri and golpata, and the Kurseong and Jalpaiguri Divisions for Rs. 1½ lakhs realised from the railways for sleepers.

9. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to Mr. R. C. Milward for his successful administration of the department. His Excellency in Council notices with pleasure the record of good work done by the other officers of the department referred to in the report.

ORDER.—Ordered that this resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette and that a copy with a copy of the report be submitted to the Government of India.

By order of the Governor in Council,

M. C. McALPIN,

Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE WARDS', ATTACHED AND TRUST ESTATES IN THE PRESIDENCY OF BENGAL FOR 1329 B.S. (1922-23).

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT.

CALCUTTA, THE 19TH NOVEMBER 1923.

RESOLUTION—No. 10516L.R.

READ—

The Report of the Board of Revenue on the administration of wards', attached and trust estates in the Presidency of Bengal for the year 1329 B.S. (1922-23).

1. Number of estates under management.—The number of estates under the management of the Court of Wards at the beginning of the year under report was 66. Five new estates were taken charge of during the year and two estates released, leaving 69 estates under its charge at the close of the year. It is gratifying to notice that the Courts' management of the estates which have been released was satisfactory, inasmuch as their debts were substantially reduced, their income enhanced and the wards received proper education during its management.

2. Collection of rent and cesses.—The total demand of rent and cesses during the year was Rs. 1,07,42,342 of which Rs. 48,17,187 or 44·8 per cent. was collected against 38·9 per cent. in the preceding year. The percentage of collection on current demand also rose from 97·6 to 110·5 ; only a small proportion of the estates was responsible for bad collections.

The outstanding balance due to all the estates at the close of the year aggregated over Rs. 52,00,000 representing 117·8 per cent. on the current demand against 135·9 per cent. of the preceding year.

3. Debts of estates.—The total debts of estates under management amounted to Rs. 34,34,230 at the close of the year against Rs. 33,51,376 during the preceding year. The principal was reduced by Rs. 4,29,466 and and the interest paid amounted to Rs. 2,38,072.

4. Cost of management and audit of expenditure.—There was a slight fall in the cost of management from 15·2 per cent. of the current rent and cess demand in the preceding year to 14·9 per cent.

5. Civil suit and certificate procedure.—The total number of certificates for disposal was 35,086 covering an aggregate demand of Rs. 9,08,807, of which a sum of Rs. 5,35,188 covered by 22,832 certificates was realised representing 59·2 per cent. of the total claim against 50·7 per cent. realised in the previous year.

Of 4,497 suits for disposal, 4,053 cases were disposed of covering a demand of Rs. 1,64,996, leaving a balance of Rs. 2,80,925 outstanding at the end of the year.

6. Expenditure on improvements and education.—The total sum spent during the year on schools, dispensaries and works of improvement was Rs. 2,72,345, which is about 6·2 per cent. of the current rent and cess demand. Under the rules 1 per cent. of the demand has to be spent on education and 3 per cent. on sanitary and agricultural improvements. The obligations of the estates in this respect have therefore been more than fulfilled.

7. The thanks of the Governor in Council are due to the Board of Revenue for the efficient administration of the estates under the management of the Court of Wards. He also notices with pleasure the good work done by the Managers mentioned in the report.

By order of the Governor in Council,

M. C. McALPIN,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

The World with fuller treatment of India (Longman's Geographical Series for India, Book II).

F. D. Unstead ... The Practical Geography, Parts I and II.

B. C. Wallis ... Macmillan's Geograpical Exercise Book (India).

The following books are recommended for the use of teachers :—

Handford ... The Rudiments of Physical Geography for the use of Indian Schools.

Frew ... A Regional Geography of the Indian Empire, Blackie and Son.

Wallis ... The Teaching of Geography (Cambridge University Press).

O'Malley ... Bengal, Bihar and Orissa, Sikkim (Macmillan and Co.).

The following book is recommended for the use of teachers in connection with the teaching of "Sand Modelling" in the lower classes of Schools :—

A. E. Frye ... The Child and Nature.

Every school that intends to undertake instruction in Geography for the Matriculation Examination is required to possess the apparatus mentioned in the following list :—

I. (The total cost need not exceed Rs. 65.)

(1) A measuring tape and metre scale and foot ruler.
(2) A Magnetic Compass.
(3) Squared paper and tracing paper.
(4) Clay, dry sand, paper pulp for modelling.
(5) A globe not less than 14 inches in diameter, with writing surface, and with line of latitude and longitude, and outlines only of the land masses marked upon it.
(6) A map of the school locality on a scale of 4" or 6"-1 mile.
(7) A map of the district in which the school is situated on the scale 1"-1 mile.
(8) A coloured map of the province.
(9) A coloured political map of India.
(10) A physical map of India.
(11) A relief map of India.
(12) A map of the world on Mollweide's equal area projection and a map of Asia.

It is essential that the students should be provided with atlases, or with the necessary hand maps, and with a drawing instrument box. Maps for school work should not contain too much detail or be crowded with names.

II. The following additional equipment is recommended when it can be provided, but the lack of it is not to be considered as a bar to the recognition of the school in Geography.

(1) A thermometer.
(2) A mercury barometer.
(3) A rain-gauge.
(4) A small collection of typical rocks, in particular, those of the province and India.
(5) A small museum of typical products.
(6) A good standard atlas.
(7) Geographical pictures.
(8) Magic-lantern and slides.

(1) The attention of teachers is requested to the raised maps of Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam made of paper pulp, prepared by Babu Kailaschandra Datta, Head Pandit, Habigunj Government Girls' School, Sylhet, and sold for Rs. 7 and Rs. 5, respectively.

(2) Globes of all kinds are made by George Phillip and Son, London, W., and A. K. Johnston, London, and Messrs. Ruddiman, London. Small hand globes of German make can be obtained through the Indian School Supply Depôt for about a rupee each.

(3) The "Comparative" series of large wall maps of the continents published by George Phillip and Son is good and up to date ; so also are the Geographical wall maps published by Edward Stanford. Messrs. Ruddiman Johnston publish a series of smaller wall maps which include maps of India illustrating various distributions.

Messrs. Nelson's wall atlases are good. Mr. S. B. Chatterjee publishes District Maps; also ordinary and relief maps of the province.

Babu L. M. Basu, the drawing master of the Dacca Collegiate School, has published good relief maps of Eastern Bengal and Assam and of India.

The Vidal-Lablché French wall maps on strong card-board, named on one side, and the same map without names on the reverse, published by Armond Collin, Paris, are good and cheap. They measure 46 inches by 39 inches and can be delivered in Calcutta for Rs. 4-14 each.

(4) The hand-maps, coloured to indicate relief, published by the Diagram Company, West Barnes Lane, New Malden, Surrey, at one penny each, are the best of their kind.

The uncoloured half penny maps, showing river systems and a few towns, published by the same Company, are excellent for class use.

The autograph hand maps, with hill shading in brown, published by Messrs. Edward Stanford, London, at one penny each, are very good, and are larger than the Diagram Company's hand maps. The 15· inch map of the world on Mollweide's equal area projection is especially to be commended.

(5) Wall pictures of considerable artistic merit are published by Messrs. Edward Arnold of Leeds; Horns Hachette of Paris and Messrs. Holzel of Vienna, and Messrs. Longmans, Green and Company. They cost, delivered in India, from two or three rupees each.

Map lantern slides and view slides especially prepared for Geography teaching are sold by the Diagram Company for two or three shillings each. Mr. Bartington Smith of Darjeeling also sells good picture slides of the Himalayas at Rs. 15 per dozen.

ELEMENTARY MECHANICS.

The following books are recommended :—

Sir Philip Magnus	...	Elementary Mechanics (Longmans, 1903).
A. N. Sen	...	Elementary Mechanics.

The following list of apparatus is prescribed as indicating the approximate requirements of a recognised High School seeking to teach Elementary Mechanics for the Matriculation Examination :—

Plumb line and level.
Simple lever (including brass slotted weight).
Roman steel yard.
Lecture apparatus for experiment on movements.
George's New Atwood's Machine.
Stop watch.
Glazebrook's apparatus (to demonstrate movement of a body).
Hick's Ballistic Balance.
Compound Wheel and Axle.
4 Single Brass Pulleys.
2 Triple Brass Pulleys.
Weston Differential Pulley Blocks (½ ton).
16 feet of Chain at 6d. per foot.
Inclined Plane.
Parallelogram of Forces apparatus.
Wall Crane.
Becker's New Physical Balance.
Set of Grame Weights (200 grams to mgr.).
2 Composition-ivory Balls.

NOTE.—The above list is not exhaustive, and much of it might be replaced by similar forms that could probably be made far more cheaply by any clever mistry under proper supervision. In most cases, however, it will probably be found advantageous to buy such a set as indicated in the list, specially for demonstration purposes, and subsequently to develop simplified duplicates illustrating the same principles, which the boys should be given opportunity actually to experiment with on their own individual account or working in pairs.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT ON THE PROGRESS OF EDUCATION IN BENGAL, 1917-18 TO 1921-22.

GOVERNMENT OF BENGAL.

EDUCATION DEPARTMENT.

Education.

CALCUTTA, THE 20TH NOVEMBER 1923.

RESOLUTION—No 3346Edn.

READ—

The Report on the Progress of Education in Bengal for the years 1917-18 to 1921-22.

The report was written by Mr. J. W. Holmo, Professor, Presidency College, with the help of Mr. W. C. Wordsworth, officiating Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, 1921-22.

2. General Remarks.—Consequent on the passing of the Government of India Act and the adoption of the principle of dyarchy, the Education Department is now a transferred department administered by the Governor acting on the advice of the Minister who is an elected member of the Legislature and responsible to that body. European education and education in the district of Darjeeling and in the Chittagong Hill Tracts have been reserved for the Executive Council, but speaking generally the net effect of the change is that it is now left to the Legislative Council by resolutions and budget votes, as well as by other methods, to determine the best method of adapting the educational system to the needs and circumstances of the Province. Mr. P. C. Mitter, C.I.E., was appointed to be the first Minister for Education and assumed charge of his office on the 3rd January 1921.

3. The impetus to educational activities which, it was hoped, would follow the transfer of such an important subject as education to popular control was checked by the non-co-operation movement. The Reformed Government started on its career with a deficit of over Rs. 2 crores between its estimated recurring income and the expenditure for which it was considered necessary to provide in the budget, while its actual income declined from Rs. 11,11,74,000 in 1920-21 to Rs. 9,87,82,000 in 1921-22, a decrease of Rs. 1,23,92,000. Their financial difficulties made it difficult for the new Bengal Government to deal effectively with the non-co-operators' strenuous endeavours to subvert the student community. The movement made little impression either on middle and primary schools for boys or on girls' schools ; the students of the Bengal Engineering College and the post-graduate and law classes did not swerve to any appreciable extent from the ordinary tenor of student life, but the baneful effect of non-co-operation propaganda was markedly visible in the case of arts colleges and high schools. The arts colleges in Calcutta, the Government colleges at Hooghly, Krishnagar and Chittagong, and the private colleges at Bankura, Berhampore and Rangpur had to be closed for a time in the interest of the students themselves. On a rough computation, 42 per cent. of the students in the first and third year classes left their colleges. Of these about 14 per cent. rejoined later, so that some 28 per cent. of the students left altogether. In the case of high schools there was a drop in the number of pupils by 22·9 per cent.. but here too it is probable that many returned to their studies as the number of candidates at the Matriculation Examination of 1922 was much the same as in 1921. The Government arts colleges and high schools suffered less than privately managed institutions, and the steadying influence of the Government high schools saved the whole educational structure from collapse. One important effect of the movement was to intensify the feeling which had been in existence for some time, that the present system of education fails to meet modern requirements.

4. University Education.—The report of the Calcutta University Commission justified this feeling. The recommendations of the Commission are too well known to need recapitulation ; they suggested a complete reorganisation of the whole provincial system of higher and secondary education. The Commissioners recognised that a system of higher and secondary education adequate to the demands of the present and the future demands, which are at once political, social and economic, was an indispensable condition of Bengal's continued welfare, and they attempted to reconstruct accordingly. Unfortunately the proposed reconstruction demands expenditure which is beyond the resources of this Government But some reform of the Calcutta University is so urgently needed that a bill designed to modify the present organisation is now under discussion.

Dacca has been more fortunate than Calcutta. There it has been found possible, largely with the help of the grants originally made by the Imperial Government, to adopt the main lines of the scheme formulated by the Commission. A short account of its organisation has been given in Mr. Holmes' admirable report, from which it will be seen that its main feature is that it is a unitary, teaching and residential University exercising jurisdiction within an educational enclave. It provides for graduate and post-graduate courses and only admits students who have passed the Intermediate Examination of any of the existing Universities or tests recognised as equivalent thereto. The University since its creation has been subjected to severe criticism ; but it is doing good work and has a future.

5. Collegiate Education.—Arts colleges have increased by three, but the number of students in them has declined by 8·3 per cent. Government colleges have suffered the most (15·3) and aided colleges the least (3·3), while unaided colleges hold an intermediate position between the two (9·1). This decrease is due in a large measure to the feeling to which reference has been made above, viz., that the existing system of education is not in close touch with the life, thought and feeling of the country and that it is an inadequate and even unsuitable preparation for the demands of modern life. Literary courses have hitherto been popular, because they led to Government employment and were a preliminary to the legal profession. But Government appointments are limited and the legal profession is overcrowded. The complaint is not a new one. "It has been felt in all provinces," wrote the Education Commission of 1882, and urged by many witnesses, "that the attention of students is too exclusively directed to university studies, and that no opportunity is offered for the development of what corresponds to the "modern side" of schools in Europe. It is believed that there is a real need in India for some corresponding course which shall fit boys for industrial or commercial pursuits, at the age when they commonly matriculate, more directly than is effected by the present system." The Calcutta University Commission referred to the growing number of younger minds in India which were feeling the need of industrial enterprise, and the Commissioners dared to look forward to the day when the sons of middle and professional classes in Bengal would gain "new vigour and initiative from better teaching and more inspiring influences in school and college" and would find freshly opened fields of employment. The Government of Bengal, in the Ministry of Education, realise the situation, but it is never easy to readjust suddenly an educational system which has grown up through a course of years and to which the public has become accustomed, and the absence of adequate funds makes this task all the more difficult. The Ministry of Education have done what they could. By their Resolution No. 1331Edn., dated 6th July 1922, they appointed a Committee to draw up a co-ordinated scheme of vocational education, and their report is under consideration. In the meanwhile, as science must be the basis of many kinds of vocational training, they have made grants, capital and recurring, to some non-Government colleges for the introduction or improvement of the teaching of science.

6. Secondary Education—As compared with the figures for 1916-17, the number of high schools increased in 1921-22 from 698 to 878, or by 180, while the number of middle English and middle vernacular schools fell from 1,602 and 349 to 1,468 and 217, or by 134 and 132, respectively The number of pupils decreased from 218,070 to 190,630 in high schools, from 160,359 to 108,582 in middle English schools, and from 21,253 to 10,632 in middle vernacular schools. The weaker privately managed secondary schools suffered most owing to the withdrawal of students, and in many cases Government had to give grants to preserve the better schools from extinction. The large decrease of 89,838 studends, viz., 27,440 in high schools, 51,777 in middle English schools and 10,621 in middle vernacular schools is attributed partly to the influence of the non-co-operation movement, which was most in evidence in 1920-21, partly to a growing distrust of the value of the article supplied and partly to economic distress. During the last ten years the average cost of educating a boy has increased from Rs. 22·6 to Rs. 34·6 in high schools, from Rs 10 to Rs. 18·1 in middle English schools, and from Rs. 7·8 to Rs. 14·2 in middle vernacular schools. The poorer parent is often unable to bear the additional burden of expenditure and is constrained to withdraw his boy from school ; he may recognize the advantage of a good general education, but he has found that there is no market value for the knowledge which his son has acquired at what is to him a heavy cost.

Purely vernacular education is not popular and middle vernacular schools are gradually disappearing. Middle English schools, on the other hand, are often raised to the high school status or converted into junior madrasahs. The study of English is so popular that it has been found necessary to allow the teaching of English as an optional subject in primary schools. Against this must be set the fact that high schools are fast losing their old popularity, and the gathering volume of responsible opinion is in favour of making the vernaculars the medium of instruction, English being taught as a second language. Another general demand is that vocational or technical courses shall be combined with the courses which are now taught in schools; but in spite of this demand the "B" or technical classes which are still maintained in some half-a-dozen schools make little, if any, headway.

Another important question which demands serious consideration arises from the recommendation of the Calcutta University Commission that secondary and intermediate education should be removed from the control of Calcutta University and organised under the control of a Board to be specially constituted for this purpose. A Bill has been framed to give effect to these proposals and is now under discussion. During the quinquennium under review a temporary Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education was formed at Dacca.

7. Primary Education.—Very little progress has been made during the quinquennium in developing primary education. It is true that the number of schools has risen by 3027 and the number of pupils by 4,811, but the proportion of boys to the total male population of school-going age has declined from 17·3 to 17. The problem is one of exceptional difficulty. There can be no doubt that, as pointed out by Mr. Holme in his report, "there is a strong foundation of public opinion, expressible in rupees, annas and pies, upon which the fabric of a reformed primary education may be built", but the efforts made are spasmodic, unsystematic and haphazard and results are venture schools which are dependent for their ephemeral existence on the income which the village pandit can eke out of them. What is needed is a well-considered scheme, based on a fixed policy, which will be acceptable to the people at large. The Panchayati union scheme was a step in the right direction, and it accomplished something, but the Director of Public Instruction in his Quinquennial Review of 1912-1917, himself admitted that, in spite of the undoubted merits of the scheme, it had not contributed to the expansion of primary education. Something more comprehensive is needed. Two surveys were made during the last five years and two programmes were prepared. Of these the one drawn up by Mr. Biss attracted considerable public attention. The central idea underlying his proposals is the formation of a network of schools so placed as to be within the reach of every household. To this end the populated portion of a given locality is to be divided into fixed school areas and served by central schools designed to accommodate the great majority of the boys of school-going age in the neighbourhood. He worked out for municipal areas detailed schemes showing the capital and recurring cost of making complete provision for all boys of primary school age who would be likely to attend free primary schools voluntarily, if and when such schools were opened; while, as regards rural areas, he drew up 204 union board schemes, including a complete system of schools for every union in the Hooghly district. Government made an offer to every local body of a grant to start new schools on a 50 per cent. basis. The response was disappointing, and the all-important question of the incidence of the cost,—whether it should fall wholly on Provincial Revenues or wholly on local funds, or partly on Provincial Revenues and partly on local funds—has not yet been settled. Meanwhile the local authorities on whom rests primarily the responsibility of providing primary schools are holding back, and there is a general feeling of hopelessness. And yet the expansion of primary education is one of the pressing political and social needs of the moment. On it depends the success of responsible Government and all that such success implies in the way of national progress. The question is therefore one for which a solution must be found. In the meanwhile, the ideas of Mr. Biss are being put to practical test by experiments in certain areas which were rendered possible by the Government offer cited above. These experiments are on the basis of half the cost being met by Government and the other half by the local bodies concerned. Thirty-six schools have been started in this way by various union boards and municipalities in different parts of the Presidency.

8. Pay and prospects of teachers.—One of the greatest defects of the existing educational system is that there is little incentive for men of the right sort to enter the teaching profession. The remuneration offered is so inadequate and the prospects are so limited that well-qualified men of vigour adopt that calling with reluctance. The matter has long been under consideration and steps have been taken during the quinquennium to place the pay and the prospects of the Government educational officers on a satisfactory basis.

The Indian and Provincial (now called Bengal) Educational Services were reorganized on the basis of time-scale pay with effect from the 1st December 1919, and separate cadres were formed for men and women.

Under the reorganization scheme the pay of the ordinary grade men's branch of the Indian Educational Service varies from Rs. 400 to Rs. 1,250 a month ; there are, besides, lower and higher selection grades, comprising 15 and 5 per cent. of the posts in the cadre, carrying salaries of Rs. 1,250—50—1,500 and Rs. 1,550—100—1,750, respectively. An overseas allowance of Rs 150 rising to Rs. 250 per mensem according to length of service is also provided. Fifteen posts were transferred with their incumbents from the Bengal Educational Service to the men's branch of the Indian Educational Service during the year 1920-21. On the 31st March 1922 the men's branch of the Indian Educational Service consisted of 67 posts, including the post of Principal of the Government School of Art, Calcutta, which was then under the control of the Department of Industries.

The pay of the women's branch of the Indian Educational Service varies from Rs. 400 to Rs. 850 per mensem : there is a selection grade carrying a salary of Rs. 900 rising to Rs. 1,050 per mensem : a fixed overseas allowance of Rs. 50 per mensem is provided for members of non-Indian domicile. On the 31st March 1922 there were four posts in the women's branch of the Indian Educational Service.

The pay in the men's branch of the Bengal Educational Service rises from Rs. 250 to Rs. 800 per mensem, while in the women's branch of this service the scale of salary is Rs. 200—25—2—500 per mensem. On the 31st March 1922, there were 211 posts, including five temporary posts in the men's branch and 20 posts in the women's branch.

The teaching and inspecting branches of the educational services below the Bengal Educational Service were reorganised with effect from the 1st September 1921, when time-scales of pay were introduced. Fourteen posts of District Inspectors of Schools and 21 posts of Lecturers and Demonstrators in colleges were raised to the Bengal Educational Service and 79 Lecturers and Demonstrators were placed on Rs. 150—10—300 (efficiency bar)—10—400, with a selection grade of three appointments on Rs. 450. Differing scales of pay have been prescribed for other classes of officers, the lowest rate being Rs. 50 and the highest Rs. 250.

The reorganization was on a generous scale and service conditions have been brought into reasonable line with those of other branches of the public services. It is to be hoped that the Education Department will now attract the best talent of the country. This, however, only touches the fringe of the Problem. The question of improving the lot of the vast number of teachers in non-Government institutions still remains to be solved. These teachers are badly and often irregularly paid ; they are constrained to supplement their scanty income by private tuition ; it is not surprising that in some cases they take little interest in their work or in their pupils ; there is no security of tenure and they are apt to leave their schools at the first available opportunity. Education and discipline suffer under such conditions, and the development of the finer traits of character or the attainment of a high degree of intellectual vigour or moral excellence can hardly be expected. One condition for the recognition of high schools by the University recently adopted is that outside Calcutta no headmaster should be given less salary than Rs. 65 a month and no teacher less than Rs. 20 a month. This is a move in the right direction, but it is necessary to do more and to prescribe minimum salaries for teachers of different qualifications, under-graduates, graduates, pandits or maulvies, honours graduates, holders of the M.A., the M.Sc , or B.T. degrees. The salaries should preferably be progressive and there should be provision for a provident fund. It is imperative that every teacher should have a living wage and fair prospects, and the question of improving the pay and status of the teachers and instituting a provident fund is under consideration.

It is partly this condition of affairs and partly the lack of training facilities that are responsible for another defect in the educational system, viz., that properly trained teachers are sadly to seek. It is now recognised all over the world that the art of teaching has to be learnt, like all other arts, and yet out of a total of 20,404 teachers in Bengal only 3,952 are trained. Government recognize that, to deal with the situation, more training institutions are needed, but financial considerations have hitherto obstructed progress.

Secondary education is not only the foundation of higher education ; it is also the basis of all technical, industrial and commercial training, and it provides or should provide those who are going to teach in primary schools. The majority of the high schools in Bengal are unaided and their resources are entirely inadequate to their needs. They exist from hand to mouth, and, when any special difficulties such as those caused by the non-co-operation movement, have to be faced, it is the already miserably paid teachers whose pittances are still further reduced. The situation constitutes a problem of far-reaching political and social import. The Ministry of Education are trying to set on foot a scheme of additional grants to be devoted to teachers' pay, and to inaugurate a Provident Fund scheme. The difficulties in the way of securing adequate funds are great ; and the whole-hearted co-operation of school authorities with the Ministry is essential, if any real improvement is to be effected.

9. Professional and technical education.—The law departments attached to various arts colleges as also the pleadership classes have ceased to exist, and the only institutions for the study of law at present are the University Law College, the Law Department of the Ripon College, and the Law Department of Dacca University. Even though the profession of law is overcrowded, its study still attracts a large number of students and on the 31st March 1922 the total number of law students was 2,439 against a total number of 2,912 students on the corresponding date of 1917. It has been stated in one of the earlier paragraphs that there is now a feeling of general revulsion against a purely literary type of education. The strength of this feeling may be gauged from the statistics of medical and technical institutions.

In the Medical Colleges the number of students has almost doubled during the last five years.

The Civil Engineering College, Sibpur, now called the Bengal Engineering College, had 356 students on the rolls on the 31st March 1922 against 284 on the 31st March 1917. The number of Civil Engineering students increased by 21 and that of mechanical, electrical and mining class students by 54, while the number in the industrial classes fell off by 3. In 1921-22 24 candidates appeared for the B. E. Examination and 12 passed, while 61 appeared for the I. E. Examination and 51 passed. During the quinquennium 106 students appeared at the B. E Examination and 66 passed, while 174 students sat for the I. E. Examination and 142 of these passed. The Board of Control for Apprentice Training took in hand the revision of the mechanical and electrical classes and also made arrangements regarding the apprentice examination, to assist workshop authorities in the selection of apprentices for training. The Ministry of Education contemplate the opening of a higher mechanical class as soon as their resources permit.

The enrolment in the Ahsanullah School of Engineering, which now teaches the upper and subordinate courses of the Joint Technical Examination Board, corresponding to the overseer and sub-overseer courses, has risen from 118 on the 31st March 1917 to 297 (excluding 78 pupils of the Artisan Department) on the 31st March 1922, the increase being due partly to the rush of pupils seeking admission to the upper subordinate department, as that department in the Bengal Engineering College has been closed. Indeed, the school has become so popular that steps have been taken to duplicate all the classes from the beginning of this session.

The Calcutta School of Art, the Government Commercial Institute, Calcutta, and the Serampore Weaving Institute, the control of which was transferred from the Education to the Industries Department during the period under review, have attracted no less attention. In the Government Commercial Institute the number of students in day classes has increased from 64 in 1917-18 to 254 in 1921-22 and the number in evening classes from 203 to 545. To cope with the increased work, additional teachers have been appointed in the subjects of English, commercial geography, book-keeping and typewriting. The need for more accommodation necessitated the removal of the Institute to new and more commodious quarters. Evening classes in accountancy and auditing have annually attracted a large number of students who want to prepare for the recognized diploma in accountancy, which is still the diploma awarded by the Government of Bombay.

In the Government Weaving Institute at Serampore the progress has been equally satisfactory. In 1917 there were 78 students on its rolls. In 1922 there were 187. Dyeing, bleaching and printing have been added to the curriculum of the higher classes and the course of instruction has been extended from two to three years. Short-term courses of practical instruction in weaving were arranged at six centres.

10. The education of Indian women and girls.—The purdah, the custom of early marriage and the general apathy of the people continue to hamper rapid expansion, but there are signs to show that these obstacles are giving way before the growing enlightenment of public opinion. This is exemplified by the fact that the number of schools have increased during the last five years by 28·9 per cent. and the number of pupils by 16·9 per cent. A satisfactory feature of this improvement is that this increase has taken place among both Hindus and Muhammadans. The standard of education, however, is still very low, for out of every hundred girls under instruction no less than 98·94 are in the primary stage. A great deal, therefore, remains to be done before it can be said that there has been any real advance in the education of girls. Departmental action alone will not suffice. The public must decide what they really want and be prepared to make some sacrifice to get it. The policy of Government is to improve and expand their own institutions, but at the same time to encourage and, where possible, to supplement the efforts of other agencies. While therefore they have, in order to provide greater facilities for collegiate training in their own institutions, raised the Eden Female School at Dacca to the status of a second grade college and arranged the extension of affiliation of the Bethune College in several subjects, they have enhanced the grants-in-aid to the Diocesan College, Calcutta. Similarly, in the case of high English schools, larger grants-in-aid have been made to the United Missionary Girls' High School, the Brahmo Balika Bidyalya, the Victoria School and the Gokhale Memorial

School, so that these institutions, all of which are in Calcutta, may be placed on a more efficient basis. And as, owing to the social usages of the country referred to above, the great majority of girls must leave school while they are still quite young, it was contemplated that a survey should be made of all the middle schools for girls in the Bengal Presidency, with a view to organizing them in such a way as to provide a self-contained course of elementary education, including such subjects as hygiene, nursing, needlework. cookery and domestic science, either as compulsory or optional subjects, and that a committee, on which women should be well represented, should be appointed to consider the question of curriculum. Financial considerations, however, stood in the way and the matter has had to be postponed for the present. Side by side with these steps, attempts have been made to enlist, by liberal grants, the active sympathy of every private organization working in the field of female education, but so far the Nari Siksha Samiti is the only body that has come forward to co-operate with Government. An annual grant of Rs. 6,500 has been made to this Samiti.

With the advance of girls' education. the need for trained teachers is acutely felt. The Diocesan College and Loreto House. Calcutta, prepare candidates for the B. T. and L. T. Examinations ; for the training of teachers of a lower grade there are four institutions managed by Government and eight aided by the Education Department. These arrangements are neither adequate nor satisfactory, and the question of providing a well-equipped training college for women is under consideration.

The education of zanana women by governesses who teach them at their houses has not been a very successful experiment, and requires reorganization; but the scheme of teaching needle work through the agency of peripatetic mistresses has worked well, and it is reported that in the towns proficiency in needle-work has much improved, and that increasing numbers of girls compete in the needle work diploma examination which was instituted at the instance of Lady Carmichael.

11. The education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians. Institutions and pupils.—At the close of the quinquennium under review the number of institutions were 87. This figure includes 3 technical institutions, 20 special classes, one training class for teachers, and one for defective children. The institutions increased during the quinquennium by 8 and the pupils by 1,068—from 9,634 to 10,702. The enrolment comprises 1,570 non-Europeans, the number of such pupils having more than doubled itself during the period under review. It is noticeable that of the non-European pupils in European schools 83 only are returned as Indian Christians, while 108 are returned as Muhammadans. The local distribution of schools and pupils continues much the same. Calcutta and Howrah still lead with 6,722 pupils, Darjeeling, Kurseong and Kalimpong come next with 2,067 pupils ; then Asansol with 396. The Roman Catholics manage 42 schools and educate 5,726 pupils or 53·50 of the total enrolment. Next come various forms of management which are classed as undenominational (railway companies and the Young Women's Christian Association). They have 20 institutions and deal with 1,987 boys and girls, or 18·57 of the total. The Church of England comes third with 15 schools and 1,776 pupils, viz., 16·60 of the enrolment. The Church of Rome has increased her lead during the quinquennium.

Types and grades of education.—The number of European and Anglo-Indian students in professional colleges and schools actually declined during the quinquennium from 119 to 109. This is greatly to be deplored. The number of such students in University arts college increased slightly, viz., from 25 to 33. The number of women students remained stationary, but the number of men increased from 8 to 21. The returns show that during 1921, 178 boys and girls passed the Departmental Examination for Primary Schools, while 204 passed various Cambridge University School examinations. Only two boys and one girl secured the Cambridge Higher School Certificate in that year. Few European school pupils go beyond the Cambridge Senior Local Examination stage and many close their education at the Junior Certificate stage. There is some-thing wrong somewhere.

Finance.—The total cost of the education of Europeans and Anglo-Indians for the year 1921-22 is returned as Rs. 36,11,840—an increase of over Rs. 8½ lakhs in the quinquennium and of over Rs. 17½ lakhs on the preceding decade. The schools spent in 1922 about Rs. 1,16,000 more on buildings and equipment than they spent in 1917 ; but they spent in 1922 on boarding charges no less than Rs. 3,93,000 more than they spent on these charges in 1917. The incidence of the increased cost during the quinquennium may be assigned as follows :—Rs. 4,76,000 to fees ; Rs. 3,22,000 to Provincial Revenues ; Rs. 1,15,000 to subscriptions and donations. The receipts from municipal funds show a falling-off of about Rs. 5,000 and the receipts from endowments a decrease of about Rs. 47,000. When the Reformed Government was started, fears were expressed that the education of the domiciled community would be neglected by Government. The Bengal Legislative Council has, up to the present at any rate, belied these fears. The total cost to Government of the Kurseong Institutions was in 1921-22 Rs. 2,08,511 as against Rs. 1,47,556 in 1916-17.

Teachers.—The position as regards the qualifications of teachers in European schools in Bengal is slowly improving, though it cannot yet be described as satisfactory. Out of 657 teachers employed in 1921-22, 312 or 47·5 per cent. were trained as against 211 out of 546 or 38·6 per cent. in 1916-17. But there are still 160 teachers who hold no certificates at all.

The Government Institutions at Kurseong.—The staffs have been reorganised and the buildings increased and improved. Governing bodies have also been appointed : the training class for teachers which is attached to the Dow Hill School is now working under more satisfactory conditions. Owing to the munificent generosity of Sir Percy Newson it has been possible to start the construction of a new dormitory at Dow Hill. This new dormitory will not only raise the whole standard of accommodation, but it will also enable the school, for which there is a great demand, to increase the number of its pupils. In connection with the Dow Hill training class it has been suggested by the Principal that a certain number of Indian girls should be admitted, provision for them being made in a cottage specially constructed and arranged for them. This suggestion which is now being considered is an interesting recognition of the demand among certain classes of Indians for the general training which schools for Europeans seek to provide.

The Bengal Retrenchment Committee in commenting on these Kurseong Schools and their cost to Government suggested that, while there was a good case for the education of European children in hill schools of this kind, the case for Anglo-Indian children was not equally good. The Government of Bengal have rejected this suggestion.

General remarks.—The present is, as Mr. Holme suggests, a time of stress for the domiciled community. The general trade conditions of the world have hit the community hard. There is unemployment and poverty and these evils re-act at once on the children who are taken away from school sooner than they should be. The feature of the present situation indeed seems to be that full advantage is not being taken of the educational facilities which are available. Then again the schools are hard hit financially. Many require new buildings, but how is the capital to be raised ? People generally are earning less money and there is consequently less to give away. Government are paying therecurring grants which the schools may earn under the Code, but large capital grants are entirely beyond their resources. In times like this people are apt to become impatient, to criticize what is and to proclaim that salvation lies on some quite different road. The domiciled community's great need is unity ; their great hope, so far as education is concerned, lies in the able and self-sacrificing men and women who are directing and working in their schools and in the awakened public interest in all problems connected with the community's welfare. The Government of Bengal realize fully the political, social and economic importance to India of the domiciled community. It is their policy that the community should be given every reasonable chance to work out its own welfare.

12. The education of Muhammadans.—One of the interesting features of the quinquennium is the advance made by Muhammadans in the matter of primary education. There are now more boys of that community (52·6 per cent.) in that stage of education than those of other communities. It is regrettable that their progress in the higher grades has not been proportionately as great. In colleges they form only 12·8 per cent. of the students; in professional colleges 9·4 per cent., in high schools 14·9 per cent., and in middle English schools 25·1 per cent. It is clear, therefore, that they still have much leeway to make up and, to encourage them, the following additional scholarships have been instituted :—

(i) Three junior scholarships of the value of Rs. 10 per mensem each, tenable for two years in any intermediate college within the Dacca University area.

(ii) Nine junior scholarships of the value of Rs. 10 per mensem each, tenable for two years in any college affiliated to Calcutta University.

(iii) Six senior scholarships of the value of Rs. 10 per mensem each, tenable for three years in Dacca University.

(iv) Six senior scholarships of the value of Rs. 10 per mensem each, tenable for two years in any college affiliated to Calcutta University.

(v) Two graduate scholarships of the value of Rs. 25 per mensem each, tenable for one year in Dacca University.

(vi) Two graduate scholarships of the value of Rs. 25 per mensem each, tenable for two years in Calcutta University.

(vii) Two scholarships of the value of Rs. 25 per mensem each, tenable for three years in the mechanical and electrical engineering classes of the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpur.

(viii) Two scholarships of the value of Rs. 25 per mensem each, tenable for three years in the mining classes of the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpur.

(ix) Four scholarships of the value of Rs. 15 per mensem each, tenable for two years in the sub-overseer classes of the Ahsanullah School of Engineering, Dacca.

While these steps have been taken to promote education on modern lines, purely Islamic education has not been neglected. The syllabus of studies for the junior department of madrasahs has been revised; Islamic Matriculation and Intermediate examinations have been introduced under the control of the Intermediate and Secondary Education Board, Dacca, and Islamic intermediate classes have been opened in connexion with the Dacca Madrasah. The report of the committee appointed in 1920 to enquire into the general conditions of the Calcutta Madrasah and to make proposals for its improvement is under consideration.

13. Backward classes.—As in the case of Muhammadans, the backward classes, and notably the Namasudras, have made considerable headway in primary schools—a fact which indicates that classes hitherto almost inaccessible are coming under the influence of new forces. In stages higher than the primary, however, they lag behind, and it has been found necessary to institute a large number of scholarships, to enable them to take better advantage of the facilities that exist. These scholarships are as follows :—

(i) One graduate scholarship of Rs. 30 per mensem, tenable for two years in Calcutta University, and another of the same value, tenable for one year in Dacca University.

(ii) Four senior scholarships of the value of Rs. 15 per mensem each, tenable for two years, one of which will be tenable in Dacca University and the remaining three in any college affiliated to Calcutta University.

(iii) Four junior scholarships of Rs. 10 per mensem each, tenable for two years, one of which is tenable at colleges within the Dacca University area and the remaining three in colleges affiliated to Calcutta University.

(iv) Thirty-three middle scholarships of Rs. 4 per mensem each, tenable for four years.

(v) Sixty upper primary scholarships of Rs. 3 per mensem each, tenable for two years.

Of the backward classes the most advanced are the Namasudras : education has spread amongst them to such an extent that it is doubtful whether they should now be included among the backward classes.

14. Physical and moral training.—The purely intellectual education which has hitherto been imparted in the schools and colleges has undermined many of the old moral and social bonds which have so far kept society together, but it has done nothing to replace them by western ideals of discipline and self-control. Add to this the "drabness and joylessness" of a student's life in Bengal, and the wonder is that the spirit of restlessness which prevails in the student community at the present day is not greater than it is. The spirit is none the less one which requires control. Religious and moral instruction is sometimes put forward as a corrective, but there are so many difficulties in the way that it has not been found possible to devise a practical method for the general dissemination of such instruction. Another remedy attempted has been the establishment of hostels in which pupils and teachers can be brought into personal contact with each other and corporate life among the students themselves may be encouraged. Ninety more hostels have been constructed during the quinquennium, of which the most important are the hostels attached to the City, Ripon, Bangabasi and Vidyasagar Colleges for undergraduates and the Carmichael Hostel for Muhammadans. These hostels were all built with money provided by Government. Efforts in this direction are being supplemented by the encouragement of games, the cost of which is met partly from fees realised from the students and partly from Government grants. A post in the Bengal Educational Service has recently been created and the duties of the officer appointed to it are to systematise games and to supervise physical education These measures will, it is hoped, go some way towards counteracting the evil to which reference has been made and which all right-thinking men must deplore. But the real remedy lies with the public.

15. Conclusion.—The thanks of Government are due to the various officers who have administered the Education Department during the quinquennium under review and to Mr. Holme for a very able report.

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of the Resolution be forwarded to the Government of India, Department of Education, Health and Lands, to the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, to all Commissioners of Divisions, and to the Local Self-Government Department of this Government for information.

ORDERED, also, that the Resolution together with the Report be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Government of Bengal
(Ministry of Education),

J. A. L. SWAN,
Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

THE EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM.

Statistics of Management.

4. Public and private institutions.—In 1921-22 there were in the Presidency 53,767 educational institutions, viz., 40,959 for men and boys, and 12,808 for women and girls. The figures for 1916-17 were 48,373; 38,489 and 9,884. Thus the increase during the quinquennium amounted to 2,470 or 6·4 per cent. in institutions for males and 2,924 or 29·6 per cent. in institutions for females. The increase was mainly in primary and special schools.

5. Departmental standards.—The number of institutions for both sexes which conformed to departmental standards in 1921-22 was 51,927 against 46,104 in 1916-17, an increase of 5,823 or 12·6 per cent.

6. Public and private management.—Of the 51,927 institutions conforming to departmental standards, 3,613 or 7 per cent. were under public management and 48,314 or 93 per cent. under private management; 41,545 or 80 per cent. being aided.

7. Primary, secondary and special schools.—Primary schools in 1921-22 were 47,783 of which 3,315 or 6·9 per cent. were under public management. Secondary schools were 2,678; 139 or 5·2 per cent. under public management. Of 1,420 special schools, 143 were under public management, of which 121 were for the training of teachers.

8. Colleges.—Of 46 colleges, 16 were under public management. Of the 36 arts colleges, 9 were under public management and 27 under private management; of the latter, 13 received aid from provincial revenues. In 1916-17 there were 51 colleges in the Presidency including law colleges and classes, some of which have since been abolished.

9. Summary of management.—The proportion of institutions of all classes under public management to those under private management was 1 to 14, as against 1 to 13 in 1916-17.

10. The Education Budget.—Sanctioned estimate: Receipts, 1916-17, Rs. 9,05,000; 1921-22, Rs. 11,00,000. Increase during the quinquennium, Rs. 1,95,000. Sanctioned estimate: Expenditure, 1916-17, Rs. 88,30,000; 1921-22, Rs. 1,26,05,000. Increase during the quinquennium, Rs. 37,75,000.

11. The increase under the heading receipts is due to the increase in fee-income, which in turn has been brought about by (a) the greater number of pupils and students in certain classes of institutions, and (b) by increases in the rate of fees. The increased expenditure is naturally largely due to the increase in the prices of commodities, due to post-war conditions. Much of the increase is accountable for under the following heads :—

(a) increased grants to district boards and other local authorities and to aided colleges and schools;
(b) the reorganisation and improved pay of the educational services;
(c) the establishment of the Dacca University and of the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education at Dacca;
(d) additional appointments in schools and colleges, and (e) increased allotments for contingent expenditure.

Controlling Agencies.

12. General remarks.—The superior educatonal services have been reorganised during the quinquennium mainly on the basis of the recommendations of the Public Services Commission. The terms and conditions of the teaching and inspecting branches of the subordinate educational services were improved in accordance with the advice of a special committee formed by Government under the presidency of Mr. W. C. Wordsworth. The revision of pay of ministerial and other officers of the department was considered by the same Committee and its recommendations are under the consideration of Government.

13. Administrative changes.—The most important event during the quinquennium was the introduction of the necessary administrative changes, consequent upon the introduction of the new Government of India Act. Under the new administration, education (excluding European education) has become a transferred subject, controlled by a responsible Minister. The Hon'ble Mr. P. C. Mitter, M.A., C.I.E., became the first Education Minister of Bengal in January 1921. Till the close of the financial year 1921-22, he was assisted by the Director of Public Instruction, Bengal, working as ex officio Deputy Secretary to Government in the Department of Education. European Education was at the same time placed under a Member of the Executive Council. During the quinquennium a new department called the Department of Industries was created and the control of all technical and industrial institutions (excepting the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpore, and the Ahsanullah School of Engineering, Dacca) was transferred from the Education Department to it.

14. The Educational Services.—The details of the various services are given below:—

(A) Indian Educational Service.

15. The Indian Educational Service was reorganised with effect from 1st December 1919. Instead of the former single cadre on incremental pay from Rs. 500 to Rs. 1,000 by an annual increment of Rs. 50 with in addition three first-grade personal allowances of Rs. 250—50—500 and four second-grade personal allowances of Rs. 200—10—250, there is a service of two distinct cadres carrying different time-scales of pay for men and women, each divided into three groups, administrative, collegiate and special.

16. Men's branch.—The men's cadre includes, besides the ordinary grade, two selection grades—higher and lower—comprising 5 and 15 per cent. of its total strength. The pay of the ordinary grade is from Rs. 400 to Rs. 1,250. The pay of the lower selection grade posts is from Rs. 1,250 to Rs. 1,500, and of the higher from Rs. 1,550 to Rs. 1,750. In addition all members of the men's cadre who were permanently in the Indian Educational Service on 1st December 1919 have been granted overseas pay of from Rs. 150 to Rs. 250. Of officers appointed subsequently only those of non-Indian domicile draw overseas pay. A local allowance of Rs. 250 per mensem has been sanctioned for the Principal of the Presidency College and of Rs. 150 for all other college principals (excluding intermediate colleges); and the two Assistant Directors of Public Instruction have been granted duty allowances of Rs. 150 per mensem. On 1st April 1917 appointments for men numbered 49, 48 on the ordinary rates of pay, 1 on a special rate. Three new posts on ordinary rates of pay were added to the cadre before the reorganisation of the service. Thus, on the 1st December 1919, the men's branch had 52 appointments. In February 1921, 15 new posts were added to the service for the promotion of Indian officers from the Bengal Educational Service, a corresponding reduction being made in its cadre. Thus, on 31st March 1922, the men's branch of the Indian Educational Service had 67 posts, including 3 posts in the higher selection grade, and 10 in the lower. Of these 67 posts one appointment, on a special rate of pay, the Principalship of the Government School of Art, Calcutta, is under the control of the Department of Industries.

17. Women's branch.—The women's cadre of the Indian Educational Service includes one selection grade. The pay of the ordinary grade is from Rs. 400 to Rs. 850 and that of the selection grade post rises from Rs. 900 to Rs. 1,050 with in all cases overseas pay of Rs. 50 for numbers of non-Indian domicile. There were three women in the Indian Educational Service on the 31st March 1917. The post of the Principal, Dow Hill School for Girls, Kurseong, has since been raised to the Indian Educational Service, making four posts on 31st March 1922, including one post in the selection grade.

(B) Bengal Educational Service.

18. Men's branch.—The Bengal Education Service was recognised with effect from 1st December 1919, two separate cadres on different rates of pay being constituted for men and women. The time-scale of pay for the men's cadre of the Bengal Educational Service is from Rs. 250 and rises to Rs. 800, with two efficiency bars at Rs. 460 and Rs. 650; that is, at the end of the 12th and 20th years of service. Men's appointments on 31st March 1917 were 151, 150 permanent and 1 temporary. During the quinquennium, 79 permanent appointments and 4 temporary posts were created and 23 posts abolished. Thus, on 31st March 1922, there were 211 appointments, of which 5 were temporary. Of the 83 new posts, 79 permanent and 4 temporary, created since 31st March 1917, 38 posts were for professors and lecturers, 15 for inspecting officers, and 30 for head masters of high schools, who were included in this service as a part of the scheme for improving secondary education. Nineteen lecturers and 14 district deputy inspectors were promoted to the Bengal Educational Service as part of the reorganisation of the educational services below the Bengal Educational Service. Nineteen posts of professors were created in consequence of extended affiliation of colleges and one post of second Inspector of Schools, Rajshahi Division, was created to assist the divisional inspector. Of the 23 posts abolished, 5 were attached to the old Dacca College, 16 were raised to the Indian Educational Service, one post was attached to Dacca Training College for the Nature Study class, and one was the head mastership, Victoria School, Kurseong, which became a post outside the grades.

19. Women's branch.—The time-scale of pay sanctioned for the women's branch of Bengal Educational Service, is Rs. 200—25/2—500 with an efficiency bar at Rs. 325, after 12 years' service. On 31st March 1917, there were 12 Bengal Educational Service appointments for women. During the quinquennium 8 new posts were created, three for Head Mistresses of Government high schools for girls, whose posts were raised from the Subordinate Educational Service to the Bengal Educational Service under the Secondary Education Scheme; two for Assistant Inspectresses of Schools in Eastern Bengal, two for lecturers, whose posts were raised to the Bengal Educational Service by the reorganisation of the Subordinate Educational Service and one for the Principal, Training School for Female Teachers, Calcutta. on 31st. March 1922 the cadre had 20 posts.

(C) Subordinate Educational Services.

20. In terms of Government Resolution No. 872-T. Edn., dated 9th October 1920, a Committee of those noted below was appointed to examine and report upon the pay and prospects of officers of the Education Department below the Bengal Educational Service and to recommend such changes of organisation as they considered desirable with special reference to the question whether the graded system should be replaced by a time-scale of pay:—

DACCA, the 23rd November 1923.

CHAPTER III.

University and College Education.

36. Main features.—The outstanding features in University and Collegiate education have been—

(a) the firmer establishment of the Calcutta University as a teaching body, more especially in the post-graduate departments,

(b) the report of the Calcutta University Commission and the beginnings of legislation to put its recommendations into force, and

(c) the establishment by charter of the Dacca University.

37. Post-graduate teaching.—The beginning of the quinquennium saw those changes in the Calcutta University Regulations by which the whole of post-graduate teaching passed under the control of the University, the Colleges, with the exception of one or two mufassal colleges, which retained affiliation in English, losing their M.A. affiliation in those subjects in which they had previously been teaching agencies. The change has caused not so much an increase in the number of students in the M.A. classes, as an enormous increase of the teaching staff. This was brought about largely by the appointment of many whole-time lecturers, but also by engaging, as part-time workers, most of those teachers who, under the older regime, had taught their subjects to the M.A. classes in the colleges. This large expansion is shown by the figures for the beginning of 1916-17 and 1920-21, the last year for which returns are available. At the beginning of the academic session 1916-17, there were 1,258 students in the University M.A. classes, with 46 teachers, whose work was, however, eked out by the appointment of certain outside lectures on a part-time basis. In addition there were 326 M.A. and M. Sc. students in Presidency College, 23 in the Scottish Churches College, and 115 in Dacca College. In 1921, there were 1,234 students (though this number, possibly through non-co-operation, showed a drop from 1,420 in the previous year). For these 1,234 students, there were 233 professors, assistant professors and lecturers, including the part-time teachers. This disproportion of teachers to taught is not so glaring as might at first appear. It is due largely to the extension of science teaching, which, before 1917, the University did not undertake at all. Thus, of the total 1,234, 189 were in the science classes with a staff of 54, or 1 teacher to 3·5 students, as against 1,045 students in Arts, with a teaching staff of 179 or 1 teacher to 5·8 students, though again this proportion is largely influenced by the fact that in such subjects as anthropology (8 teachers, 9 students) and experimental psychology (8 teachers and 9 students), there is a much greater disparity. There is much debate whether the change has been for the better. Previously to the great growth of purely University post-graduate teaching, the colleges, and especially Presidency College, endeavoured to restrict the numbers of those who entered their M.A. and M.Sc. classes by demanding a certain degree of attainment, marked by honours or distinction, in the post-graduate subject proposed. Apparently in the University classes, there is no such small-meshed sieve before entrance : in practice a graduate, Pass or Honours, is admitted to the post-graduate course in any subject he chooses. The result is that the supposedly " soft options," English, Economics, Philosophy and History attract the average graduate who has no particular bias to any particular subject, while the Indian classical languages are comparatively neglected. It may be argued, however, that the increased percentage of passes in the M.A. examination, and the steadiness in the percentage of passes in the M.Sc. examination implies at least that the new system is as efficient as the old, but this increase, and this steadiness in the percentage of passes in the M.A. and M.Sc. examinations respectively, is accompanied by a very large increase in the percentage of passes in other examinations, and he would be a bold eulogist who would maintain that both schools and colleges in Bengal have improved their methods and standards in the last 5 years commensurately with the steady rise in the percentage of passes. It is therefore difficult, if not impossible, to draw any safe conclusion as to the success of the new scheme from the statistics of examination results. The increasing activities of the post-graduate department have been made possible to some extent by endowments. Thus, in the previous quinquennium, the University College of Science was founded out of the gifts of Rs. 14 and Rs. 10 lakhs, respectively, made by Sir Tarak Nath Palit and by Sir Rash Behari Ghosh. In the present quinquennium a further gift of the capital value of some Rs. 5½ lakhs was made by the late Kumar Guruprosad Singh of Khaira. Out of the interest of this, the University has established five new chairs, in (i) Indian Fine Arts, (ii) Phonetics, (iii) Physics, (iv) Chemistry and (v) Agriculture, the occupants of which take part in the general post-graduate work of the University. Another gift. of Rs. 2½ lakhs, under the will of the late Sir Rash Behari Ghosh, established a number of travelling research fellowships, open to graduates of the University. A further interesting development of University work has been started by the beneficence of Mr. Prankrista Chatterjee, who in 1921 made over 100 bighas of land and an endowment of Rs. 1,800 per annum to start a University Mining School, which when organised will presumably train students of the Mining Course leading to the B.E. degree of the University.

38. The Calcutta University.—The vast mass of the Calcutta University Commission Report has been public property since early in 1919. It has been discussed, criticised destructively and constructively, and has formed the basis of a scheme for reform. At present, however, this scheme lies in abeyance till the financial sky is fairer, and its first-fruits, the establishment of the University of Dacca, have still to stand the test of experience. Certain minor changes have, however, been made. By Act No. VII of 1921 of the Indian Legislature the Governor of Bengal becomes Chancellor of the University of Calcutta, the Government of Bengal nominates the Vice-Chancellor, and, in general, the local Government possesses the powers previously held by the Governor-General in Council. One of these powers has been already exerted to the extent of appointing the Ministers for Local Self-Government, Education and Agriculture and Industries, Bengal, and the Minister for Education, Assam, as ex officio fellows of the University. A change has also been made in the jurisdiction of the Calcutta University by the formation of an educational enclave at Dacca. By the Dacca University Act, the schools within that enclave lost their connection with Calcutta, but the Dacca University was given no power to recognise secondary schools or intermediate colleges. By a resolution, dated the 7th May 1921, there was formed a Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education at Dacca, which, mutatis mutandis, exercises in the Dacca area much the same sort of control over education up to the Intermediate Examination as is exerted by the Calcutta University within its jurisdiction. This is, indeed, the only change of any magnitude, apart from the calling into being of the Dacca University, as yet accomplished in pursuance of the recommendations of the Commission.

39. Examinations.—The following table shows the results of the University Arts and Science examinations for the past five years :—

40. Examination standards.—These tables are curiously instructive. It will be seen that a large and steady rise in the percentage of passes has ocurred in every examination during the quinquennium. This would argue either (a) a correspondingly steady increase in the efficiency of such institutions as prepare for these examinations, or (b) a correspondingly steady lowering of the standard of pass But the cumulative evidence of almost every report of the arts colleges during the quinquennium suggests that progress in methods of teaching, or improvement in the human material upon which that teaching is exercised, is almost non-existent. Neither the arts college nor the high English School has advanced sufficiently to account for the steady rise, and the only alternative conclusion is that there has been a steady lowering of standard. Another feature is interesting, the decrease in the number of students taking the purely literary arts courses, correlated with the increase in those taking science. This reflects the growing demand for something supposedly more useful in after-life, a demand intensified by political developments in the last two years of the period.

The University of Dacca.

41. The foundation of the Dacca University.—The history of the scheme to establish a teaching University is set forth in detail in the Report of the Calcutta University Commision, and it is hardly necessary to summarise it here. Financial considerations have caused many modifications both in the original scheme, the result of the work of a committee formed in 1912 under the chairmanship of the late Mr. (afterwards Sir Robert) Nathan, and in the scheme proposed by the Commission. The main outlines of the latter scheme have, however, been adopted, and embodied in legislation, to the effect that the University should be unitary, teaching and residential. The Act establishing the Dacca University came into force on the 1st July 1921, and on that date the departments of English, Arabic and Islamic Studies, Persian and Urdu, Sanskrit and Sanskritic Studies, Philosophy, History, Economics and Politics, Mathematics, Physics, Chemistry, Education and Law began their work. Later, at the beginning of the session 1922-23 a Department of Commerce, closely associated with the Department of Economics, was added. The original intention had been to staff these departments by recruitment in England, but financial considerations caused the abandonment of this policy, and recruitment was local, largely from the Dacca and Jagannath Colleges, which ceased to exist on the establishment of the University. At present the staff consists of 9 professors (1 acting), 2 heads of departments (1 honorary, 1 acting), 16 readers, 39 lecturers (5 part-time), 19 assistants, and 4 honorary teachers.

42. Entrance.—The tests for entrance are the Intermediate Examinations of the Indian Universities, and thus the recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission regarding the separation of existing Intermediate courses from University organisation and control have been put into force. University teachers are thus freed from the burden of what is really school work, requiring methods different from those of purely University instruction.

43. Organisation.—The first Annual Report of the University thus summarises the general organisation. The University has been planned approximately on the model of the modern British Universities. The Governor of Bengal is the Chancellor; the Vice-Chancellor is the academic and executive head of the University.

(a) The supreme body is the Court, which is a large body of ex officio elected and nominated members, at present 158 in number. The Chancellor is required in nominating members to ensure that so far as possible half the non-European members shall be Muhammadans. The Court makes new statutes on the recommendation of other University bodies and may cancel new Ordinances made by the Executive Council. It also has the power of reviewing and passing resolutions on the annual budget and report and it has constituted a Budget Committee to assist it in this function.

(b) The chief executive body is called the Executive Council and consists at present of 15 persons, viz., the Vice-Chancellor, the Treasurer, the Commissioner of the Dacca Division, the Provost, the Deans of the Faculties, two non-Muhammadan and two Muhammadan representatives of the Court, and four persons (including two teachers) appointed by the Chancellor. The Council, as constituted at present comprises 4 Europeans, 5 Hindus and 6 Muhammadans.

(c) The chief academic body is the Academic Council, including the Vice-Chancellor as Chairman, the Deans, the Provosts, the Professors, the Librarian, and a certain number of Readers and Lecturers. The total number at present is 19.

(d) There are at present three Faculties—a Faculty of Arts with 28 members, a Faculty of Science with 15 members, and a Faculty of Law with 15 members. For reports on special subjects the faculties constitute Committees of Studies.

44. Residential and tutorial organisation.—The main new features in the University are connected with its elaborate arrangements for residence, and for tutorial supervision. There are three "Halls"—the Dacca, the Muslim and the Jagannath Halls, each controlled by a Provost, who is assisted by two house-tutors, and by the University teachers distributed for this purpose among the three Halls. Each student is assigned specially to one of these teachers for general guidance, and thus the pass degree tutorial guidance is accomplished. Honours students in addition are under the direct tutorial supervision of the head of the department. An attempt is thus being made to provide something different in kind from the "tutorial" assistance given in most colleges in Bengal, which is as a rule a sort of intensified coaching for an examination. To quote the report, the object of the tutorial class is "to encourage originality and individual effort, to ensure that each student shall be enabled to learn something of intellectual production as well as of reproduction, so that when he enters the world he will not find himself for the first time confronted with intellectual problems to which he has not been taught the answers beforehand." Further, as an incentive to constant and uniform effort through a student's career, the tutorial record is, by ordinance, taken into account at the settlement of examination results. A student not resident in a Hall must be attached to one, for tutorial purposes, and for the social benefits which the system is specially devised to procure for him. Actual residence is cheap enough, some 10 or 12 rupees in addition to seat-rent, which varies from two to four rupees. In the Muslim Hall, the arrangements for food are in the hands of the staff, while in the Dacca and Jagannath Halls, the students themselves, with occasional guidance of the staff, run the arrangements on a sort of communistic basis.

45. Site and buildings.—The University is particularly fortunate in situation and in the external shell of its corporate life. It occupies nearly a square mile of park-like land, and its buildings include many of those which formerly housed the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam. The former Secretariat contains now the University office, the lecture-rooms, class-rooms and common-rooms of the faculties of Arts and Law, while other parts are temporarily used for the residence of students. Government House contains the Court-house and residences for members of the staff. The old Dacca College has been turned into physical laboratories, and the Curzon Hall, once the College Assembly Hall, has become the meeting place of Convocation. The Dacca College Hostel, and the buildings intended for the hostels of the Jagannath College, are now the Dacca and Jagannath Halls; the Muslim Hall, pending the erection of a new building, occupies part of the old Secretariat. Games have ample accommodation, for in addition to a central gymnasium, there are two playing fields close to each Hall, and much further space which, at a small cost, may provide even more opportunities as the University expands.

46. Libraries.—Dacca College and the Dacca Law College have provided the nucleus of the main University Library, and in the first year of its life, the University has spent about a lakh of rupees on additions, chiefly by increasing the number of scientific and literary periodicals. A beginning has also been made with departmental libraries, intended for Honours and M.A. students, while arrangements have been made for the ample provision of books to poor students, beyond the ordinary limits of the lending regulations.

47. Laboratories.—The buildings of the old Dacca College now house the Physics Department, with certain adaptation of space to ensure facilities for individual research work. Equipment has been added to considerably, and a new workshop built. The chemical laboratories are in a separate building, with ample equipment, and with space for very large expansion.

48. Students.—On 31st March 1922, there were 400 B.A., 100 B.Sc., 95 M.A., 30 M.Sc., and 177 Law students, a total of 802. This included 2 women—one in the B.A., the other in the M.A. class. Of the total number, 162 or 20·2 per cent. were Muhammadans and 35 or 4·3 per cent. belonged to the depressed classes. There was one Indian Christian. In addition, 154 students of the Dacca Medical School took physics and chemistry in the University, 67 students of the Dacca Training College read in the Department of Education, and there were 7 research students.

49. Examinations.—The following table gives the number and percentage of passes in each examination held in 1922:—

	Number appeared.	Number passed.	Percentage.
B.A.	223	180	80·7
B.Sc.	37	31	83·8

ARTS COLLEGES.

50. Numbers.—There has been an increase of three arts colleges during the quinquennium: Carmichael College, Rangpur, the Rajendra College, Faridpur, and the Bagerhat College, Khulna. The figures are—Government colleges 8, municipal 1, aided 13, unaided 14, total 36 against 33 in 1916-17.

51. Classification by division and grade—

	First grade.		Second grade.		Total.

Total ...	23	26	10	10	33	36

(a) Khulna. (b) Faridpur. (c) Rangpore.

The Dacca figures are arrived at by the classification of the Dacca and Jagannath Intermediate Colleges as second grade colleges, and by the opening of the Rajendra College, Faridpur, recently raised to the first grade.

52. Students.—The total number of students on the rolls of Arts colleges was on 31st March :—

1917	...	...	18,478
1918	...	...	20,479
1919	...	...	20,780
1920	...	...	21,557
1921	...	...	19,788
1922	...	...	16,942

Thus during the quinquennium there was a total decrease of 1,536 students or 8·3 per cent. In Government colleges the decrease was 560 or 15·3 per cent.; in aided colleges 198 or 3·3 per cent., and in unaided colleges 719 or 9·1 per cent. The only municipal college, Midnapore College, increased by 13 or 8·1 per cent. The proportion of students in Government colleges compared with the number of students in all colleges fell from 20 per cent. to 18·3 per cent. The annual returns are more illuminating than the quinquennial; thus 1920 saw the maximum number of students in colleges 21,557; while in the two following years the number decreased by 4,615, or 21·4 per cent.

53. Students by communities—

			1916-17.	1921-22.
Muhammadans	...	...	1,639	2,175
Hindus	...	...	16,255	14,394
Other communities	...	...	584	373

The proportion of Muhammadan students to the total rose from 8·8 per cent. in 1916-17 to 12·8 per cent. in 1922.

54. Staff.—On 31st March 1922, there were in the arts colleges of the presidency, 739 professors, lecturers and demonstrators, of whom 20 were returned as trained, and 63 as not having University degrees, as against 620 professors, lecturers, etc., in 1916-17. The average proportion of students to teachers was 22·9 to each teacher, on the 31st March 1922, as against 29·8 in 1917, though in the general organisation of work in Bengal colleges this does not mean that each teacher was responsible for the supervision of 22·9 students, nor that outside supervision is more effective in 1922. Of the total number of 211 professors, lecturers, etc., in Government colleges, 26 were in the Indian Educational Service, 108 in the Bengal Educational Service and 77 in the Subordinate Educational Service. This decrease of students and increase in staff has to some extent eased the difficulties referred to in paragraph 50 of the previous review. Colleges have been able to extend the tutorial system, especially in English.

55. Expenditure.—The total expenditure on arts colleges was :—

			Rs.				Rs.
1916-17	...	...	18,84,996	1919-20	...	...	23,24,083
1917-18	...	...	19,98,661	1920-21	...	...	26,61,642
1918-19	...	...	21,07,604	1921-22	...	...	26,51,435

56. Expenditure according to sources—

—	Provincial revenues.	Proportion to total.	Fees.	Proportion to total.	Other sources.	Proportion to total.	Total.
	Rs.	Per cent.	Rs.	Per cent.	Rs.	Per cent.	Rs.
1916-17 ...	6,49,416	34·4	10,71,061	56·8	1,64,519	8·8	18,84,996
1921-22 ...	10,41,711	39·3	12,71,953	48·0	3,37,771	12·7	26,51,435

Increase per cent. ...	60·4	...	18·7	...	105·3	...	40·6

Thus the large increases noted in the last review have continued, and add point to the suggested explanation of the very considerable decreases in numbers given elsewhere in this report; that is, want of means rather than absence of desire for higher education. In 1921-22, 16,942 students paid Rs. 12,71,953 in fees, an average of Rs. 75 per head while in 1916-17 18,478 students paid Rs. 10,71,061, an average of only Rs. 57 per head.

Buildings and Equipment.

60. Expenditure on buildings and equipment of colleges for the year 1921-22—

—	Provincial revenues.	Municipal funds.	Private sources.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Government	2,562	.....	.....	2,562
Municipal	4,091	1,039	4,235	9,365

Unaided	13,165	.....	86,917	1,00,082
Total ...	48,283	1,039	1,72,247	2,21,569

These figures show notable decreases compared with 1916-17, when provincial revenues disbursed Rs. 89,923, private funds Rs. 2,11,645. The figures shown against Government colleges represent merely the amounts spent departmentally on equipment, and do not include the sums spent directly by the Public Works Department. The decreases may be explained by the fact that the year 1916-17 came at the end of a period of large expansion in laboratory and library equipment. The quinquennium under review has witnessed certain very necessary increases in the salaries of college staffs, which has almost inevitably led to curtailment of expenditure in other directions. Few colleges however, can be said to be adequately equipped for science teaching, while the libraries of many, teste the Calcutta University Commission Report, are woefully ill-fitted for the function they are supposed to perform.

61. Cost of educating a student.—The average annual cost of educating a student in an arts college is shown in the following table:—

—	Government college.			Aided college.			Unaided college.
	Public funds.	Other sources.	Total.	Public funds.	Other sources.	Total.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1916-17 ...	140	91	231	21	70	91	56
1921-22 ...	278	97	375	29	98	127	89

The figures are averages, but figures showing the range in annual cost are also interesting. Thus a student at Presidency College cost in 1921-22, Rs. 500, against Rs. 343 in 1916-17. In the mufassal, the average cost of educating a student in a Government college was Rs. 294 in 1921-22, Rs. 180 in 1916-17. The range of cost in private colleges is enormous, from Rs. 57 to Rs. 270, as against Rs. 25 to Rs. 207 in 1916-17.

62. Comparison of figures.—Certain trains of thought inevitably follow an examination of these figures. To take extremes, a student may, in a private unaided College, receive a year's tuition at a total cost of Rs. 57, most, if not all, of which he provides himself in the shape of fees: and if he passes all his examinations at the first attempt, he graduates for Rs. 228. A student at Presidency College similarly graduates for Rs. 2,000 of which he provides about Rs. 500, being subsidised to the extent of some Rs. 1,500. At Krishnagar the figures are even higher. The cost per student in 1921-22 was Rs. 630, of which Government paid Rs. 539. The question arises, is this very disproportionate expenditure of Government money justifiable by results? And further, is the system of choice sufficiently discriminating to ensure that those lucky individuals who enter the gates of the Presidency

College are worthy recipients of a free gift of nearly Rs. 400 each per year for 4 years? The choice of candidates is always made with the most scrupulous care, despite an amount of importunity from those interested which adds greatly to the difficulties and responsibilities of the Principal, but this care can never be leisurely. University results are published so late, often long after the college year has commenced, that selection must be hindered. In this connection it is pertinent to draw attention to the harmful effects of present practice on boys at the threshold of their University career. Their school-life closes usually in December: their Matriculation Examination is held in March: if they cannot be admitted to colleges until September, they have wasted many months at the most impressionable age. It was remarked in the last review that "there are some private colleges which maintain a standard of efficiency which is quite equal to that of any Government college." If the truth of this statement, undisputed in 1917, still remains unchallenged, it would seem that Government is paying a disproportionately high price for a result provided elsewhere much more cheaply. Naturally there are many imponderables in judging human material; the one solid fact stands out, however, that loath though one may be to accept examination results as a sole criterion, they must be taken as affording some working standard of comparison. It cannot be said that examination results, standing alone, justify this disproportionate expenditure. Thus in the year 1920, in a fairly typical series of examinations, Presidency College obtained the following percentages of passes:—I. A. 92 per cent., I. Sc. 95·7 per cent. B.A. 89·8 per cent. B.Sc. 72·9 per cent., against average percentages which the whole number of affiliated colleges had of 63·4 per cent., 70·6 per cent., 73·4 per cent. and 67·1 per cent. in the respective examinations. Yet, though the examination results of Presidency College are consistently above the average in all examinations taken together, and in particular are much above the average in honours and distinctions, there are private colleges which by the one test of percentage of success either surpass or approach very nearly, the results in each separate examination, obtained by Presidency College. It has been suggested that certain results apart from examination success, accrue to Government from its apparently disproportionate expenditure upon the colleges which it manages. They may be regarded as models, as standards of achievement; the men they produce may go to leaven the staffs of other colleges with a leavening of a perhaps higher educational ideal; or they enter into the public life of Bengal, into Government service and the professions, to set a high ideal of public service. These are things not to be measured by the success of an institution, or of an individual, in an examination, and it remains for others to judge whether these imponderable factors are of sufficient importance to justify the large expenditure of public money indicated above.

63. Total expenditure on scholarships during 1921-22.—The total expenditure on scholarships held in arts colleges amounted to Rs. 1,49,782 of which Rs. 94,631 came from provincial revenues. In 1916-17, the amounts were Rs. 1,48,393 and Rs. 1,10,217 respectively. The scheme by which scholarships and stipends were awarded and paid remained unaltered during the quinquennium, with the exception of the administration of the Mohsin fund, reference to which is made in the chapter on Muhammadan education.

Grants to private colleges.

64. Grants paid from provincial revenues.—For the year 1921-22 Government allotted Rs. 1,14,308 for the maintenance of private colleges. In each of the previous years, Government spent Rs. 98,458.

65. Grants from Imperial allotments.—The figures quoted above do not include the amounts allotted from Imperial grants which are noted below:—

	Rs.
1917-18	40,394
1918-19	40,394
1919-20	41,394
1920-21	41,394
1921-22	41,394

In addition to these special Imperial grants the Government of India annually allot a sum of Rs. 1,29,000 for the improvement of the buildings and equipment of private colleges. The grant is distributed by Government on the basis of the recommendations of the Syndicate of the Calcutta University which appoints a special sub-committee to consider its distribution.

Presidency College.

66. General.—The quinquennium has seen continued success, and statistics show that the college still retains its place in the regard of the public of Bengal. Disaffiliation in post-graduate teaching has not affected the work of the under-graduate departments; the system by which former teachers of M.A. subjects are transferred as part-time lecturers in the University post-graduate department works well, so that the college, staffed originally to cope with the large amount of post-graduate work in the college itself, retains its personnel unreduced. It is, therefore, fortunately placed as regards its under-graduate teaching, as the whole highly-qualified staff takes part in it.

Pending legislation, the future of the college is uncertain. The Calcutta University Commissioners have recommended that it should be removed from Government control, that its governance should be invested in trustees mainly appointed by Government, and that Government should make an inclusive grant for its financing. Thus " the college would become a distinct corporation," a constituent, not an affiliated, college of the new teaching University in Calcutta, with fuller liberty in the appointment and payment of its staff, and in the co-operation of its efforts with those of the other constituent colleges.

67. Teaching.—During the latter half of the period, an interesting, and it is believed, successful series of experiments has been conducted in the teaching of the first-year classes. It is notorious that a student enters upon his University course usually ill-prepared in oral English, the medium of his instruction. The first three months of a student's course in English at Presidency College is now passed in an attempt to give him some command over English expression, especially oral. Formal lecturing is abandoned, and frequent exercises in spoken English are substituted, while small groups are taken by the European and certain other members of the staff, who talk, and make the students talk in reply. Their pronunciation and turns of expression are corrected, and the process has been found to be fruitful in result. A second innovation, extremely popular, was the delivery of a course of lectures in general science to arts students. As was more or less expected, the number of students in the post-graduate classes retaining their connection with the College has considerably declined. This may be accounted for by the increased library and tutorial facilities provided by the University.

68. Discipline.—A striking feature of the period has been the great improvement in discipline. The last review, had to put on record many serious cases of indiscipline, rooted in political causes. Hostel searches, arrests and internments formed an unhealthy undercurrent. But the new political atmosphere consequent on the Reforms announcement of August 1917 has produced a very different state of affairs, so that, during the troubles of the two periods of stress, Presidency College students showed their good sense by refraining from participation in the wilder demonstrations indulged in by many other colleges. It is a significant fact that of all the colleges of any size, Presidency College was the only one to increase its numbers between August 1920 and August 1921.

A further illustration of this good will was the willing co-operation of students, both younger and older, in the census work of 1921. The work was difficult, for the quarter allotted is largely inhabited by Chinese, but it was entirely successful. The student-enumerators worked under 8 supervisors, elected by them.

69. Control.—In this connection the Principal observes:—"The Governing Body, as at present constituted, consists of the Director of Public Instruction as ex officio President, 3 nominated members, unconnected with the College, one of whom is Vice-President, 3 elected members of the college staff, and the Bursar and Principal, ex officio members, the Principal acting as Secretary. It is probably desirable that the Director should be a member of the Governing Body; and it is natural that, being a member, he should be President. It is perhaps not equally clear why the Principal should not combine the offices of Vice-President and Secretary. Nor is it very easy to explain on what principle the constitution of the Governing Body is based. A tribute, however, is due to the disinterested care and goodwill with which the members have dealt with the affairs of the college. During the quinquennium full disciplinary powers were transferred from the Governing Body to the Principal, a step which facilitates prompt action where prompt action is supremely necessary."

70. Corporate life.—Here again the Principal's report may be quoted: "It is not easy for students who come to college in the morning for lectures, and go away in the afternoon, to develop any strong corporate feeling. Accordingly it is in the hostel that this feeling is chiefly found; though I have no doubt that the prestige which attaches to the college is valued by nearly all its members, and the spaciousness and dignity of the libraries and laboratories are appreciated. The space at our disposal for games is very limited; and though there is always a small body of students who play games (especially tennis) with keenness and skill, they are a mere handful among the thousand students of the college. English games are expensive and take up a great deal of room. So far as the majority of students are concerned, we are obliged to dispense with the moral and physical discipline which games can give. It is some consolation to reflect that English people are disposed to make far too great a fetish of the whole matter. It may be noted here that the Students' Welfare Committee formed by the University conducted, during the year 1921-22, an elaborate enquiry into the health of students. Their report showed that a somewhat high proportion of students suffer from minor defects. So far as serious disease is concened, the record of the College is satisfactory. There have been several bad outbreaks of small-pox in Calcutta, but students have shown entire readiness to submit to vaccination and have been unaffected. The College Union which was revived during the period under review has had a certain measure of success, though its continuance probably depends on the energy of a very small number of students. Some of its debates have been well attended and have aroused interest; and it has held some well-organized 'Re-unions,' but the attendance of old members of the college at these functions has been rather meagre. The College Magazine preserves a very fair standard, but here again it is the energy of a few rather than the interest of the many that keeps it alive."

71. Affiliation.—Affiliation to the I. Sc. standard in Botany has been obtained, so that it is no longer necessary for students who wish to take this subject to begin acquiring the elements of it in their third year.

72. Examinations.—The statistics for success in examination of all colleges are to be read in the light of the remarks made in connection with the general University Examination table in paragraph 39 of this report.

Rajshahi College.

74. General.—Here the quinquennium has seen considerable expansion and the future of the college, which as an institution has several unique features, will be interesting to watch. In ten years the number of students has increased from 522 in 1912 to 819 in 1922, and these increases have necessitated considerable additions to the staff, which during the quinquennium was strengthened by the inclusion of 1 professor, 3 lecturers, 2 demonstrators and a laboratory assistant. A scheme is under the consideration of Government for the establishment of M.A. classes in History, Mathematics Philosophy and Chemistry, and of classes in Law. The aim is to make a self contained mufassal college as contemplated by the Calcutta University Commission Report. The outstanding feature of the scheme is its par financing by private endowment and local contributions. The college is particularly fortunate in this respect. It already enjoys considerable endownments, amounting to some Rs. 10,000 per annum, while Rs. 32,000, promised by Raja P. N. Roy of Dighapatia and his brother the late Kumar B. K. Ray, will be used for the erection of an urgently needed extension to the college buildings. Furthermore, the Kumar on his death left the sum of Rs. 2½ lakhs for the purpose of " making proper arrangements for the advanced teaching of such sciences as botany, zoology, etc., in Rajshahi College, with a view to the introduction as soon as possible of a higher agricultural course therein." It is possible to see in these germs the promise of a highly efficient institution, self-contained because of its varied offerings of cultural and vocational courses, and meeting many of the needs of a large tract of Bengal remote from the two main centres of education in the Presidency. A tentative effort was made, with a certain amount of success, to introduce agriculture as a subject of study in 1919. Students receive training both theoretical and practical in the district farm.

75. Medical Survey.—A further outstanding feature has been a medical survey, which, while disappointing in the nature of its revelations, may form the basis of more strenuous efforts towards the physical well-being of the students. Thus 86·1 per cent. of the students were defective in some way or other, 16·9 had defective eye-sight, and 41·06 per cent. defective teeth and gums.

The cost of educating each student was, in 1921-22, Rs 190 of which Rs. 101 came from provincial revenues, as against Rs. 119 and Rs. 54, the figures for 1916-17.

77. Staff.—The staff at the end of the period consisted of a principal, 1 professor who is also the vice-principal, 13 other professors, 11 lecturers, 5 demonstrators, 2 laboratory assistants and a gymnastic master.

79. Affiliation.—The extension of affiliation up to honours standard in Arabic was sanctioned in July 1921.

Hooghly College.

80. General.—The period has been one of steadily-maintained achievement, accomplished under difficulties, the chief of which has been the constantly recurring change of Principal, due to the war. Numbers have, after a slight increase, returned almost to the level of 1917—234 as against 230. Affiliation has been extended to include Philosophy and Economics to the pass standard, and it is proposed to add English honours. The Principal in his report pleads for ampler accommodation both for college and hostel purposes, and deplores the lack of adequate open space for college games, repeating a complaint made in the last Review. He emphasises the growing attraction of the science courses, and urges their success as a reason for further expansion. The college is noteworthy on account of its many-sided social activities carried on despite drawbacks in the way of accommodation. Its Poor Fund collects and disburses a considerable sum in aid of needy students; it has on several occasions organised relief funds in times of distress due to cyclone and flood; its magazine flourishes, as does an excellent debating society.

Thus the total cost of educating a student was, in 1921-22, Rs. 459 of which Government paid Rs. 385, as against Rs. 216 and Rs. 138, the respective figures for 1916-17.

82. Staff.—The staff was increased by an additional professor of English and by professors of Philosophy and Economics. At present it consists of a principal, a vice-principal, 9 professors, 4 lecturers, 2 demonstrators, 2 laboratory assistants and a gymnastic instructor.

83. Affiliation.—In 1919 the college was affiliated in Philosophy and Economics up to the B.A. pass standard. Affiliation in B.A. English honours is expected from the beginning of the next session.

Chittagong College.

85. General.—The quinquennium has been one of steady growth and progress. Numbers have increased from 275 to 353, despite adverse economic and political circumstances. Affiliation to the B A. honours standard in English and Pali, in Political Economy and Political Philosophy to the B.A. pass standard, and in Logic to the Intermediate standard has been granted, while, though affiliation had been obtained in Philosophy to the B.A. pass standard, financial conditions made it impossible to introduce the course. This extension of affiliation has brought about the increase in the number of students noticed above, and has undoubtedly worked towards obviating that wander-lust forced upon many mufassal students by lack of facilities in the remoter parts of the province. But the familiar story of inadequate accommodation must be repeated. The science departments have reached the limit of growth imposed by their buildings. Various schemes to relieve pressure have been mooted, and are under consideration; till their realisation the present tendency of the college to expand must receive a set-back.

86. Expenditure—

	Rs.	Rs.

The total cost of educating a student in 1921-22 was Rs. 247, of which Rs. 164 came from provincial revenues, as against Rs. 193 and Rs. 136, the figures for 1916-17.

87. Staff.—The staff was increased by two professors (Philosophy and Economics) and five lectures (English, History, Arabic and Persian, Mathematics and Logic). It consists now of a principal and a vice-principal, 8 professors, 10 lecturers, 2 demonstrators, 2 laboratory assistants, and a gymnastic instructor.

88. Affiliation.—The college is at present affiliated in the following subjects :—

I.A.—English, Vernacular composition, Sanskrit, Pali, Persian, Arabic, History Mathematics, Logic (1919), Physics and Chemistry.

I.Sc.—English, Vernacular composition, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry.

B.A.—English (pass and honours, 1919), Vernacular Composition, Sanskrit (pass), Pali (pass and honours, 1918), Arabic (pass and honours), Persian (pass and honours) History (pass), Political economy (pass, 1919), Mathematics (pass and honours), Physics and Chemistry.

Krishnagar College.

90. General.—During the quinquennium the college has passed through certain vicissitudes. A steady rise of students, from 234 in 1917-18 to 281 in 1919-20 was followed by a drop to 227 in 1920-21 and to 204 in 1921-22. Increased affiliation caused the rise, political unrest and economic distress, with perhaps a decrease in the population of the district, caused the fall. In 1916 the first step in the improvement of the status of the college was taken by the appointment of an Indian Educational Service officer as principal. During the quinquennium, the affiliation of the college was extended by honours English, honours Mathematics, (B.A. and B.Sc.), pass Philosophy pass Persian, and pass Political Economy and Political Philosophy. The college with its ample grounds, its excellent equipment and staff, its fine and spacious buildings, should bring students even from Calcutta, but there seems in some curious way to be a fascination and a glamour that attracts the Bengali youth to the overcrowded barracks and back lanes of the capital.

Thus the total cost of educating a student was in 1921-22, Rs. 630, of which the cost to Government was Rs. 539, against Rs. 294 and Rs. 195, the figures for 1917-18.

It now consists of a principal and a vice-principal, 9 professors, 5 lecturers, 1 lecturer-demonstrator, 2 laboratory assistants and a gymnastic instructor.

94. Affiliation.—The College is at present affiliated as under:—

(i) for the degree examinations in English (pass and honours), Bengali, Sanskrit (pass and honours), Persian, Philosophy, History, Economics, Physics, Chemistry and Mathematics (pass and honours).

(ii) Intermediate arts and science in English, Bengali, Sanskrit, Persian, History, Logic, Mathematics, Physics and Chemistry.

Sanskrit College.

95. Numbers.—On 31st March 1922, students in the English department were 72 against 238 in 1917. This large decrease is accounted for by the Principal as due to the influence of the non-co-operation movement, and to the growing tendency among students to take up the I.Sc. and B.Sc. courses rather than the I.A. and B.A.

96. Expenditure.—The total expenditure in 1921-22 on the English department was Rs. 44,332, of which provincial revenues contributed Rs. 40,397, as against Rs. 26,004, and Rs. 12,999, the respective figures for 1916-17. Thus the large deficit due to the decrease in the amount realised from fees, has been met by Government. The cost per student, which was in 1916-17 Rs. 105, of which Government paid Rs. 53, rose in 1921-22 to Rs. 466, of which Rs. 425 came from provincial revenues. This large increase is due to the fall in the number of students, shown above, and to the increases in salaries granted in the last year of the quinquennium.

97. Affiliation.—The college is affiliated to the B.A. pass standard in English, Vernacular composition, Philosophy and History and to the honours standard in Sanskrit. The students are allowed to read honours in Presidency College.

98. Buildings.—"The accommodation at the disposal of the Sanskrit College is inadequate and bad.....A certain tradition attaches to these buildings, but they are not adequate to present requirements. It is difficult to alter or add to them as they are." These words from the last Quinquennial Review, are equally applicable to-day, though pressure has been eased by the drop in numbers. But the "complete scheme, dealing with the whole position," which was desirable in 1917, is as far off realisation as ever.

99. Recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission.—The recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission for dealing with the problem of the college are as follows:—

"The Sanskrit College, Calcutta, should be reorganised in three sections: (a) a high school and intermediate college which would take over the work of the present intermediate classes, as well as the "high" classes of the high school course, but would throughout lay special emphasis upon Sanskrit; (b) a constituent college of the Teaching University, arranged to accommodate say, 500 students; to this college should be attached the University chair of Sanskrit and the chair or readership in Pali, and its students should profit by the instruction of the pandits in the neighbouring tol department; this college would naturally be the principal centre of teaching in an honours school of Sanskrit; (c) a tol department which would work, as now, in connection with the Sanskrit Association and have no direct connection with the University. These three institutions should be housed in separate buildings side by side, on the site of the existing Sanskrit College and the Hindu School; the Library should be available for the use of all three. They should have distinct governing bodies, which would be in relation, respectively, with the Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education, with the University and with the Sanskrit Association; but care should be taken to ensure that there were common elements in all three governing bodies.

Students of the tol department of the Sanskrit College, if they pass the title examination, and are adequately qualified in English, should be encouraged to pursue their studies in western aspects of their subjects without going through the high school and intermediate course; and for this purpose the University should institute a diploma or possibly a degree, for such students, the course of study for which should include such subjects as comparative philology and archæology." So far, however, no steps have been taken towards realisation of the details of this scheme, which can be taken up only as part of a wide reconstruction of University education.

Dacca College.

101. General.—As such, the college ceased to exist on the foundation of the Dacca University. The graduate and post-graduate departments have been taken over by the University, while the Intermediate classes now form the new Dacca Intermediate College, separated from University control. Many of the staff have been thus absorbed, and most of the students have transferred their allegiance to the new University, which during the period of transition allowed them to complete their degree courses according to the curriculum of Calcutta. During the last four years of its life, the number of students dropped from 892 to 729, this being due almost entirely to the abolition of the mixed course which allowed an I.A. student to take Chemistry. Expenditure rose from Rs. 2,03,768 in 1916-17 to Rs. 2,67,523 in 1920-21, and the average cost per head from Rs. 232 to Rs. 341. Thus ends an eighty-year record of high educational tradition and achievement.

Dacca Intermediate College.

102. General.—The Dacca Intermediate College was started as a separate institution practically in July 1920. The intermediate classes of the Dacca College were at that time removed to an adjoining building which was formerly occupied by the Dacca School of Engineering and which became available by the removal of the Engineering School to the " Press " buildings. This was done in pursuance of the recommendations of the Calcutta University Commission which laid down that Intermediate Education should be separated from the graduate and post-graduate courses; and in anticipation of the establishment at Dacca of a University on the one hand, to provide graduate and post-graduate instruction, and of a Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education on the other, to supervise the High School and the Intermediate courses. From July 1920 to June 1921, the college was under the same Principal and had the same Governing Body as the Dacca College and was simply the Intermediate section of the latter institution. With the establishment of the Dacca University, the Dacca Intermediate College became an independent institution with effect from the 1st July 1921 with its own Principal and new Governing Body.

103. Main feature.—The main feature of the college is that students are taught in small sections of thirty each excepting for lectures in scientific subjects. This brings the pupils in much closer touch with their teachers and allows the latter opportunities to know their pupils better and to give them more individual attention than is possible with larger classes. The science students are taken together for lectures, but work in sections of thirty in the laboratory where their work is supervised by teachers.

104. Numbers.—There were 327 students on 31st March 1922, 203 Hindus, 124 Muhammadans.

105. Expenditure.—The total expenditure was Rs. 88,950 and the cost per head Rs. 268, of which Government contributed Rs. 188.

Next session the second-year students will read the I.A and I.Sc. courses of the Calcutta University, but the first-year students will read the courses prescribed by the Dacca Board.

(a) The figures show that the rapid elimination of middle vernacular schools noted in the last review continues.

(b) The loss in middle schools is greater than the increase in high schools.

(c) Much of the increase is due to the turning of middle English schools into high schools.

(d) The decrease in middle schools, both English and vernacular is chiefly in private schools.

(e) Public institutions were to private in 1922 as 1: 19.

(f) Aided to unaided schools were as 1 :1, a slight increase over the figures for 1916-17.

109. Distribution of English Schools.—The curious variations in the distribution of secondary schools throughout the Presidency, noticed in the last report, continue, as the following table shows :—

This table is of further interest, as it shows that the greater portion of the decrease in the number of schools is reported from Eastern Bengal, Dacca and Chittagong being the only divisions to suffer a net loss.

113. Analysis of statistics of schools and pupils.—These tables are perhaps the most instructive, as on the surface they are the gloomiest of all statistics concerning education in Bengal during the quinquennium. The total secondary school-going population has decreased by nearly a quarter, and while the decrease in the number of pupils in middle schools may in some measure be accounted for by the closing of many, and the raising of the status of others, we cannot fall back on this explanation in the case of high schools, for while their number has increased 25 per cent., the number of pupils has decreased some 12½ per cent. The greater part of this decrease occurred in 1920-21, when numbers fell from 233,429 to 207,207, a loss of 26,222, though the drain went on the following year when numbers dropped by 16,577. The year 1920-21 was the year of great non-co-operative activity in the student world, and though this activity persisted in 1921-22, it did not as a rule take the form of a persuasion to boycott schools and colleges, except temporarily and as a means of political protest. This would point to the fact that there is some deeper-lying motive, which, on examination of the economic state of Bengal for the last two years, reveals itself as poverty. The increase in the number of high schools connotes greater accessibility; the decrease in the number of pupils, apart from purely political considerations, must imply either an inability to take advantage of that increased accessibility, or a growing distrust of the value of the article supplied. In the last review it was observed that " parents prefer to send their children to secondary rather than to primary schools." If this were so in 1917, and if no basic change has occurred in the attitude of parents since then, it would seem that it is lack of means, not lack of will, that has caused these disturbing decreases. We see that primary education, though exhibiting certain relative decreases, has not been affected to anything like the same extent as secondary education, which again seems to strengthen the argument that, politics apart, the apparently decreased popularity of the secondary school is a thing enforced by economic causes.

114. And yet there may be after all something of good in this, at least for the present generation of pupils, for the average strength of a secondary school has very considerably dropped, from 312 to 217 in the case of the high school, from 100 to 74 in middle English, and from 61 to 49 in middle vernacular. If this has not meant a wholesale reduction of staff, especially in unaided schools, then it is all to the good, since the smaller the class, the greater the teacher's opportunity. On examination of the figures, it appears that in 1916 17, there was one teacher to every 19 pupils in secondary schools, while in 1921-22, there was one to every 16 pupils, a distinctly healthy sign: In schools organised on the yearly class basis, proportions of this kind have a meaning which they have not in colleges where classes are subdivided for various subjects.

115. To sum up, it would seem that on the evidence of these figures alone, the progress shown in secondary education during the previous quinquennium has been wiped out during the last, for the secondary school pupils are not many more than they were ten years ago (309,844 as against 300,319), while with the increase in population, shown by the recent census, this absolute gain in numbers is turned into a large relative decrease. Thus in 1921-22 one male in 146 was in the secondary stage of English secondary schools, and one in 13,388 in the secondary stage of vernacular schools as against one in 119, and one in 5,965 in 1916-17.

121. The Cost of Secondary Education.—The tables are instructive. Mr. Hornell said in the Quinquennial Review of 1916-17 :—" The average cost of working an English secondary school has risen enormously during the last ten years. The cost of maintaining a middle vernacular school has similarly risen." To show how this increase continues, the above tables for the average monthly cost of secondary schools, and the average annual cost per pupil have been made to cover the period 1912—22, and illustrate the change from pre-war to post-war conditions. In these ten years, the cost per pupil in a high school has risen over 50 per cent., in a middle English school 80 per cent., and in a middle vernacular school over 80 per cent. Certainly the proportion of this cost met from fees has decreased, yet even so, the additional burden to be borne by a parent is enormous. This fact bears out strikingly the argument put forward above that it is poverty and not indifference, that prevents parents from sending their son to a secondary school. Other features of the main table are of interest. The proportion of fees to the total has decreased though absolutely the figures are much the same. As, however, they apply to a much reduced number of pupils, they indicate a considerable advance in the amount of fees paid per head. This again would seem to point to the fact that those parents who just succeeded in keeping their boys at secondary schools—and there were many—had to give up the struggle when fees were increased and the cost of living rose. Those parents who could afford, with ample margin, the pre-war cost of this type of education are still able to afford it. One encouraging feature is seen under the heading "Other Sources," for this includes subscriptions and endowments, and the large increase under this head would seem to indicate a growing sense of responsibility among the wealthier sections of the community.

122. Government contributions.—The remarks made in the Chapter on collegiate education concerning the large contributions of Government towards the total cost of Government institutions apply, though perhaps with rather less point, to the expenditure on high schools, as the following table shows :—

Total expenditure on High Schools for Indian boys according to Sources.

Management.	Total gross cost per annum.	Income from fees.	Income from other sources.	Net cost to Government.	Cost per head.	Cost to Government per head.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
Government ...	8,63,560	2,99,649	3,327	5,60,584	74·01	48·04
District and Municipal Board.	79,744	53,901	3,494	22,349	39·8	11·1
Private aided ...	24,58,994	16,59,890	3,27,904	4,71,200	35·4
Private unaided ...	29,73,640	23,83,026	5,90,614	...	29·3	...

Thus it will be seen (a) that the contribution of Government per head in a Government high school is greater considerably than the total cost per head in every other kind of school, (b) that it is nearly double the expenditure met by fees in a Government school, and (c) that in schools other than Government by far the larger part of the cost is met by fees, that is, by the contributions of parents. Further, Government spends on its 40 schools, with 12,765 pupils, nearly a lakh more than it does upon 334 aided schools, with 71,968, while it spends nothing on 500 unaided schools, with 103,712.

Grants-in-aid.

123. System of grants-in-aid.—In 1918, the systems of administration of grants-in-aid were revised, the two systems for Eastern and Western Bengal which differed in points of procedure, being co-ordinated. Applications for grants to schools conducted under specific trusts are dealt with by the Director, those for other schools by the Inspectors and Inspectresses, in consultation with the District Officer, or ultimately, in case of disagreement, with the Commissioner. Sanction is granted after a reference to Government. The amount of grant-in-aid does not ordinarily exceed, in the case of high schools for boys, one-half the amount contributed from private sources, and in the case of middle schools (boys and mixed) more than two-thirds. In all other cases, the amount does not ordinarily exceed the total amount from private sources. Conditions are laid down as to management and conformation to departmental rules. Grants may be recurring for the ordinary maintenance charges of the school, or capital, for the acquisition or purchase of land, for building, repairs, or purchase of furniture, or for the payment of debt.

Curricula and Examinations.

125. Curricula.—There has been little or no change in the curricula of secondary schools during the quinquennium, and pending the constitution of the new Board of Secondary and Intermediate Education, the schools will naturally continue under the older schemes.

126. Examinations.—The Matriculation and the Middle and Primary Scholarship Examinations are the public examinations for schools in Bengal. The Scholarship Examinations are open to a limited number of candidates selected by the Assistant or Deputy Inspector.

Scholarships.

129. Expenditure.—The amount spent on scholarships in secondary schools in 1921-22 was Rs. 84,533, of which Rs. 76,054 came from public funds against Rs. 79,870 and Rs. 72,014 in 1916-17. The scholarship rules, and the rules for the grant of free-studentships remained unchanged.

Teachers.

130. Numbers.—Although the number of teachers dropped from 20,240 to 19,821 during the quinquennium, the average proportion of teachers to pupils rose from 1 :19 to 1 :16, owing to the large decrease in the number of pupils.

131. Salaries.—The remarks made as to the inadequacy and irregularity in the payment of salaries made in the last review apply equally to-day. In Government schools, much has been done to improve the salaries and status of teachers as set forth in the chapter of this review on the educational system. In aided and unaided colleges, however, the position is much as it was, and the scandal of paper-salaries, exposed in paragraph 187 of the last review, probably still continues, and the slavery of private tuition necessary to eke out the teacher's exiguous income still remains a blot on the system.

132. Provident Funds.—A system of provident funds is under the consideration of Government, for the teachers in Government high schools but few or none of the private schools have a sufficient margin to consider the introduction of such schemes.

133. Manual Instruction.—The scheme was in operation in 21 Government and aided high schools and in 1 middle English school. The charges amount generally to Rs. 75 per month for each school for pay of teachers and contingencies. The work of boys in the Kharagpur Bengal-Nagpur Railway High School is said to be eminently practical and successful. The subjects which are usually taught in these schools are carpentry, spinning and weaving. The Inspector of Schools, Chittagong Division, is of the opinion that the co-operation of the officers of the Department of Industries is necessary for infusing more life and earnestness into the work of the manual training classes, a criticism that suggests that the schools in this division are for some reason unable to get full advantage from the opportunities offered, and that our own inspecting officers are unable to infuse the vigour and interest necessary. At the end of the period proposals were under consideration for extending the scheme to other schools. A carefully devised scheme of manual instruction may possibly go some way to arrest the rapid decrease of pupils in high and middle schools as a result of the non-co-operation propaganda.

The recognition of high schools by the University.

134. Changes in conditions of recognition.—The following changes were made in 1919 in the conditions of recognition of high schools:—

(1) The teaching staff should contain not less than three graduates and not more than two matriculates.

(2) Outside Calcutta, the head master should be paid not less than Rs. 65 a month and no teacher less than Rs. 20.

(3) The library allotment should be Rs. 5 per month instead of Rs. 3.

There is still room for much improvement in the conditions imposed as precedent to recognition.

The Report of the Rajshahi Inspector contains the following significant observations:—

"Recognition has become cheap and shows a tendency to become cheaper still. An impression is gaining ground that it may be had for the asking, seeing that cases are very rare in which it has been refused. Action is taken by the Syndicate, from a distance of more than one hundred miles in the majority of cases, generally on the application submitted by the school authorities, whether supported or not by the departmental officers, who alone may be said to be, and generally are, in a better position to give an opinion or pronounce a judgment. Oftener than not, recommendations of inspecting officers of the department carry little or no weight, and recognition is given to even such schools as scarcely survive the exhilaration of obtaining it. Recognition in fact is considered to be the summum bonum in the career of a school, and all incentive to improvement disappears as soon as it is obtained.

for the authorities of the school are pretty sure that, once granted, it will never be snatched away. When the truth is told by any Inspector, and when his criticism happens to be unfavourable, an outcry is raised that the department is out to annihilate higher education."

135. Future developments.—Secondary education, as preparing for entrance to a University, came within the purview of the Calcutta University Commission. They dealt exhaustively with its defects, and their suggestions for improvement are far-reaching and fundamental. They concern curricula organisation and control, and are so framed as to be essential to the carrying out of the reforms in the University itself. As yet, little has been done, for financial considerations forbid at present any sweeping change. Briefly the recommendations concerning organisation and control are as follows:—(i) the separation of the Intermediate courses from the University curriculum, (ii) the constitution of a new authority to control secondary and intermediate education, and (iii) the establishment of a system of intermediate colleges some of which are to contain the higher classes of present high schools. So far a Board of Intermediate and Secondary Education has been established at Dacca, a step automatically made necessary by the changes in territorial jurisdiction consequent on the passing of the Dacca University Act. Government is at present considering legislation for the constitution of another similar body for the rest of Bengal. Pending that constitution, secondary education bides its time. Thus it may be said that the defects in the system, indicated in the last Quinquennial Review, and repeated at greater length and with a wealth of detail by the Commission, still persist. It is hardly possible in this Review, which should be a report on "Educational Progress," to indicate anything but a sort of negative progress, a standing still, if not a definite retrogression. In Government schools, something has been done to raise the future status of teachers by an increase in salary calculated to attract a better type of man; but the privately-managed school, aided or unaided, is still largely staffed by men little qualified and uninterested in their work, who drift into teaching after failing in other directions, and who are the passive victims of a system which recruits its teachers by the method of appointing the man who, other things being equal, is willing to come on the lowest pay.

Curriculum.

136. Changes.—A certain number of changes have been made in the syllabus for the Matriculation Examination, but as these have been mainly concerned with optional subjects, the curriculum of the secondary school has been affected to a very small extent. Thus the remarks concerning the deadening effect of the Matriculation Examination as the ultimate goal of secondary education, recorded in the last review, still hold good, and until the high school is relieved of that dead weight, there can be little or no progress. The weight must be lightened, or the school must be freed from the obligation to shoulder it. The University itself, realising the alternatives, has perhaps anticipated the second in an endeavour to accept responsibility for the first, by what appears to be a leap in the dark. The Senate has recently passed a resolution which, if carried into effect, changes the medium of instruction from English to the vernacular and puts English into the position held previously in the curriculum by the Vernacular. If carried out, it is hardly possible to envisage the ultimate results educational, social, political, of such a radical change of policy. This decision of the University, if made operative will presumably not bind anybody to which the control of high school education may pass in the near future.

137. The proposed new regulations.—The following are extracts from the draft Matriculation Regulations recently considered and adopted by the Senate, as published in the Calcutta Review:—

"The Matriculation Examination shall be a general test of fitness for a course of University studies.

Instruction and examination in all subjects other than English shall be conducted in the vernacular:

Provided that the Syndicate may, in special cases or class of cases, make exceptions to this rule or postpone its operation for a prescribed time.

Candidates for the Matriculation Examination shall be examined in the following subjects:—

(1) Vernacular—Three papers.
(2) English—Two papers.
(3) Mathematics—One paper.
(4) Geography—One paper.
(5) At least one but not more than two of the following:—

(a) A third language, viz., Sanskrit, Pali, Tibetan, Arabic, Persian, Hebrew, Armenian, Latin, Greek, Syriac, French, German, and Indian vernacular other than the vernacular of the candidate already taken up as a compulsory subject.
(b) Drawing and practical geometry.
(c) Mensuration and surveying.
(d) Experimental mechanics.
(e) Elementary science (physics and chemistry).
(f) Hygiene including first aid.
(g) Botany.
(h) Such other subjects as may be prescribed from time to time by the Senate—One paper.

Provided that no one will be allowed to obtain a degree in Arts unless he has at some stage passed a University examination in a classical language."

" In addition, schools are to be rendered responsible for the grant of a certificate of fitness of each candidate for at least one of the following subjects:—

(a) Agriculture and gardening.
(b) Carpentry.
(c) Smithy.
(d) Typewriting.
(e) Book-keeping.
(f) Shorthand.
(g) Spinning and weaving.
(h) Tailoring and sewing.
(i) Music.
(j) Domestic economy.
(k) Telegraphy.
(l) Motor engineering and drawing.

The marks for a first division have been raised from 50 to 60 per cent. so as to get rid of the anomaly of having a larger number of successful candidates in the first division than in the second and third divisions taken together."

* Of this total, 42·6 per cent. were not reading printed books, against 37·6 per cent. in 1916-17.

146. Analysis of statistics.—The above tables disclose certain features of interest in primary education. The central fact is that primary education is decreasing either in popularity or in accessibility, for the proportion of boys in primary schools to the total male population of school age has declined from 17·3 per cent. in 1917 to 17·0 per cent. in 1922. There might, indeed, have been some ground for rejoicing in this decline, if it had been accompanied by a corresponding increase in the popularity of the secondary school. Unfortunately this is not so, for the large decrease in the pupils of secondary schools, a decrease which started in the first year of the quinquennium and which has gathered pace ever since, indicates that there has been no gain on the part of secondary education at the expense of primary. It has been pointed out elsewhere that non-co-operation was a largely operative cause of the unpopularity, probably temporary, of the secondary school; though the figures for each year of the quinquennium, showing as they do a constant decline (399, 682—396, 460—388, 038—380, 225—341, 382—309,844), would indicate that economic distress has been equally operative. With the primary school the case is different. Here non-co-operation, according to the consensus of opinions expressed by Inspectors of Schools, does not enter; it would seem that the relative decline is due almost wholly to war-time and post-war economic distress. On the other hand, there are certain encouraging aspects of the figures. The large increase in the number of lower primary schools more than compensates for the decrease in the number of upper primary schools, so that the area and the numbers of towns and villages served by a primary school have slightly decreased. Similarly, and from the same cause, the average strength of a school is smaller, and thus the slight improvement noted in the last Quinquennial Report has been maintained. Thus in 1912 it was 37·5, in 1917 35·5, and in 1922 32·6.

147. Primary education of Muhammadans.—The progress of Muhammadan primary education is also illustrated, and the progress noted in the last report continues. While Hindus in primary schools have decreased 4·3 per cent. in number, Muhammadans have increased 5·0 per cent. Thus while the Hindus, who in 1917 had 33·3 per cent. of their boys of school age in primary institutions, have now 32·2 per cent., the Muhammadans have maintained their proportion of 29·9 per cent.

148. Decrease in upper primary schools.—The decrease in the number of upper primary schools noted in the last report continues, and for much the same reasons. Many are reduced, owing to the lack of pupils, to the status of lower primary schools; in East Bengal pupils migrate to the nearest high English school, which type of school has increased from 344 in 1917 to 468 in 1922, and the curriculum is supposed to lead nowhere, since there is no school-leaving examination at the end of the primary stage. This latter cause is perhaps the one most operative in making the upper primary school unpopular.

149. Increase in lower primary schools.—The large increase in the number of lower primary schools is due to the provision of panchayeti union schools during the quinquennium, to the lowering of the status of many upper primary schools, and to the opening of many new aided schools.

150. Government aid to primary schools.—The primary school system of Bengal is largely one of private effort encouraged by aid from local bodies and the poor pandit with very humble qualifications, who sets up a village school and persuades children to go to it, is perhaps the most useful element in spreading or maintaining primary education. Thus, it will be seen that of the whole system, 81·2 per cent. of the number of schools are aided, while only 8·9 per cent. are under public management, that is, are under the direct control of Government or of municipal or local boards. The tendency during the quinquennium has been the reverse of the preceding quinquennia: in 1912, 5·2 per cent. of schools were under public management, in 1917 9·1 per cent., and in 1922 8·9 per cent.

154. Total cost of primary education.—The total cost of primary education during 1921-22 was roughly about Rs. 1,05,38,700, against Rs. 69,24,000 in 1916-17. This includes the cost of primary schools, of the primary department of secondary schools, of maktabs and other schools teaching the primary standard, of buildings, scholarships, pay and allowances of the subordinate inspecting staff and 80 per cent. of the pay and allowances of the deputy inspectors (now replaced by district and subdivisional inspectors).

155. Analysis of statistics of expenditure.—The main table above is chiefly remarkable as showing the increased part taken by public bodies in primary education. In 1911-12 the proportion of public expenditure was 28·7 per cent., in 1916-17 43·4 per cent., and in 1921-22 49·3 per cent. The large increase under provincial revenues is due to the fact that the contributions handed over to district boards are now derived from provincial revenues, Imperial grants being a thing of the past. The subsidiary tables show that the large increases recorded in the average cost per student in an Arts college, or per pupil in secondary schools, are not accompanied by a corresponding increase in the cases of primary schools, with the exception of those under Government management, where the increase is some 40 per cent.

Teachers.

156. Numbers and qualifications.—Teachers employed in primary schools for boys at the end of 1921-22 numbered 44,446, as against 40,169 in 1916-17. Of these 10,685 were returned as trained, against 6,480 an increase of 4,205; those possessing "other qualifications" numbered 30,635, against 28,625, an increase of 2,010, while wholly unqualified teachers dropped from 5,064 to 3,126, a decrease of 1,938. Thus during the quinquennium considerable improvement has taken place in at least the paper qualifications of the primary teacher. In 1917, only one teacher in six was trained; in 1922 one in four. The teachers who in 1917 had no particular qualification for their work are either being gradually eliminated, or have since obtained some qualification by training, for while they numbered one in eight five years ago, they are now one in fourteen. Similarly, the proportion of teachers who have only passed the lower primary examination has decreased from 10·2 per cent. in 1917 to 7·06 per cent. in 1922.

157. Salaries.—If this apparent improvements in the qualifications of primary school teachers had been accompanied during the quinquennium by a corresponding amelioration of their conditions, the outlook for primary education would be brighter than it is. The subjoined table, however, while it records certain large increases in maximum salaries earned, shows many actual decreases in average salary both in privately and in publicly-managed institutions. It remains for time to show whether the suggestions relating to primary education, contained in Mr. Biss's report, will so raise the status of the primary teachers as to remove the anomalies disclosed by the table.

158. Teachers as postmasters.—At the end of 1921-22, there were 556 schools in which one of the teachers was in charge of the postal work of the village in addition to his ordinary teaching work. The remuneration from the Postal Department ranged from Rs. 3 to Rs. 15 per month. At the end of 1916-17 the number of such schools was 673.

Scholarships.

159. Expenditure.—The total expenditure on scholarships held in primary schools for boys and girls during 1921-22 is returned as Rs. 18,658. Of this, Rs. 18,646 came from public funds. The corresponding figures for the year 1916-17 were Rs. 7,359 and Rs. 7,339, respectively.

161. Continuation Schools.—These are intended for those who have passed the primary school stage, and are divided into two groups, I continuing the work of the primary schools, and II giving some elementary instruction in professional or technical subjects. Continuation schools numbered 112 in 1921-22, with 3,018 pupils against 107 and 2,739 in 1916-17. Group I is growing in popularity, group II has proved more or less a failure. The total cost was Rs. 21,234 against Rs. 14,226 in 1916-17.

Panchayeti Union Scheme.

162. Numbers.—Further extension of the Panchayeti Union Scheme was postponed from 1914-15 to 1917-18 through financial stringency. An Imperial grant of Rs. 5½ lakhs enabled the department to resume operations in 1918-19. It was observed in the last review that to complete the scheme in both parts of the Presidency, 2,450 board primary schools would have to be erected. This table shows the number of board primary schools for which funds were allotted during the quinquennium :—

Years.	For boys.	For girls.	Total.

1920-21	102	30	132
1921-22	95	25	120

163. Progress of the scheme.—The cost of building each school is Rs. 1,000. The recurring cost for a boys' school is Rs. 10 a month and a girls' school is Rs. 10—15. The scheme makes slow progress.

The district boards have their difficulties; contractors are often not willing to take up the construction of a building for Rs. 1,000 while building materials are dear, and instances are not rare in which they have thrown up the work after beginning. Further, the expectations and uncertainties consequent upon the great attention recently paid to primary education have interfered with due interest in this scheme, local authorities being inclined to wait developments and inspectors of schools being helpless in consequence. Despite many defects, the scheme still stands as the best attempt in the history of the province to give the rural areas a network of moderately efficient schools at reasonable cost. These schools are undoubtedly far better than private primary schools, are better housed, and usually better taught. But the teacher's remuneration is not attractive, the aided school teacher often gets more, partly through his own energy in inducing children to come to school, but often because the site of the board school has not been chosen primarily with a view to the convenience of children. The local authority that has to provide the site often chooses one that may most conveniently be spared.

Curriculum.

164. Revision of Curriculum.—As a result of the two conferences referred to in paragraph 278 of the last Quinquennial Report, a co-ordinated curriculum for primary schools has been drawn up and was issued during the quinquennium. The curriculum before final adoption was published in the gazette for criticism, on receipt of which, and of newspaper opinion, the final curriculum was approved by Government and published for general information. The curriculum did not, however, come into operation during the quinquennium for its introduction has been postponed till 1923. It has been also decided that the old curricula should be retained in certain selected districts so as to enable the department to compare the working of the syllabuses side by side. The important point about the new curriculum is the inclusion of teaching of English as an optional subject and the emphasis it lays on the teaching of hygiene.

165. General remarks.—Primary education during the quinquennium has thus marked time, for the increase in the number of institutions and pupils is not even proportionate to the increase of population. The main features have been tentative and sporadic efforts to improve the kind of education given by modifications of curriculum, and two more or less exhaustive surveys of the whole field. One basic fact, often forgotten, is this, that the people of Bengal who send their children to primary schools are willing to pay, and do pay for about half of what they receive. In no great country with an extensive primary educational system is the proportion of fees to total expenditure so high as it is in Bengal, in no other province in India, even, is the voluntary contribution so great as in Bengal. It would seem, therefore, that there is a strong foundation of public opinion, expressible in rupees annas and pies, upon which the fabric of a reformed primary education may be built. It is for the future reformer, also, to consider whether this very practically expressed desire for education, even of the sketchiest kind, is to be suppressed or modified; whether the present system of aided private effort is to be replaced by a uniform system of State education, centralised or decentralised, in which voluntary contributions are to be transformed into a perhaps grudging payment of an educational cess.

166. It is well that the aim of primary education should be kept in view. As expressed in the Quinquennial Review for India (1712—17), it is that a child's education should continue to a stage when he may be regarded as permanently literate. Beyond that, the present system does not pretend to go; beyond that, no new scheme can afford to go. At present, it is probable that, with all the attendant evils which have been pointed out ad nauseam for the last 20 years, the system, even with its misdirected effort and its overlapping and rivalries of neighbouring schools does give to a certain proportion of the population a certain degree of literacy at an extraordinarily cheap rate. The total cost of educating a boy for 5 years in a primary school is Rs. 20. What is given in return may not be the best of its kind, but, considering its price, the marvel is that it should be so good.

167. The worst features of the present system are these:—The basis of its cheapness is sweated labour. And the basis of the two schemes for reform, which have been placed before the public during the quinquennium, still remains sweated labour. Mr. West's double scheme provides two alternatives: (a) where the average salary of a teacher would be Rs. 8 per mensem, and (b) where it would be Rs. 16 per mensem. Mr. Biss says, "I take my stand on a minimum of Rs. 15 per mensem in towns, with a chance of rising to Rs. 30 or Rs. 40 as headmasters, and minimum of Rs. 12 with free board and lodging in country districts with a chance of rising to Rs. 24 in the case of larger schools as headmasters." The Khansama's Union demands Rs. 35 as a minimum monthly wage. Mr. Biss estimates a recurring expenditure for 35 municipalities on staff and contingencies of Rs. 3,85,300 of which eleven-twelfths is expenditure on staff. If teachers' salaries are to be doubled, and thus brought almost up to the level of the khansama's demand for himself, the estimate for these 35 municipalities must be increased by Rs. 3,53,191. This suffices for 37,570 boys. Multiply this sum by forty, and we have nearly a crore and a half of rupees necessary to give the primary teachers of the province an addition to their salary which would make it something approaching a living wage. One is almost forced to the conclusion, therefore, that the present basis of the system must remain what it is; and forced also to rely on the permanence in the social fabric of Bengal of that element which can induce a man to work for the present pay of a primary teacher. The only alternative is to wait for that change of heart which will make people realise that they get for their offspring that kind of primary education for which they are willing and able to pay, to wait also for their realising the truth that the formative years of a child's life should be placed in charge of a person qualified to direct its activities and guard its intellectual expansion. And for Rs. 20 they will get 20 rupees worth and no more.

168. Arising out of this system of sweated labour is the second evil element; the teachers, though possibly the best procurable at the price, are not of the type to which the fundamental education of the people of Bengal should be entrusted. The primary teacher is as essential a cog in the educational machine as is the University teacher, and he should be as well equipped for his task. But the system by which the small proportion of trained teachers in primary schools is actually trained is very much in the nature of the blind leading the blind. It is for consideration whether the present system of guru training schools should not be very considerably modified.

169. Although the suggestions made in Mr. Biss's report are still as a whole under consideration, tentative beginnings have been made with certain selected municipalities and district boards. The reception of the report, as a report, has been almost entirely favourable, but this does not imply any wide-spread ability or readiness to find the funds required, or enthusiasm about the imposition of cesses. Many local authorities enter a very definite non possumus; others request a modification of the incidence of cost in their favour, with a corresponding demand for increased Government aid; while a few have accepted the scheme in full, and have agreed to shoulder the burden of cost.

Primary schools in Calcutta.

170. Numbers.—The returns for Calcutta showed 296 primary schools for boys, with 16,656 pupils on 31st March 1922 against 337 schools with 17,229 pupils on 31st March 1917. The number of Hindu pupils increased, while that of Muhammadans decreased during the period under review. The number of pupils in the primary classes of secondary schools increased from 10,349 to 10,810 or by 4·45 per cent.

171. Teachers.—Of the 475 teachers working in Calcutta in the boys' primary schools, 71 were trained, 23 were matriculates, 128 passed the middle examinations, 9 passed the madrasah central examination, 39 passed the primary examination and the rest were uncertificated. The remarks made in the last Quinquennial Review about the proprietor-teacher held good during the quinquennium 1917—22. The average pay of the teacher of an aided primary school during the quinquennium under review was Rs. 23·5 against Rs. 16·9 in 1916-17, while that of the teacher of an unaided primary school remained almost stationary at Rs. 5·6. The income of the teacher of an aided primary school in Calcutta, Rs. 23·5, is not to be considered very high in view of the facts—(1) that rent for the school-house has to be paid out of it, and (2) that the cost of board is higher in Calcutta than in the mufassal. The minimum rent for a pucca school-house is Rs. 15 a month and that for a tiled hut Rs. 10.

CHAPTER VI.

The Training of Teachers for Indian Schools.

The training of men teachers.

Colleges.

172. General.—There are in Bengal two Training Colleges for men, preparing students for the B.T. degree and for the Licentiate in Teaching, viz., the David Hare Training College and the Dacca Training College. In both institutions the methods of recruitment are similar, three classes of students being admitted: (1) teachers and inspecting officers in Government service, (2) teachers from aided schools, and (3) other candidates desirous of qualifying themselves for the teaching profession. It may be said that the curriculum enjoined upon these recruits demands a standard of general education rarely found among them, and that in consequence time has frequently to be devoted to a sort of preliminary polishing process which leaves less opportunity for purely professional training. Again, the curriculum is conditioned by requirements which seem to have little relation to the requirements of an Indian school, or to the capacities of the candidates whom it was supposed to attract; so that the course, say for B.T., is more or less that for the teachers' Diploma in an English University. The Calcutta University Commission has pointed out that the heavy burden of pure theory in the course is largely valueless, but their recommendations concerning the re-moulding of the course must await the settlement of the general case. At the same time, there is no doubt that the courses are appreciated, for there is an increasing demand for admission, and an increasing eagerness among school authorities to appoint the trained products of these colleges. Thus, in 1916-17, there were 93 students in training, and 118 in 1921-22. This increase is due partly to the institution of L.T. classes at the David Hare Training College. Expenditure has increased from Rs. 95,443, of which Rs. 92,743 came from provincial revenues to Rs. 1,50,942, of which Rs. 1,45,812 came from provincial revenues.

David Hare Training College.

173. From its foundation to the year 1920, the college carried on its work in the face of many physical obstacles. It was housed in quarters entirely unsuited to the purpose; it had an uneasy consciousness of possible eviction streaked by the possible realisation of a long-deferred and ambitious scheme. Eviction came, though the contemplated removal to specially built and spacious premises in Ballygunge resolved itself into the renting of a house in Harrison Road. The move, however, has done away with the old cramped conditions, and has made it possible to have the hostel accommodation beneath the same roof. In 1918 the L.T. class was opened, as a result of the closing of the London Missionary Society's classes for the training of undergraduate teachers in Western Bengal. This necessitated the appointment of an additional professor. The number of students increased from 27 in 1916-17 to 50 (30 in the B.T., 20 in the L.T. class) in 1921-22, while the total expenditure increased, from causes noted above, from Rs. 24,661 to Rs. 61,601, the whole sum in each case being met from provincial revenues.

Dacca Training College.

174. The main feature of the working of the College has been its transfer from the jurisdiction of Calcutta University to that of Dacca University. Thus its students now read for the Dacca degree of B.T., and for the Licentiateship in Teaching, while it also opens its doors to research students for the new degree of Master of Teaching. To some extent, this has led to a broadening of the basis of work, and to a modernisation of methods. Students are allowed a liberal choice in the methods of teaching special subjects: a new subject "The Physical Life of the child," including Physiology, Hygiene and Physical Drill is included, while for B.T. candidates a course in Educational Measurement—"the methods of objective measurement of class-room products and the application of statistical methods to educational problems"—has been added. The History of Education, that ambitious survey of civilisation included in the Calcutta course, has been made a non-examination subject, probably to the vast relief of both lecturer and student. A further improvement has been a valuable extension of the tutorial system, by which a student's fate no longer depends upon the sometimes chance-ruled conditions of an examination spread over a few days, but depends to a much larger extent upon the continuity of his effort throughout his course. Naturally, the transition in the nature of an experiment. To quote the Principal:—

"The present stage of development in the college is somewhat transitional. The new course has started well but needs much further working out. This process is made the more difficult by the fact that educational ideas are at present everywhere very fluid. Five years ago there were clear objectives and the problem was how to attain them: those objectives are now being questioned and nothing finished or positive has replaced them. Any large expansion in the immediate future before the objectives of the college are clearer and its new organisation more consolidated, might be very disastrous. The next quinquennium is likely to be a period more concerned with the searching out of purpose and new means than with multiplication of numbers and courses.

175. Statistics.—Numbers have increased slightly, from 59 (35 L.T., 24 B.T.) to 68 (18 L.T. 50 B.T.) during the quinquennium, and expenditure from Rs. 57,462 (of which Rs. 54,762 came from provincial revenues) to Rs. 89,341 (of which Rs. 84,211 came from provincial revenues).

Training Schools.

(I) First Grade Training and Normal Schools.

176. General.—There are six schools of this grade in the presidency, the same number as five years ago. With the exception of the school at Krishnagar managed by the Church Missionary Society and aided by Government, they are Government Institutions. The number of students rose during the quinquennium from 456 to 469, and the total expenditure from Rs. 87,028 to Rs. 1,16,898, the amount contributed from provincial revenues being Rs. 1,11,117 as against Rs. 82,056 in 1916-17. This has been caused largely by the increase in the stipend given to the students in training.

177. Possible Improvement.—There has been a growing opinion that the work done by this class of training school has deteriorated to such an extent that the expenditure of public money upon it is largely a waste. In Eastern Bengal, where the course extends over two years, the opinion of the inspectors is that the system has been tried and found wanting. "In the first place, the course is short, and not much can be accomplished during this period. Secondly, the inferior quality of the output of middle schools has reacted on the work of these institutions. Thirdly, the course is too low, and the class subjects prescribed are almost precisely of the same standard as that of those the teacher will be called upon to teach." It remains to be seen whether the increased stipend will attract a better type of student, say a matriculate. This is doubtful; formerly the hope of obtaining a junior position in a Government school was some inducement to young men of moderate qualifications to join these schools. This hope having been destroyed by recent reorganisations, staffing Government schools only with graduates, deterioration of quality has been very marked.

178. Reorganisation.—During the quinquennium the question of the reorganisation of the normal schools engaged the attention of the department. The proposals that were formulated may be summarised briefly as follows:—

(1) The initial qualification for admission should be either Matriculation or any higher certificate.

(2) The course should extend over a year.
(3) The rate of stipends in the case of intending teachers should be Rs. 12.
(4) The curriculum should consist of the following :—

COMPULSORY.

(i) Elementary Science.
(ii) Drawing.
(iii) Manual Work.
(iv) Principles and methods of training.

ADDITIONAL SUBJECTS.

(i) Bengali.
(ii) English.
(iii) Indian History.
(iv) Geography.
(v) Elementary Mathematics.

Every candidate shall be required to specialise in three out of the five subjects, one of which shall be either Bengali or English.

(ii) Guru and Muallim Training Schools.

179. General.—These schools train teachers for primary schools, the Muallim school especially for maktabs. There has been a large decrease in their number during the quinquennium, from 118 to 102, brought about by the creation of a new type of central training school, which has involved the closing of many smaller ones. Despite this fact, however, the number of students in training has increased from 1,988 to 2,047. The total expenditure in 1921-22 was Rs. 3,02,132 of which Rs. 2,87,333 came from provincial revenues, against Rs. 2,36,174 and Rs. 2,17,986—the figure for 1916-17.

180. Examinations.—The following table gives the number of gurus who have obtained the certificate of the guru-training schools during the quinquennium :—

181. The future of the guru-training schools.—The problem of the training of primary teachers is an urgent one. Two diametrically opposed sets of opinions seem to exist; there is one school that considers that the kind of teaching at present existing in primary schools can be done almost by the light of nature, and requires little or nothing beyond an acquaintance on the part of the teacher with the very rudimentary knowledge which he is required to impart. Opposed to this opinion is that which considers primary education as fundamental, and the preparation of the primary teacher as vital to its success. The upholders of the first opinion demand the abolition of the guru-training school, the upholders of the second look forward to a costly and elaborate system of training. It may perhaps be that here the middle course is most rational and most efficient, for financial stringency forbids, for example, the costly experiment of founding such institutions as the present training colleges, solely for primary teachers, while naturally one must pause before smashing an apparently essential wheel in the educational machine. And yet there seems to have been created a vicious circle which it should not be beyond the wit of man to break. At present the salary offered to a trained teacher in a primary school is not sufficient to attract that kind of man who in an ideal system would be regarded as sufficiently equipped for a teaching career. By holding out the bribe of a stipend, and perhaps by the use of some thinly-veiled compulsion, there are gathered into the guru-training schools a number of teachers whose knowledge of the subjects they teach is little above that of the unfortunate taught. Here they attempt, in one year or in two, to go through the whole upper primary or middle vernacular course with a top-dressing of the Art and Theory of Teaching superadded. There are no foundations on which to build, so that it is not surprising, to quote the Inspector, Dacca Division, that "the actual work done by the trained teachers in primary schools is cruelly disappointing." And it will continue to be so until the pay of the primary school teacher is sufficient to attract men whose initial equipment is sufficient to make the additional professional training of any avail whatever, or alternatively to make them fairly satisfactory teachers of primary schools without any special training. The vicious circle can be broken, at a price which fortunately can be expressed in rupees, annas and pies. The problem is part of the general problem of improving education at all stages, which improvement itself produces teachers of better calibre. Training as interpreted in relation to primary education in Bengal is merely a despairing attempt to supply by special means some part of what is wanting in the teachers' general equipment. Special qualifications acquired through special training have their value, but can never take the place of an adequate general education.

182. The new type of guru-training schools.—Some change has been attempted by the institution of the improved type of guru-training schools, sanction for which was received from the Secretary of State. The scheme contemplates (i) the provision in each subdivision, of a reformed training school with class-rooms and hostels for 40 students, at a cost of Rs. 25,000 for each school; a cost which has now been more than doubled: (ii) the adoption of a course of training lasting for one year, (iii) the improvement of the staff. There are now 22 schools of this new type opened and working, though the scheme is still in an experimental stage.

The training of women teachers.

(i) Training of Women Teachers for Higher Classes of Secondary Schools.

183. There were two institutions of this type in Bengal, the Loreto House Training Class (unaided), which prepared candidates for L.T., and the Diocesan College (aided), preparing both for B.T. and L.T. Concerning these two institutions, certain remarks were made in the last Quinquennial Report. They may be repeated with added point to-day:—

> The existing arrangements for training women teachers for secondary schools are expedients which have been adopted because, in the present financial difficulty caused by the war, it has not been found possible to start the Government training college for women which has been long under consideration.

In March 1913, the Female Education Committee of the Presidency considered the question of the secondary training of school mistresses and recommended that a general training college for women teachers should be established in Calcutta. Accordingly in February 1914 a fully representative committee was appointed to discuss details in connection with the establishment of such a training college. Details were settled and a definite scheme was submitted to Government. It was suggested that the college, which should be of the residential type, should be located to start with in rented premises at Ballyganj. The ultimate cost of the scheme was estimated at Rs. 46,724 a year recurring and Rs. 16,160 non-recurring. A sum of Rs. 40,000 was reserved in the recurring Imperial allotment of Rs. 2,44,000 for the purpose and it was suggested that the non-recurring part of the scheme should be met out of the savings in the recurring allotment just referred to. Government generally accepted the scheme but decided to keep it in abeyance owing to financial conditions.

184. Present difficulties.—The scheme remains in abeyance, and the Lady Principal of the Diocesan College repeats in 1922 the complaint made in 1917 as to the hopeless nature of attempting to cover the course in the time devoted to it:—

We lament the shortness of the course; ten months is utterly inadequate for all that has to be done. The theoretical course is stiff, some students' English lacks grounding and so hinders the expression and grasp of the subject in hand. Then so many are realising the importance of Geography, but if they have never studied it in the senior school, much less in College, it is nearly impossible to give them the opportunity of learning to teach it in ten short months. The same applies to History and Nature Work. There is a great demand for trained teachers, but they should be trained, not quickly pushed through a heavy syllabus.

185. Examinations.—The following table gives the result of the work of the two institutions which train women teachers for secondary schools:—

(ii) Training of Women Teachers for Primary Schools and the Lower Classes of Secondary Schools.

186. General.—Some expansion has taken place in the work of training schools of this type. In the Presidency division, three new schools have been opened during the quinquennium, the Bhahmo Girls' Training Class in 1919, the Moslem Training Class in 1919, and the Elementary Training Class of the Baptist Zenana Mission Entally, in 1918. On the other hand, the training class at Bankura, controlled by the Wesleyan Mission, has closed, though with some hope of being able to re-open. In the Dacca Division, the Vernacular Training Class of the Eden High School has been separated and placed on an independent footing. Thus there is a net gain of 3 institutions, 12 as against 9 in 1917. The need for further expansion is indicated in the report of the Inspectress of Schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions:—

The schools realise the need for trained women teachers and are always asking us to let them have such teachers. They are willing to provide quarters and to give any salary we suggest, still we are unable to supply even a fourth of the number wanted.

Similarly the Inspectress of the Dacca Circle writes:—

The problem still remains practically unsolved, as the supply of teachers is quite inadequate. It would be advisable to establish training centres at divisional headquarters and at district headquarters where there are already good schools.

Another problem still to be faced is the accommodation of these teachers when trained. Quarters are provided in very few schools and the authorities of the schools do not at present realise their responsibility to teachers out of school hours. If hostels are provided, no responsible person is generally placed in charge and the difficulties arising are numberless.

The primary education of the girls in Eastern Bengal will remain poor, so long as the teacher's question is unsolved. The question of funds does not really affect the conditions of the schools so directly, as even if money can provide the house and accommodation for staff, no teachers are available at present for all the schools that wish for their services.

These comments on present conditions may be accepted as indicating present difficulties, but the want of women teachers is not to be explained only by inadequate training facilities, but also by the general backwardness of women's education, and by a social organization that spares few women for other than domestic lives.

187. Numbers and cost.—In 1916-17 there were 2 Government and 7 aided Missionary Institutions for the training of lower grade teachers. In 1921-22 there were 4 institutions managed by Government and 8 aided by the department. They are enumerated below with the cost to Government directly or in grants-in-aid together with the number of pupils under training for the financial year ending 31st March 1922.

Government Institutions.—(1) The Hindu Widows' Training Class at Ballygunge: 14 pupils, Rs. 11,886.

(2) The Trainnig Class for Moslem Female Teachers, Calcutta: 5 pupils, Rs. 7,572.

(3) The Vernacular Training School for Female Teachers, Dacca: 44 pupils; and

(4) English Training Class attached to Eden High School, Dacca: 1 pupil, Rs. 19,900 in all.

Aided Institutions.—(5) The United Free Church Training Class, Calcutta: 9 pupils; Rs. 2,559.

(6) Lee Memorial Training Class, Calcutta: 15 pupils, Rs. 3,486.

(7) The United Missionary Training Class, Calcutta: 30 pupils, Rs. 7,200.

(8) The St. Mary's Training Class, Calcutta: 10 pupils' Rs. 960.

(9) Baptist Mission Society Elementary Training Class, Calcutta: 15 pupils, Rs. 612.

(10) Brahmo Training Class, Calcutta: 19 pupils, Rs. 8,400.

(11) The Kalimpong Mission Training Class, Darjeeling district: 12 pupils, Rs. 1,200.

(12) The Church of England Zenana Mission Training School, Krishnagar: 26 pupils, Rs. 3,330.

188. Courses of studies and examinations—Eastern Bengal.—The vernacular Training Class at Dacca was separated in March 1921 and placed under the control of the Inspectress of Schools, Dacca Circle. The English Training Class which trains only matriculates or those who have come up to that standard continues to be under the control of the Principal, Eden High School, but the class is not popular.

The following table indicates the number of candidates presented for the examination and the number of successes during the quinquennium :—

189. Western Bengal.—The training classes in Western Bengal prepare girls for junior and senior vernacular teachership examinations conducted by the Inspectress of Schools, Presidency and Burdwan Divisions. These classes follow courses laid down by the Inspectress, under whose general supervision and control they work.

190. Results of the senior and junior vernacular teachership examinations.—The results of the senior and junior vernacular teachership examinations for the last 5 years are as follows:—

Law Colleges and Classes.

192. Institutions, students and expenditure.—The institutions for the study of law are—the Calcutta University Law College and the Law Departments of the Ripon College and the Dacca University. The Law Departments attached to other Arts Colleges as well as the Pleadership classes are no longer in existence. The total number of Law students attending these 3 institutions on 31st March 1922 was 2,439 against 2,912 on the corresponding date of 1917. Of the total number of students on 31st March 1922, 2,163 were Hindus, 261 Muhammadans and 15 of other races. The corresponding figures in 1916-17 were 2,691, 207 and 14, respectively. The total expenditure on the Calcutta University Law College and the Law Department of the Ripon College amounted to Rs. 2,25,647 in 1921-22; the expenditure for the Dacca University Law Classes is included under the head "University."

Medical Colleges and Schools.

193. Colleges, students and expenditure.—At the end of the quinquennium under review the number of medical colleges was two, the same as at the end of the previous quinquennium. On the 31st March 1922, there were 1,584 students on the rolls of the two Colleges against 964 on the rolls on 31st March 1917. The number, therefore, increased by 620 during the quinquennium, and that of the Medical College, Calcutta by 124. During the year 1921-22, the total expenditure on the two colleges was Rs. 7,29,790 of which Rs. 6,34,849 was spent on the Calcutta Medical College. In 1916-17 the total expenditure on the two colleges was Rs. 3,21,645 of which Rs. 3,03,515 was for the Calcutta Medical College.

194. Schools, pupils and expenditure.—The number of medical schools at the end of 1921-22 was returned as 5 as against 9 at the end of 1916-17. On 31st March 1922 there were 1,415 students in these schools. The total expenditure on all the schools during the year 1921-22 amounted to Rs. 2,42,907 against Rs. 1,17,303 in 1916-17.

The Bengal Veterinary College, Belgachia.

195. Statistics.—On 31st March 1922, it had 143 students on its rolls against 148 on the croresponding date of 1917. The total cost of this institution for 1921-22 was Rs. 2,06,200 of which Rs. 2,06,050 came from provincial revenues and Rs. 150 from fees.

ENGINEERING COLLEGES AND SCHOOLS.

The Bengal Engineering College.

196. General.—Higher Engineering training leading to the B.E. degree is confined to the B.E. College, Sibpur, where a course of 4 years at college followed by 1 year's practical training is in vogue. The Public Works Department Reorganization Committee are in favour of lowering the age of entrance and for taking one year from the college course to add it to the period of practical training. The admission standard of most of the present candidates at Sibpur is the I.Sc. First Division or the B.Sc.

197. Students in the various departments.—On 31st March 1922 there were 356 students on the rolls of the college as against 284 on 31st March 1917. The number of Civil Engineer (formerly called Engineer) students increased by 21 and that of Mechanical and Electrical and Mining Class (formerly named apprentice department) students by 54, while the number in the industrial (formerly called Artisan) classes has fallen off during the quinquennium by 3.

198. Classification of students according to race or creed.—The number of students classified according to race or creed in the various departments of the college on 31st March 1922 was as follows:—

	Civil Engineering classes.	Mechanical Electrical and Mining classes.	Industrial classes.
Europeans and Anglo Indians ...	4	49	...
Hindus	92	151	38
Muhammadans	7	8	3
Indian Christians	...	...	3
Buddhists	1	...	...
Total ...	104	208	44

199. Expenditure.—The total expenditure on the college during the year 1921-22 amounted to Rs. 3,25,965, the cost to provincial revenues being Rs. 2,93,798. The proportions met by fees and other sources were Rs. 30,076 and Rs 2,091, respectively. In 1916-17, the total expenditure was Rs. 2,33,795 of which Rs. 2,09,750 came from provincial revenues, Rs. 19,233 from fees and Rs. 4,812 from other sources.

200A. B.E. and I.E. Examinations.—In 1921-22, 24 candidates appeared for the B.E. Examination and 12 or 50;0 per cent. passed; 61 appeared for the I.E. Examination and 51 or 83·6 per cent. passed. In 1916-17, 11 candidates appeared for the B.E. and 6 or 54·5 per cent. passed; 37 appeared for the I.E. Examination and 13 or 35·1 per cent. passed. During the quinquennium under review 106 students were presented for the B.E. Examination of whom 66 or 62·2 per cent. passed. For the I.E. Examination, 174 students were sent up of whom 142 or 81·6 per cent. passed. The newly-created Board of Control for apprenticeship training took in hand the revision of the mechanical and electrical classes at the Bengal Engineering College and made arrangements for the apprentices' admission examination to assist workshop authorities in the selection of apprentices and also introduced the improved scheme of training at the Kanchrapara Workshops.

B. Changes during the quinquennium.—The name of the college was changed from Civil Engineering to Bengal Engineering College. It was also decided to retain the college on its present site. An independent water-supply scheme and an improved sewerage system were taken in hand; and a new Assembly and Examination Hall was completed. The apprentice classes were to disappear from the college finally after July, 1922. Th system of appointing practising engineers as visiting teachers on subjects as water-supply, drainage, irrigation and structural engineering, which was instituted during the period under review has met with considerable success.

The Ahshanulla School of Engineering, Dacca.

201. Scope.—The departments at the beginning and end of the quinquennium were:—

Session 1916-17.	Session 1921-22.
(i) Sub-overseer Department.	(i) Lower Subordinate Department.
(ii) Overseer ,,	(ii) Upper ,, ,,
(iii) Artisan ,,	(iii) Artisan ,,

The amin department was abolished in the session 1921-22.

202. Students.—On 31st March 1922, there were 375 students on the rolls of the school against 118 on 31st of March 1917. As the artisan department was returned in 1916-17 as a separate school, the latter figure does not include the number on the rolls of that department which then stood at 56.

The former figure includes 78 pupils of the artisan department. Of the 375 students on 31st March 1922, 336 were Hindus, 36 Muhammadans and 3 Indian Christians. On 31st March 1917, there were 108 Hindus, 7 Muhammadans and 3 Christians besides 49 Hindus and 7 Muhammadans in the artisan class. The increase in the number of students is due to the great rush of pupils seeking admission in the Upper Subordinate Department, the Sibpur College having relinquished this course. The pressure for admission has indeed become so great that it has been decided to duplicate all three classes of that department from the beginning of the 1923 session.

203. Improvements.—The school with the workshops was removed to the building occupied by the Secretariat Press and severed all connections with the Dacca College. The Head Master has been styled Principal and an Assistant Principal has been appointed. In place of the Overseer and Sub-Overseer courses, the Upper and Lower Subordinate courses of the Joint Technical Examination Board have been substituted.

204. Examinations.—The following table shows the results of the school at the Overseer and the Sub-Overseer examinations held during the five years of the quinquennium:—

—	1921-22.			1920-21.			1919-20.			1918-19.			1917-18.

Sub-Overseer and lower subordinate.	53	31	58 5	40	23	57·5	42	21	50·0	50	35	70·0	50	40	80·0

205. " B " Classes.—In the beginning of the quinquennium " B " Classes existed in connection with the following schools in the Presidency:—

(1) The Dacca Collegiate School.
(2) The Pabna Zilla School.
(3) The Rungpur Zilla School.
(4) The Rajshahi Collegiate School.
(5) The Khulna Zilla School.

None of these classes were abolished during the quinquennium. They had 108 pupils on their rolls and in the final "B" Class Examination 27 passed out of 43 in 1921-22. In 1916-17 the number of passes was 25 out of 46, the total numerical strength on 31st March 1917 being 165.

206. Mining Education.—This is under the control of the Mining Education Advisory Board with the Chief Inspector of Mines as President. The Board works under the Industries Department. The instruction given is of the three grades, viz., (i) higher instruction undertaken at the Bengal Engineering College, passed students obtaining Colliery Manager's Certificates and getting suitable employment, (ii) part-time classes in coal-fields, at present at three centres—the course extending over two years; the development of these classes was linked with the formation of a school of Mines at Dhanbad, (iii) local classes of an elementary character conducted through the medium of Bengali and held at three centres.

207. Instruction at the Mining Centres.—The returns for the Evening Mining Classes cover the period from 1st April to 31st March and those of the vernacular classes for two months, September and October, during which the respective classes are held. The number on the rolls of the evening classes stood at 198 at the end of the quinquennium under review—an increase of only 12 over the number on 31st March 1917, whereas the vernacular sections comprehended 151 pupils as against 122 during the quinquennium ended 31st March 1917. No fees are charged for the vernacular classes, while the rate of fees for the whole course of the evening classes is Rs. 5. The total expenditure of Rs. 6,109 for the evening classes was met from provincial revenues, Rs. 5,119, and fees Rs. 990. The cost of the vernacular classes was met exclusively from grants from provincial revenues to the amount of Rs. 351. Of the total number of pupils in the evening classes 191 were Hindus, 4 Christians, 2 Parsees and 1 Muhammadan. One hundred and twelve Hindus, 2 Muhammadans and 37 belonging to other non-aboriginal races represented the number in the vernacular classes. Out of 49 candidates appearing at the Mining Sessional Examination 31 passed.

The Teaching of Surveying.

208. Instruction in Surveying is under the supervision of the Survey Education Board, the President of which is the Director of Surveys, Bengal.

The Mainamati Survey School, Comilla, occupies a most prominent place in the teaching of Surveying. It is under the direct control of Government and has 53 pupils on the rolls. The main building having been struck by lightning and burnt down, the school at present has to be held in buildings of a temporary character. The school has a two years' course and admits Amin students and Kanungoes for training. The first year examination of the school was merged into the Amin examination and both the 1st and 2nd year Examinations are controlled by the Board. Other Survey classes with two years' course lead up to an examination controlled by the Board.

209. Pleaders' Survey Classes and Examination.—These have been regularly held in Bengal and Bihar and Orissa. An improved scheme of training has been put forward. The Principal of the Bihar School of Engineering has been appointed Joint Secretary to be responsible for the Board's work in Bihar and Orissa.

210. Joint Technical Examination Board.—The three years' Upper Subordinate course and a separate two years' Lower Subordinate course are now followed in the Bengal Engineering College and the Ahshanulla School of Engineering, Dacca. Only a limited number of the Lower Subordinate passed men are admitted to the second year of the Upper Subordinate course. Upper Subordinates after passing the examination spend a year on approved practical training on works before getting the complete certificate granted by the Joint Technical Examination Board. The training of Lower Subordinates for whom there is still a considerable demand, is confined to the Dacca School of Engineering and a few improved Technical schools.

The three years' course in the Electrical Engineering at the Bengal Engineering College, Sibpur, leads up to an examination held by the Joint Technical Examination Board and successful students find suitable employment in Electrical Engineering posts without difficulty.
